Gladys Poole, fantastic Mary Kay consultants.

Star recruiters, team leaders and future directors were also recognized and each had his own personal words of praise for the success and fulfillment Mary Kay had brought to them. Dora Duckett, who started a new unit of consultants — the 'Crystal Vionites' — gave news of the new unit's success.

Guests were treated by lucky ticket stubs to lovely jewelry as door prizes, much to their delight.

A big highlight of the affair was the fashion show, put together by Ms. Joyce Autrey and Janice Young, designers, with Kay Barner, as commentator. Kay, herself, was sleek and sophisticated in a dazzling After - 5 loungewear outfit.

Some fantastic outfits were seen — a burgundy wool crepe dress with Indian Print Poncho; a three - piece vegour suit, a dashing kelly green dress with dropped waistline, a three - piece wool jumper dress with striped shirt.

Also smashing was the evening wear. One, a black off - the - shoulder number with gold metallic dots and a black wrap - around (half - in - half) with split on the side. Others were equally as stunning.

There was a showing of the "60 Minute" (CBS) film clip which depicted with great clarity the joys and successes of Mary Kay personnel, under the dynamic leadership of Mary Kay Ashe, founder and owner of the Mary Kay line of cosmetics.

Guest speaker for the brunch was Joann Holman, a national director, and the winner of nine cadillacs (pink — the Mary Kay trademark), and who is in the top 10 of the company.

Ms. Holman pointed out the growth of the company, with one example being the increase from 8,000 Mary Kay consultants in 1970, to a present 155,000.

She spoke of the need for more — both in and out of the country, as Mary Kay has now gone international, with bases in Argentina and Canada.

She also outlined the step - by - step process through which one can work one's way up through the company to the top.

It was highly enjoyable and enlightening way to spend a Saturday morning.

The Consultants with the most guests present won a prize. There were Carolyn Carroll winner and got a beautiful Mexican Abolone bracelet as her prize.

Winners in a six - week summer recruiting and sales contest were Bernita Conaway, Mary Chester Laura Christopher and Diana Purnell.

Dorsey Family hosts 30th reunion

"Magic" is the catch word for the annual Labor Day gathering of the Sykesville Dorsey family — a feeling which evolved over a period of thirty years from a "bring your own picnic lunch" on the lawn of the family founders, Carrie and Edward Dorsey, to a "bring yourself" day of activities at the fully equipped Family Center that is available on a year - round basis to members of the family.

Although the festivities were scheduled to begin at 10:00 a.m., Pat Whiten and her food committee began frying chicken on the outdoor grill at 5:00 a.m.

Three hours later, thirty chickens had been fried, corn and string beans were cooking, and the salads (potato and cucumber) had been prepared.

The Reunion president, Patsy Dade, convened the ninety - nine family members and asked Thelma Jackson to give the greetings. Thelma reiterated that the Center was available at any time for the family to use. Darnella Beard then set the inspirational tone for the day with the traditional opening exercises.

The business meeting followed with reports from the secretary, Karen Kane and the treasurer, Shirley Bland.

The family history was presented in the form of a humorous skit by multi - talented Edna Greer aided by John Greer and Dorothy Swilley.

Marjorie Dorsey reported on the activities of the Family Reunion Advisory Committee which serves as a liaison to family members throughout the year.

As a part of the morning business, Rose Marie Chaney presented the permanent family tree that she designed with the assistance of Michelle Wright and Tom and Wee Dorsey.

Organized games were next on the agenda. Tommy Jenkins led the children away from the prying eyes of parents so that water balloon and pie throwing contests could go on undisturbed.

Rosie Hutchinson and Ivy Wright kept the older folks active with relays and trivia games.

Amazingly, without a formal announcement, everyone knew when to put all activities aside and to wind his way back to the main event — the food that had been prepared earlier.

This normally vocal group restricted conversation and earnestly devoted itself to the business of eating. As usual, very little left - overs were in evidence.

After eating, family members did their own thing. Activities ranging from quiet games of pinochle to energetic volleyball and basketball were selected. Children were observed enjoying the playground equipment that was donated by Sam and Thelma Jackson.

Warren Dorsey and Sarah Dorsey coordinated one of the features of the family gathering — "It's Entertainment Time." Sarah led the community singing while Warren introduced such talents as Daryl and Caryl Whiten, Myra Dorsey, and Faith Smith who played piano selections.

Faith returned to accompany Bradley Collins whose smooth saxophone sounds had everyone murmuring with certainty that he was soon to be a celebrated musician.

Winky sang an inspirational Gospel song and Warrn sang "Impossible Dream" with a promise that next year he would do an excerpt from one of his roles as a member of the Arena Players.

At the close of the day, Archie Swilley's grounds committee began to return tables, benches, and equipment while others busily munched on hot dogs garnished with Chester Dorsey's chili sauce.

Upon reflection, the magic of the Sykesville Dorsey family is not restricted to its annual Labor Day gathering.

It is the magic that is incorporated in the family motto — Peace, Love, and Harmony — the legacy of Carrie and Edward Dorsey.

remember that it was Senator Verda Welcome who was responsible for the Bill which provided for the creation of the Maryland Commission for the study of Afro-American History and Culture.

It was also Senator Welcome and other legislators who supported the plan to place a permanent tablet in the State House to commemorate the deeds of Matthew A. Henson of Charles County, Maryland, black co-discoverer of the North Pole with Lieutenant Robert E. Peary.

It was the noted Dr. Herbert M. Frisby who through his honorable efforts brought to the attention of the world, the outstanding achievements of Matthew Henson.

It was the Honorable Lena King Lee who founded the Herbert M. Frisby Society after recognizing the superior work of Dr. Frisby in his Arctic traveling and world traveling, and his bringing to the attention of the world, Matthew Henson's co-discovering of the North Pole. Thus, through a contingency of notables, the Herbert M. Frisby Society was born.

The Herbert M. Frisby Society is most grateful to all persons and organizations who supported this luncheon in such a fine manner. A special note of thanks is given to Mesdames Pauline Brooks, of Pauline Brooks Boutique, who gave such a genourous donation.
