Lent

There comes a season in nature, after the cold winter days are drawing to a close, when a quiet seems to enthrall and a note of expectancy gently throbs in the air. It is the time we commonly call Lent. Our associations have linked Lent only to the church, but this period is far older than the Christian church. It may be said that Lent has contributed more to the church than the church has to Lent. Nature has her Lent. There is a feeling of expectancy in the air. A birth is coming. The rootlets are stirring. The birds are coming back. The sun lingers longer at its setting and twilight waits until the evening star has appeared. Nature is in her holy hush, waiting her rebirth, her resurrection from the winter's sleep. And thus nature has passed through her season of Lent for countless ages.

TOMATO MEETING

County-wide Meeting In Interest Of Tomato Growers Held In Court House Tuesday

Following a number of meetings held in different sections of Kent Co., with regard to the price for this year's tomato crop, a county-wide meeting was held in the Court House Tuesday under the auspices of the Kent Co. Produce Exchange. After considering the cost of production from all sections it was generally agreed that the farmers of Kent County should get 30 cents this year. This was merely a suggestion and no definite stand was taken with regard to this price or the price to be paid for picking.

These meetings have been brought about by County Agent Derrick and will probably mean at least an additional five cents a basket for the farmers o fthe county.

Entertainment at Washington College Tonight.

The fourth of the series of entertainments will be held tonight at Washington College with the appearance of Annie Therese Davault.

Probably no reader has aroused more genuine enthusiasm or given such deep enjoyment as Miss Davault with her appealing charm and rare versatility. With keen insight and sympathetic appreciation of the foibles, humors, joys and tragedies of everyday life, she has made human nature her study as well as books and plays. She truly reflects the inner life of the characters she depicts. Gifted with a voice of wonderful range, rich quality, and a dramatic instinct that makes her characters fairly live before her audiences, Miss Davault gives an evening's entertainment which critics are unanimous in pronouncing unique among lyceum events. Return engagements are an indication of Miss Davault's success, and in many cities her readings are annual events of general interest.
