Lane College to benefit from UNCF's contribution

WASHINGTON, DC, November 10, 1981 — The United Negro College Fund (UNCF) announced today the largest multi-year corporate donation ever pledged to its Annual Campaign PepsiCo, Inc., a leading soft drinks and consumer products company, will contribute $1 million to UNCF over a 10-year period. Donald M. Kendall, chairman and chief executive officer of PepsiCo and chairman of the United States Chamber of Commerce, today presented UNCF with a check for $100,000, the first of ten such annual gifts.

"It's particularly important today for all businesses, large and small, to increase their support of worthwhile community and educational programs," Mr. Kendall said. "President Reagan has challenged private enterprise to help offset reductions in financial aid that were necessary at the federal level. Several companies already are doing an outstanding job of supporting the UNCF and other key black educational programs, and I hope that Pepsi's grant of $1 million will encourage still other companies to raise the levels of their own charitable contributions."

The 41 private, historically black colleges supported by the United Negro College Fund, including Lane College, enroll some 50,000 students. More than half of these young people come from families earning less than $12,000 annually and over 90 percent require financial assistance.

"UNCF institutions play a major role in educating the nation's most financially disadvantaged young people. So, many reductions in student aid, such as the recent Federal cutbacks, hit these colleges very hard," said Christopher F. Edley, Executive Director of the United Negro College Fund.

"The PepsiCo contribution demonstrates tremendous foresight and an understanding of the plight facing black colleges. The economic squeeze threatening our colleges is not a short term problem, but one we expect to struggle with throught the decade of the 1980s. Pepsi's 10-year commitment of $1 million to the College Fund makes it possible for us to plan for the future," Mr. Edley explained.

Pepsi was one of the earliest corporate contributors to UNCF, with grants of $1,000 in 1946 and 1947, and has provided significant financial assistance to the fund continuously since 1954. Earlier this year, the company completed payment of a three-year, $75,000 grant to UNCF's special Capital Resources Development Program.

"We consider our long-standing support of the UNCF to be a very sound investment — an investment in the future of thousands of black men and women who otherwise might not have the opportunity to earn college degrees, and an investment in the future of our own business," Mr. Kendall stated. "We have a continuing need for talented individuals throughout the Pepsi organization, and we are accelerating our efforts to provide even more business and career opportunities for black men and women."

In addition to its support of the UNCF, Pepsi continues to be a major contributor to other educational programs for blacks. These include a Better Chance, Inc. (which places gifted students at independent boarding schools), LEAD (a national summer business institute for high school students) and the Council for Opportunity (Management Education (which provides fellowships for black undergraduates at the nation's top business schools.

On the local level, Lane College is launching its annual United Negro College Fund drive which will end on January 8, 1982. Volunteers from Madison County and the 14 adjacent counties will solicit funds for UNCF.

The United Negro College Fund, founded in 1944, expects to raise $21 million in 1981. Business and industry provide approximately 40 percent of the funds contributed to UNCF's annual campaign.

UNCF is known by its slogan, "A Mind Is A Terrible Thing To Waste."

Research project funded by Transportation Department

The Department of Community Planning at Alabama A & M University was recently funded $96,466 by the Department of Transportation (DOT), Washington, D.C., to begin work on a Transportation Research Project, design to manage research, development and engineering tasks at traditionally black institutions in the states and Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia.

According to the project's principal investigator, Ms. Constance Jordan, Instructor in Community Planning at A & MU, the research project will generate and supervise transportation research at minority institutions in these states, so as to increase the level of participation in DOT-sponsored research.

The research project, expected to get underway in January, 1982, also has as its co-director, Dr. Earl Gooding, Professor in Community Planning at A&MU.

Through the transportation research project, Mr. Donald Outland, Chairman of the Department of Community Planning, said A&MU plans to establish a track record for getting other traditionally black colleges and universities involved in transportation research.

In the past, he said, these institutions have been overlooked. The A&MU project could be the means for developing a track record that will increase the capabilities of minority institutions in performing research and technical assistance, he said.

To achieve this purpose, A&MU will utilize its human and physical resources to perform the tasks of research, development and engineering at the participating institutions, assess the research capability at these institutions; identify barriers which limit participation in federal grants and contract programs; and propose methods for developing startegies to eliminate identified barriers.

Participating instutions will be drawn from 32 minority colleges and universities in the three states on the criteria of interest, facilities and capabilities. Through the project, A&MU will also provide assistance to participating institutions in proposal and project formulation and management, and will provide coupling between DOT's research needs and minority institutions capabilities.

Eight Pastoral

The Rev. Ray E. Taylor and Evangelist Alease Taylor celebrated their 8th Pastoral Anniversary recently at the Outreach Christian Tabernacle.

Speakers each night were: Monday, Rev. Darrell Glass from the Holiness Church of God; on Tuesday, Rev. Harvey Rice from Mt. Calvary Holiness Church, Wednesday, Rev. Beasly from Winston-Salem, NC, Thursday, Rev. Richard Sobers a senior at Livingstone College Seminary, and Friday, Rev. Alonzo Jones from Mocksville, NC.

The choir rendered music each night.

The theme for the Anniversary was "Somewhere Over the Rainbow There's A Pot of Gold." The Anniversary on Saturday night ended with a Banquet at the Salisbury Civic Center with the meal being catered from Ketner's cafeteria.

The speaker for this occasion was the Rev. Sessoms from Fort Bragg, NC.

Mistress of Ceremony was Charlene Kellam.

Prayer was led by Donetta Gillespie and the welcome was done by Carolyn McDowell. The Rev. Shelton Griffin introduced the speaker.

The program was sponsored by the pastor's aid members which include: Valerie Poag, Donetta Gillespie, Vicky Roberts Hyman, Florine Boyd, Barbara Dorty, Charlene Kellam, Carolyn McDowell, Claudette Harrison, Nancy Peebles and Vivian Bryant

Thanksgiving Day Rally nets college big money

Morris College President Dr. Lum C. Richardson says nearly $350,000 was raised at the annual Rally Program held Thanksgiving Day.

"Reports from the Baptist Educational and Missionary Convention and its auxiliaries, the Morris College faculty, staff and student body, alumni, and the Sumter business community have given us a good start toward our goal of $1 million," Richardson said. This is the highest amount ever raised at a Thanksgiving Rally.

The rally is the College's major fund-raising affair and monies raised will go for general operations, campus improvements and the Endowment Fund.

"We certainly are impressed by the fund-raising effort thus far," Richardson said and we extend words of appreciation to everyone who has supported Morris College throughout the years."

Rally activites were highlighted by the Thanksgiving message delivered by the Rev. Dr. J. O. Rich, President, Baptist E & M Convention and pastor of St. Paul Baptist Church of Anderson, SC.

For the occasion of the 73rd Thanksgiving Day celebration, Dr. Rich talked from the subject "When I Look Back, I See And I Think Forward."

Dr. Rich said, "In order to see where we are today, we need to look back to those days gone by and see where God has brought Morris College thus far. God has molded Morris College into a UNCF member school and a fully accredited institution."

Rich said that he is fully aware of the circumstances of today "But we must remember that God is still in control."

ALPHA GIFT — Mrs. Pearl Parker, tamlosches of Gamma Lambda Omega Chapter, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Lawrenceville, presents to Dr. B.
