Strength And Safety In The Body Of Steel

Never was the word "safety" so frequently heard in motoring circles as it is today. Never was the need for safe traffic regulation, safe driving and motor car construction so obvious to the public.

Dodge Brothers foresaw the urgency of the safety factor eight years ago, when they began building the car which now bears their name. Instead of making touring car and roadster bodies of wood, as had been the almost universal custom, they built these bodies of steel. And, adding to value and appearance as well as safety, they developed their now famous permanent enamel finish, which can be applied only to steel bodies because it is baked on at a temperature which would instantly reduce wood to ashes.

From this vital contribution to greater safety in motoring, came the even more important development of to-day—the closed body of steel, as exemplified by Dodge Brothers Business Sedan and Business Coupe.

In the construction of these sturdy closed cars, safety has been brought to its highest possible development. For the first time in closed car history, wood has been eliminated from the main structure of the body. Every panel, every rib, every pillar is steel. Even the door sills and window mouldings are steel.

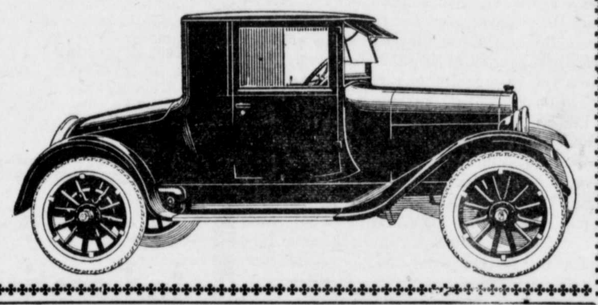

Moreover, instead of being merely rivited or screwed into place, these steel parts are electrically welded together, with the result that the entire body is one substantial unit.

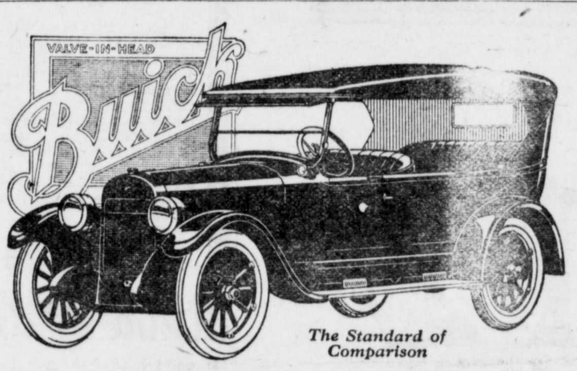

The result is a Sedan and a Coupe as nearly like the all-steel Pullman coach as it is possible to build a motor car. And yet, so skilfully is the car designed that this vital element of safety has been added without any increase in weight, and without impairing that beauty and grace of line which has always characterized Dodge Brothers closed cars.

Business Sedan $1300 delivered. Coupe $1075 delivered.

Once A Buick Owner— Only Buick Satisfies

In every community there are a number of instances where once a Buick has been purchased by one member of a family, others of the same intimate group have become Buick owners.

Buick dependable performance, luxurious comfort and the fact that there is a type of Buick to fit every motoring need, leads to the selection of Buick as the family car.

Significant also is the fact that today a majority of new Buicks are purchased by motorists who have been Buick owners before, and for several years.

ODD WEAPONS OF DUELISTS

Controversy That Had Fatal Ending Settled With Billiard Ball—Cagliostro's Peculiar Idea.

Billiard players will be interested to know that 80 years ago a duel with a billiard ball took place in which a man was killed. The quarrel was between two men named Lenfant and Mellant in the commune of Maisonfort (Seine-et-Oise), France.

One September day they quarreled over a game of billiards. Challenges were exchanged, the red billiard ball was selected as the weapon, and lots were drawn to see who should throw it first.

Mellant was favored, and threw with such speed and aim that Lenfant, struck on the temple, fell dead.

The duel of the pill is credited to Cagliostro. He had called a physician a quack. Possibly the physician thought this was too like the pot calling the kettle black. Anyway, he challenged. Cagliostro proposed that two pills, one poisonous, the other harmless, be put in a box and shaken up. Each was to draw a pill and swallow it.

"A medical controversy should be settled in a medical fashion," the magician explained. It is not on record that the duel was carried out.

THEIR THIRD WIFE A TREE

Hindus Have Evolved Really Unique Way of Evading a Religious Technicality.

Probably the most curious form of marriage in existence prevails in India, where men and women are married to trees. A Hindu in the Punjab cannot be legally married a third time, and when, therefore, he wants a third wife, he is married to a certain tree, so that when he does actually take another wife she counts as his fourth.

In another district of India there are communities where a tree marriage is solemnized in the case of a man who has lost two wives and is desirous of taking a third, or a man who is too poor to marry in the usual way.

In the latter case, the man is afterwards married to a widow. As, however, the remarriage of a widow is held by orthodox Hindus to be fraught with every calamity, the wedding is performed at dead of night under an old mango tree. It is not easy to understand the reason for such an extraordinary custom as tree marriages, but one authority points out that it seems to be intended to avert the curse of widowhood, the "husband" being always alive.

Talking "Pure Chaucer."

One of the world's three or four great story-tellers, he was also one of the best versifiers that ever made English trip and sing with a gayety that seems careless, but where every foot beats time to the time of the thought. By the skillful arrangement of his pauses he evaded the monotony of the couplet, and gave to the rhymed pentameter, which he made an heroic measure, something of the architectural repose of blank verse.

He found our language lumpish, stiff, unwilling, too apt to speak Saxony in grouty monosyllables; he left it enriched with the longer measure of the Italian and Provencal poets. . . . He first wrote English; and it was a feeling of this, I suspect, that made it fashionable in Elizabeth's day to "talk pure Chaucer."—Lowell.

Reasons for Cooking.

There are three chief purposes of cooking. The first is to change the mechanical condition so that the digestive juices can act upon the food more freely. Heating often changes the structure of food materials very decidedly, so that they are more easily masticated and more easily and thoroughly digested. The second is to make it more appetizing by improving the appearance or flavor, or both. Food which is attractive quickens the flow of saliva and other digestive juices and thus digestion is aided. The third is to kill by heat any disease germs, parasites and other dangerous organisms it may contain. This is often a very important matter, and applies to both animal and vegetable foods.

Tattooed From Birth.

It used to be quite common in Fiji and Samoa for a man to bear upon his arm or body a certificate of his birth which was practically indelible. Tattooing is carried on in these islands to an absurd extent, and it is the practice to tattoo on the hand of a mother the date of her children's births. Sometimes, also, an enthusiastic father will tattoo the date of the birth on the child itself, and, no matter how long it lives, the certificate will remain easily decipherable. In some adjoining islands every child is tattooed almost from head to foot upon completing its twelfth year. The result is remarkable, especially if the child is growing rapidly, as the spaces between the tattoo marks increase in size year by year.

Music to Reduce Eye Strain.

There is as much eye strain in reading music as in reading print, and to reduce that strain on a musician's eyes a change in color of the background on which the music is printed is desirable. Music printed in white ink on green paper is being used to relieve eye strain, and it is especially designed for use in theaters where poor lighting causes an unusual tax on the sight nerves. This color combination seems to make the notes and staff stand out in relief in the semi-darkness.
