The program will consist of musical numbers and entertainment that will be worth while.

Entertainment At Locust Grove

Mr. and Mrs. Hill Beasten, of Locust Grove, entertained a host of their friends on Tuesday, Mar. 13, the occasion being their daughter, Elizabeth's sixteenth birthday. Although the evening was very inclement, it did not keep many of her friends from coming. The home decorations were beautiful; the color scheme being pink and white with pink candles. About forty guests were present and a very social evening was enjoyed by all. Refreshments, consisting of cakes, candies and ices, were served. She received many beautiful gifts, among them being a lovely gold wrist watch bracelet from her mother and father. At the close of the evening all left for their home wishing Elizabeth many happy returns of the day.

WORKING FOR BOY SCOUTS

Drive For Kent's Quota For The Boy Scout Council Of The Eastern Shore Started This Week

The drive to raise $1000 in Kent Co. for her share of the $9000 to be raised by the eight counties of the Shore was started this week, and is expected to be completed within a few days. The $9000 is to be used in defraying the expenses of the Eastern Shore Council, including the salary of two expert scout men; an automobile, which shall be the property of the council; a summer camp, which shall be open to any scout on the Shore, whose expense will be only for his food; it will pay the scouts dues to national headquarters; and provide clerical help, stationery and a scout office on the Shore. The summer camp will be located somewhere on the Shore and the boys there will be taught everything a boy should know, which is the foundation of scouting.

Boys all over the county are enthusiastic and want to know when the troops will begin organizing. This is up to the parents and those interested in boys and depends entirely upon how soon the quota is raised.

Pledge cards are being sent out, so be ready and make yaur check payable to Charles Wheatley, treasurer.

More Pure Bred Rams of Quality Needed.

Within recent months a considerable number of Maryland Sheepmen have indicated a desire to purchase purebred rams. Some have been interested in the possibility of securing both ewes and rams of pure breeding. Uuquestionably, there is need for a greatly increased number of purebred flocks in the State, for many flock owners are now unable to secure from nearby breeders, the purebred rams needed for their flocks. Growers of early lambs for market or for retaining in their flocks who have made use of good purebred rams are well pleased with the experiment which has been effected. In this connection a summary of a Tennessee experiment is of much interest.

Vice-Dean C. A. Wilson, of the Tennesee Experiment Station, has supplied valuable information relating to the outcome of an experiment recently conducted in Tennessee to compare lambs sired by a scrub ram with lambs sired by purebread rams of four mutton breeds—Hampshire, Oxford, Shopshire and Southdown. The ewes which produced the lambs were native ewes. In all, 117 lambs were marketed.

The ninety- three lambs sired by the purebred mutton rams averaged 74.9 pounds in weight at an average age of 100 days. These lambs brought $13.02 per head at Nashville on May 3, 1922.

The twenty-four lambs sired by the scrub ram were marketed the same day. They areraged 70.9 pounds in weight at 100 days of age. The scrub lambs brought $10.93 per head, or $2 apiece less than the average price of the lambs sired by purebread rams.

If it is assumed that a ram will sire thirty lambs eah year, this average increased value at market of $2.09 per head would show an increase in gross returns of $62.70 on account o fthe use of a purebred mutton ram.

The present seems to be a most advantageous time to begin the use of purebred mutton rams on a large number of Maryland farms where scrubs have thus far been too abundantly prevalent.
