HEALTHIER COWS, MORE MILK—AT LESS COST!

Proper stock feeding is a matter that deserves the serious attention of every progressive farmer. The right feed results in healthier, happier stock—more milk production—increased earnings. A proper balanced ration is important. Experiments show that seven cows fed GROUND feed produce as much as ten cows fed whole grain.

GRINDING DEMONSTRATION

We will have public demonstrations of this combination grinder at our store, when we will grind hay, fodder, corn, etc. Don't forget the dates below and come in and see this mill in operation.

The steamship Susquehanna, long famous in Baltimore as an excursion boat, is ashore near Beaufort, North Carolina. She is said to be undamaged and is expected to be freed from the sand when the gale abates.

The case was first tried before the Circuit Courtfor Talbot county, when the decision was in favor of the hospital. WHEN BALTIMORE STARTED

193rd Anniversary Observed Last Friday

Friday last marked the one hundred and ninety-third anniversary of the "laying out" of Baltimore. In 1729 the Right Honorable Lord Proprietary "by and with the advice and consent of his Lordship's Governor and the upper and lower houses of the Assembly of Maryland, passed an act for erecting a town on the north side of Patapsco in Baltimore county and for laying out in lots sixty acres of land in and about the place where John Fleming now lives, 'property' supposed to be the right of the heirs of Charles Carroll, deceased, which said tract is commonly known by the name of Cole's Harbor."

These ancient records of Baltimore city fix the date of official action authorizing the "erection" of Baltimore town, and so, upon January 12, 1730, in compliance with this enactment, the County Commissioners, appointed to carry out the law, assembled, and, with the aid of Philip Jones, county surveyor, they laid out the plan of the future city. They were somewhat aided in their surveying plans by those primitive engineers, the sleek cows accustomed to graze in the river meadows, whose instinctive knowledge of finding the easiest grades of ascent and descent suggested the easiest way as the best, and had the city developed as originally planned Baltimoreans might have been spared continued practice in athletic effort to ascend steep hills by direct line.

Plan Of Right Angles

"That evil genius of American cities, the demon of right angles," said a writer in Harper's Magazine of January, 1880, referring to the laying out of Baltimore, "found a pliant ogent some years later in one Poppleton, whose 'plat'—a covenant with the spirits of materialism—has ever since its adoption as a plan of the city waged a merciless war against nature's curves in the cause of rectangular inconvenience and monotony. However," continues this scribe, "hills, water courses and marshes were not to be trifled with so curtly as to destroy utterly the cheering irregularity of a varied surface, but, thanks to the cows and in spite of Poppleton, some street scenery of charming diversity survives in crooked ways and steep ascents and commanding heights."

IN MEMORIAM

John Gruikey—In loving remembrance of my dear Husband, and our Father, and Grandfather, John Grulkey who died Jan. 30, 1921.

The little home we once enjoyed
How sweet the memory still
But death has left a vacant chair
This world can never fill

No one knows how much I miss you
No one knows the tears I shed
But in heaven I hope to meet you
Where no farewell words are said.
By His Loving Wife.

Rest in peace dear Father
Two years have passed away
You are gone but not forgotten
And we think of you each day.

No one knows the silent heartaches
Only those that have lost can tell
Of the grief that is borne in silence
For the one we loved so well.

God had claimed him, Oh how sudden
And he listened to his call
Hastening to his home in Heaven
Though he had to leave us all.
By the daughter, Matilda.

There are some who still will linger
Near the spot where you are laid
And we'll come and scatter flowers
On thegrave which Christ has made.

When all that now seems so mysterious
Will be plain and clear as day
Weary toils of the road will be nothing
When we met at the end of the day.
By His Grandchildren.
