POULTRY

ITEMS CONCERNING THE CARE AND TREATMENT OF LARGE AND SMALL FLOCKS THAT WILL INTEREST OUR POULTRYMEN

We wish all the readers of this column a Happy and Prosperous New Year, with the earnest wish that the year just beginning may be the most prosperous in their history.

According to the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, an addition to the ranks of the enemies of the poultrymen is among us. Poultry are already beset with parasites. Many species of mites gnaw on their skin and suck their blood; the fleas, chiggers, depluming mites and scaly leg mites attack them, and now comes the feather mite. This persitent little blood sucker is even worse than the common red or roost mite with which we are familiar. Since 1917 the U. S. Bureau of Entomology has been keeping watch on this mite which was not previously known as a pest of domestic fowls. Its first recorded occurrence was in the poultry flock of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry at Beltsville, Md. A few months later it was sent in from a commercial flock in northern New York, central Indiana, and within the last few months it has been found in two points in Canada, and near Minneapolis, Minnesota. The poultry business has so many pitfalls laid for the feet of the poultrymen that it sometimes seems impossible to make a go of it. The only thing to do is to keep right on hammering away and you will overcome most of your difficulties.

From my experience Barred Rocks are not the only breed that is double mated to produce choice exhibition specimens, but this variety seems to be the only one that is condemned on this account. From my experience I believe they are as good as any chicken raised, when you consider everything.

Those who are after early layers next fall and early broilers should begin to get ready for the coming season, which starts about the middle of January. There is money in early broilers and there is money in early layers, when they are handled right. Early broilers should, of course consist of heavy varieties altogether and no attempt should be made to hatch out leghorns for early broilers. We have found that leghorns hatched out in February and the first part of March will go into moult after laying in August and September. The result is that the beginning of the high-egg market will find them in no condition for laying. Leghorns should be hatched out from the middle of March to the first of July and they can be done in this period with profit and pleasure.

In buying baby chicks this year, do not make the mistake of sending way off for your stock. The long travel invariably weakens the chicks. Buy from local hatcheries and you will get better results and better satisfaction. For instance, a Kent county poultryman sent away up in New Jersey for chicks last year. The flock consisted of quite a considerable number. They went "bad" on him. He came to us for advise and we helped to straighten him out. Then disease got among his old birds. We again helped him to get straightened out again. The other day he gave us an order for a big lot of chicks.

About twenty years ago in western New York, T. Greiner was very successful in growing and marketing Black Langshan capons. His capons and roasters used to bring a nice premium above market prices. However popular prejudice is against black feathered, black legged chickens with pale white or flesh colored skins, although if the bird is a turkey it brings a high price. With turkeys becoming more scarce each season and in most locations difficult to rear successfully, there would seem a chance to develop a business in Langshan soft roasting chickens and capons.

The great increase in automobile traffic on country roads everywhere, has been a boon to the enterprising folks who live along the good roads. Wayside stands have sprung up everywhere, selling all kinds of farm produce, lunches, soft drinks, candy, etc. While none are in existence in Kent county, there is, nevertheless, a good opening for some of them.

A big seller of eggs said recently: "When eggs were $1 a dozen by the case, most of the output go to dealers who supply wage earners and salaried folks. When people who work for a living get good pay, they are always good spenders, want the best there is and make no kick about the price."

Last year we predicted that 1922 would be a most successful year to the poultrymen of the country. The result has proved that we were correct. We again venture the prediction that 1923 will be every bit as successful, although we cannot see where it can possibly be more so. The price of eggs has held up well, while the price of feed has been reasonably cheap. We believe there is a good chance for Kent county farmers' wives with a flock of chickens. They are by instinct natural chicken raisers, and, with some small equipment and a little time they can make it well worth while.

THE LONELINESS OF AGE

From The New York Times

Time once was when the day lacked hours
Enough to finish the tasks begun,
When morning scattered the scent of flowers,
And evenig's curtain was finely spun
Of moonlight's web and starry showers
In unison.

The lyre was touched and a song went winging
Its joyous way as befits in youth;
Easily laughter and hail came ringing
And eye met eye with the glance of truth;
For song was sweet and the heart was singing
Of love, forsooth!

One by one as the leaves are shaken
From old trees' branches by autumn's blast,
So were the old companions taken,
Leaving him lonely, left to the last,
Left to himself and his thoughts, forsaken—
Living the past.

Old age makes no plon for the morrows—
Whom shall it work with, with whom play
Burdened with debt of the days it borrows,
Age expectantly waits to pay—
Waits and dreams of the past, and sorrows
Only to stay.

ROUNDUP SWEEPS COUNTRY

Anticipated Membership Of Half Million Scouts By February

In the 600 cities and communities where there is a First Class Council of the Boy Scouts of America, and in the literally thousands of other districts where there are either Second Class Councils or Lone Scout Troops not under the council, there is going on at this time a great concerted organized exort to make the benefits of the Scout Program reach an increase of 25 per cent, or 100,000 more boys, by February. In that month, from the 8th to the 15th, there will be celebrated Anniversary Week, which denotes the Thirteenth Birthday of Scouting in this country. It is sincerely hoped that there will be a larger membership than ever before, namely, half a million at that time. Communications and reports are pointing to success. The latest reports show that although the Roundup has only been in progress for less than a month, over 63,000 new members have already been pledged. Scout authorities from Oakland, California, say: "We have set as our goal an increase of 1000 Scouts and 25 new troops.. . . . Count upon our most hearty co-operation." Word comes from Saginaw, Mich.: "We pledge ourselves to the quota." From Springfield, Mo.: "We will increase our number of Scouts 100 per cent." From Fremont, Nebraska: "You can depend on us for 25 per cent." From Jackson, Miss.: "We will do it. Our part of the half-million Scouts will be accounted for." From Spokane, Washington: "We accept the proposition. Our Field Department very enthusiastic." From Cincinnati, Ohio: "Put us down for an increase of 500." And these are only a few of the enthusiastic wires and reports that are constantly rolling into National Council Office at New York City. The increase in membership of Scouts is largely dependent upon the mosti mportant factor, which is leadership. It is not so much a question of getting the boys as of getting competent leaders of character, who will give time as scoutmasters and assistants.

Ford Sales Record Broken.

According to a statement issued by the Ford Motor Company, deliveries of Ford Cars and Trucks to retail buyers during the month of November totaled 106,327. This is a new high sales record that has never before been approachd by the Company at this season of the year and one which stands out in marked contrast to the November 1921 retail delivery figures which totaled slightly over 58,000 cars and Trucks.

For eight consecutive months, beginning with April 1st of this year retail deliveries have exceeded 100,000 Ford Cars and Trucks each month; the accumulated total for the first eleven months of 1922 being approximately 1,200,000. While the Company points out that it is not unusual for Ford retail sales to exceed the 100,000 mark during the spring and early summer months when the demand is at its peak, the manner in which business has held up throughout the balance of the year is without precedent.

Although the Ford factories have been operating at capacity for the past eight months, sales have equalled production and judging fron th u usual manner in which orders are coming in at this season of the year Ford dealers will be unable to accumulate an adequate stock of cars during the winter months for delivery next spring.

Prospective buyers anticipate an unusual spring demand have placed orders during the fall and will continue to do so throughout the winter to avoid disappointing delays in delivery later on. While this will relieve the situation to some extent, it is pointed out that thest eady increasing demand for Ford cars is nevertheless sure to create an acute shortage as the season advances.

Accordingly, the Ford Sales Organization is urging prospctive Ford buyers to arrang for delivery during the winter months in order that the demand next spring will be releived as far as possible.
