THE TRANSCRIPT

WITH this issue we pass the first month of the new year. If your resolutions made at the beginning of the month have been weakened now is the time to strengthen them. It is very easy for us to resolve to improve during the New Year, but unless we stop occasionally and take an inventory of our progress toward the attainment of those resolutions we are liable to forget them. Now, at the beginning of February, let's consider how far we have gotten with our good resolutions and determine to do better during the remainder of the year.

MRS. POINDEXTER, the wife of the Senator from Washington State, has created quite a furor in official circles in Washington by her candid statements to the papers of the advantages enjoyed by the wives of cabnet officers in using the perquisites of government for their recreation and entertainments. It is thought likely that the boom of her husband for the secretaryship of the Interior has received quite a set back on account of her disclosures, though his personal friends say that he was not seeking such an appointment.

QUEEN ANNES POLITICS.

What The Queenstown News Says of The situation In Our Sister County

"The Little political Bee," heading in last Saturday's Observer, gave its readers an outline of the new and old political gossip. The writer claims to have 35 candidates booked but only produced 25; the others we presume were held back for the "dark horse" list. We make a brief analysis of these candidates that they placed on the screne:

Judge—Thos. J. Keating, J. H. C. Legg and Edwin H. Brown.

In this fight Judge Keating has easy sailing: the only thing that the two other candidates could do would be to cut down his vote in Queen Anne's county and help elect a judge from another county. We feel sure that Legg or Brown would like to have the honor of the Judgeship but before the primaries arrive, we feel confident that Legg will withdraw and, if he enters the arena at all it will be for Senator. Of course it is different with Brown.

Senator—Dr. John R. Benton, W. Irving Walker. William R. Wilson, Dudley G. Roe, Eugene L. Dudley.

Here's where the main tent is pitched, as it may be that the gentleman who lands this office will be recognized by the State leaders as the one to distribute the plums. Our analysis are thusly: Wm. Wilson and Uncle Jinks will need a lot of coaching by their friends before they enter the race. Dr. Benton is hardly in the reckoning, as he will be playing in good luck if he can hold down his present job another term. Walker is a good sport and would make a good representative and a leader, but we believe he would have a hard primary fight against Roe. You wise ones know that Roe has not been asleep at the switch, but has been busy since his defeat two years ago repairing his political fences in his own district, which today is said to be enemy proof.

Legislature—Thomas Massey, Guerney Knotts, and Chas. W. Butler.

Well, if they don't trot out others, two of these gentlemen will certainly be elected. But hesitate a moment! Massey and Butler have the habit, just can't stop even after several defeats, Knotts is a sure winner if he has no opponent. His record in the legislature was about 100 per cent Volstead, although he was elected as an anti.

Clerk—John W. Perry, B. Hackett Turner, J. F. Rolph and Robt. W. Thomas.

This office is producing a fine crop of choice "Berries" and it is worth digging deep to land. You don't need us to tell you that Rolph would appreciate another term, but we are afraid that he will have rough sailing and he might get sea sick. Thomas just to be a good fellow has his name added to the list, but we think it has been clarly demonstrated to him on several occasions by the voters, that he has had enough "helpings." The fight after it has had time to ferment will be Turner and Perry, and believe us, it will be a man's fight. Turner months ago announced himself as a candidate. Perry has not publicly announced his candidacy and his many friends are not real sure that he will enter the race.

Treasurer—Mrs. Anna Skinner, J. Louis Rhodes, J. Griffin Embert, J. Edward Stevens and James F. Boyles.

Rhodes has withdrawn and is backing Boyles. Boyles made the announcement Saturday that he was in the fight to stay and it might be that Embert, being a good sport might fall in line behind Boyles. As we see it this fight is between Boyles and Mrs. Skinner, and it promises to be real interesting.

County Commissioners Present Board . There'll be something stirring later on.

Sheriff—James U. Quimby and Elmer Anthony. Well as we see it, Anthony couldn't make Quimby step, if he decided to make the run, as he would get more majority than Anthony would get votes. Anthony made a good showing in the three-corner race two years ago, but we feel that he has lost many votes since.

State's Attorney— Chas. E. Tucker, Richard E. Earle, John Palmer Smith and James T. Bright.

These candidates would make a good run in Montana or some cold climate, as they are a little warm for this climate. But, if they decide to start in March or later, Tucker has the pole against the field.

Orphans Court—W. Hopper Gibson, Chas. E. Cannon, John R. Benton, George A. Hart, John P. Roe and Samuel Wallen.

It looks to us that Gibson and Roe are sure winners but the candidacy of Mrs. Skinner, for treasurer, may hurt Cannon's chances, and this would let Hart—from the own home town of Geo. I.—fall in.

As the fight will be strictly a family affair, we can only take a peep at the candidates and let the voters draw their own conclusions, as our analysis may not be to our liking and far from the successful ones, yet this is the one way it looks to us at the present writing.

The Rock Hall Woman's Club at the Jan. meeting elected the following officers for 1923. Mrs. George Whaland, President; Mrs. Elwood Burgess, vice-president; Mrs Walter Hadaway Jr., Secretary; and Miss Susie Leary, Trasurer.

A number of Woman's Clubs are carrying on demonstrations in pattern alteration. One of our progressive Clubs report 17 women making these patterns.

Women who are interested in canning will please get in touch with Miss Susan V. Hill, the Home Demonstration Agent, before Feb. 10th, as a meeting will be called for the purpose of getting over the latest information on this subject. Miss Linman, a specialist formerly connected with the Department of Agriculture, is arranging with Miss Hill to give a demonstration to those interested in canning. Special emphasis will be paid to canning equipment, causes for spoilage and canning of meat.

The annual Conference of County Agents and Home Demonstration Agents of Maryland was held at the University of Maryland from Jan. 23 to 26 inclusive.

GRANGE NOTES

Still Pond Grange no 245 will hold their regular meeting in Grange Hall Feb., 6, at 7:30 p. m. This is the first meeting this year and it is urgent that all members come to renew their interest, and try to have the grange meetings especially beneficial.

Remember the many blessings we have to be thankful for this winter and unless we support a grange we cannot expect others to want to be with us.

The Patrons Association of Still Pond school held their monthly meeting Friday afternoon at 2:30 in the school building. While this most loyal body of home interest workers do not come with pomp and display before the public, their good and generous spirit far exceeds the anticipations of its first intentions or expectations. There are 50 members or cheerful givers and willing workers to build up and secure better physical conditions of the pupils at the school. Owing to the illness of the president, Mrs. Wm. Hepbron, much of the executive business has fallen on the vice prsident, Mrs Lloyd Dill. We are not going to proclaim the many delightful qualities of our officers, but are willing to wager there is no other Patorns Associations in Kent County to compare with these loyal unselfish supporters of Still Pond teachers and school. This association would like any members, who would care to donate materials for the lunches such as potatoes, cabbage, tomatoes, milk, turnips, or any vegetable used in soup, or serving as creamed, would aid materally if they would take some one thing they have an abundance of, and to spare, and leave it at Mrs. Tilghman Smith's, it would certainly be very much appreciated.

The Pupils and Teachers will have their annual salid and oyster supper at the school building, Feb. 24th. Come and help keep the building together until the long expected new one is forthcoming.

HIGH STREET, CHESTERTOWN IN WINTER

How often as we journey down,
Old High Street in Chestertown,
During the months of Winter's breeze
As the snow and ice does freeze.

Do we think of these bye gone days.
When all of us would wait for the sleighs,
Coming from afar and near,
To enjoy the sport we loved so dear.

The Old Grey Mare, along with the Bay,
Was right in the battle every day,
Then who can forget the black so slick,
Who made the best of them feel sick,

Then there was a sorrel right in the battle,
Who was off with a jump, when the bells would rattle.
And laying all work aside for the time,
Everybody would enjoy the bautiful chime.

Old Bedworth, Jr., we all remember so well,
Driven by his owner, Wm. A. Bell,
Came racing down with an awful crash,
Because there was West Morrell and Geo. W. Rash.

Old Lady Thompson with Capt. Bill,
Would be right there coming down the hill,
And little Old Till as black as coal,
With Mr. Hubbard taking the pole.

To name and describe each little racer,
The trotter, the runner, as well as the pacer
Is impossible for us, and do it right,
But to enjoy the scene was our privilege and delight.

From Rock Hall, Edesville and Fairlee they came,
Worton, Still Pond and Betterton to tame,
Kennedyville, Galena, and Millington too,
Would be right there, with their steeds so true.

In fact Queen Annes countians every day,
Would cross the bridge to enjoy the fray,
For we all remember when it came to a test,
They were always in front, with the best.

We sincerely hope as time passes o'er
Some day again we will enjoy it once more,
Whereas the auto is here and likely to stay,
It will not replace the old horse and sleigh.

TOMATO GROWERS MEET

Between twenty-five and thirty farmers from Broad Neck and the vicinity of Lankford met at the home of Mr. Harry Hague in Lankford on Tuesday, Jan. 30, to discuss the tomato growers problems for 1923.

Mr. Richard Leverton was made chairman, and W. P. Graves, secretary. A resolution was offered by Mr. D. E. Rienhard, and after a lengthy discussion regarding possible price to be paid farmers, it was unanimously decided not to sign contracts prior to Mar. 1. Mr Henry Anderson read a letter from Senator MC.Daniel, in which the Senator quoted the Star Democrat as saying, that the farmers should get at least $25.00 per ton for tomatoes grown in the lower counties of this peninsular.

Upon motion, a committee was appointed, consisting of D. E. Rienhard, Henry Anderson, W. P. Graves, and James Walbert, to keep in touch with the tomato situation, and authorized to call a meeting of the farmers whenever it was deemed advisable.

It was generally observed that a cooperative spirit prevailed at this gathering, not only to secure the best possible price, but to give greater care to the quality even though it be necessary to plant a smaller acreage. Total acreage contemplated at this gathering was 200.

102 YEARS OLD

Mr. William Heavlow, A Former Delawarian, Passes The Century Mark.

Imagine getting to be 102 years old and not knowing it.

That is what happened to William Heavlow, now living with Mrs. Mark Townsend, a daughter of his third marriage, at 1343 N. Wanamaker St., Philadelphia. He never descovered how old he was until last year, when while visiting his niece in Clayton, Delaware, he ran across the old family Bible.

"He doesn't take any interest in his age,"declared his daughter," and up to the time we found the record, we calculated he was about ninety-two."

"Father is no trouble at all," she asserted, "he mends his own socks and clothes, sews on all buttons and makes his bed every day.

"His sight is getting a little poor, but he is only bothered by close work," she said, "and he is also a little deaf, or perhaps just inattentive, and doesn't get what we say."

Heavlow is still hale and hearty and his activity would do credit to a man of fifty.

"He has not missed a meal in this house," said his son-in-law, Mark Townsend, "in the twelve years he has been living with us."

Heavlow accounts for his longevity by his refusal to bother himself with worry.

"I never do worry and never have," he said. I am very contented, and that is why I have lived so long."

"Hard work never killed anybody, or dad would not have lived so long as he has, for he has worked hard all his life," said his daughter.

"When the Civil War broke out," she said, "father walked all the way from Milford, Delaware, to Philadelphia to enlist, and then walked home again. He came out of the war with crippled legs, a broken collar bone and two broken arms. And yet my mother told the first job he had after he came back was driving the mail coach from Harrington to Denton, while he was on crutches."

Heavlow has lived all these years without learning to read or write. When asked how he spent his days he replied that he "just sat."

"I can get around town," he asserted and know what trolleys I want to take even if I can't read the signs. I know where they are going by the looks of them.

Heavlow has been married three times.

"Goodness knows when the first time was," said his daughter, and Heavlow himself could not remember the date.

"We didn't take any stock in ages, money or dates," he said, "so I don't know when it was. But my third wife and I was married almost 50 years."

Heavlow has one great granddaughter, Charlotte Heavlow, four grandchildren, three sons and two daughters.

Near Accident At Lambson.

One evening recently in cranking up his automobile, Frank Cohee, Jr., who carries the mail from Lambson to Georgetown, was surprised to have the machine "Creep" up on him, and after crowding him aside, the Ford continued across the station platform until it reached the rails where it choked up, and then refused to budge; the driver tried all his usual pet methods to get Henry to retreat, but without avail, as Henry seemed determined to commit suicide, and as the train was rapidly approaching, Cohee rushed into the station and lighted a red lantern, succeeded in flagging the train which stopped a few feet from the automobile.

The train crew dismounting approached en masse not knowing but that the "Ku Klux Klan" were after them for being on time; but finding it was a Ford trying to commit suicide, they were relieved of their fears, and helped to remove the machine from the tracks, with the remark that if he had only left the red lantern alone, they would have removed the Ford more quickly in the usual way.

Price

Some folks judge price by the figures on the tag, and complain because things they buy don't give satisfaction.

The price ticket with the lowest figures may be on the most expensive piece of goods.

It is what you get for what you pay that counts.
