Marketing Maryland's Eggs

The marketing of Maryland's eggs will be the first definite step of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation toward the cooperative marketing of the farm products of this state.

Within the next few weeks a campaign will be put on for the purpose of enrolling the farmers and poultrymen all over the state as members of the Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers Association through which organization arrangements have been made for the cooperative marketing of eggs.

Through an agreement recently entered into between the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, the Maryland State Poultry Association, the extension service of the University of Maryland and the Atlantic Poultry Producers Association, the latter will take care of and market the entire egg output of the state if necessary and in any event, it will market such a proportion of it as will be represented by the Farm Bureau members and others who become members of the association.

A compaign will soon be started under the direction of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation for the enrollment of large and small poultry raisers of the state who favor this cooperative marketing plan. Details of this campaign are in the hands of a committee of five men representing the Maryland State Poultry Association, the extension service of the University of Maryland and the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation with Edwin Warfield, vice president and M. M. Stewart, secretary of the state federation, representing the latter. Final approval of this plan was given at a recent conference held in Baltimore at which were present representatives from the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, extension service of University of Maryland, United States Department of Agriculture, Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers Association, Maryland Poultry Association and the various county agents of Maryland.

The Atlantic Coast Poultry Producers Association is at present cooperatively marketing eggs for Pennsylvania and New Jersey producers in the New York markets and through the arrangement now in operation it expects to put the egg industry in Maryland on a more business like basis as well as to stimulate interest in its further development. The association did an $800,000 business last year and expects to make it a round million this year.

The agreement means that as soon as 100,000 or more hens are represented by Maryland producers, the association will be ready to open a branch egg exchange in Baltimore. This will mean that the consumers will get fresh graded and unbroken eggs. It also means that Maryland eggs will be shipped to the highest market no matter which of the Atlantic Seaboard cities that might be on the day they are sent forward.

The detailed plan, says M. M. Stewart, secretary of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, for the formation of egg circles in the Farm Bureau counties to which the eggs will be sent daily or weekly as the case may demand. At these circles or centers the eggs will be carefully graded and packed in crates on the top layer of which will be placed a card showing the kind, color, and condition o fthe eggs in that particular crate. The counter check takes place upon the crate reaching its untimate destination.

According to Dr. H. B. Walker, manager of the association, it is proposed to establish branches of the association in all the large Atlantic Seaboard cities so that the eastern producers will be able to control the egg prices instead of the banker or the commission man.

THE SHRINERS' CONVENTION

Information For Those Who Will Attend in Washington June 5-7

When the Shriners of Kent County who are going to Washington to attend the great convention of the Mystic Shrine on June 5th, 6th, 7th, wish to obtain information as to the location of temples, where delegates are stopping, and other data as to the time of parades and the various activities of the convention, they will be able to obtain this information from any telephone by simply asking for "Shrine."

"Shrine is a special temporary central office equipped with special information switchboards which have been provided by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company for the occasion. This central office, according to Burdett Stryker, Vice President and General Manager of the Company, will have lines connected to all the chairmen of the Almas Temple 1923 Shrine Committee, visiting temple headquarters, the Shrine Registration Bureau, the Housing Bureau, the parking locations where many of the temples will be housed, and other points in connection with the Shrine convention. The addresses of visiting Shriners can be obtained from the Registration Bureau which can be called through the Shrine exchange.

This special Shrine central office will substantially aid the telephone company in taking care of the extraordinary demand for telephone service during the convention. It has been variously estimated that between 350,000 and 450,000 people will visit Washington during the Shrine Week. Normally the telephone company handles about 400,000 calls a day. It is expected that the convention will make it necessary to handle more than 600,000 calls a day.

It view of this heavy increase in the use of the service, the telephone company is urging that telephone conversation be made as brief as possible in order to prevent undue congestion of the service.

"PEGS" STAGE GOWNS USED IN STAR'S SCREEN DEBUT

The quaint dresses, hats and shoes Laurette Taylor wore in enacting the role of Peg in the Metro screen version of J. Hartley Manners' famous play "Peg O' My Heart" which will be at the Lyceum Theatre, June 1st and 2nd, are same Miss Taylor wore when she made her debut as "Peg" on the stage.

It was in Los Angeles that "Peg O' My Heart" was first produced about ten years ago. After a successful run in the western city, Miss Taylor and "Peg" came to New York, and captivated the Eastern metropolis, making a record run for contisuous performances.

Upon her arrival in New York to present Peg to Broadway, Miss Taylor had a complete new wardrobe made and put away for keepsakes the dresses, hats and shoes that she had worn when she made her initial bow in the famous role.

When she decided to appear in the screen version of her greatest success, Miss Taylor took this wardrobe from its storage place and decided to wear it before the camera. Being her initial screen appearance, she felt more like Peg in the quaint old clothes that she had worn in the first presentation in Los Angeles.

One of the dresses Miss Taylor wears in the early episodes of "Peg O' My Heart" is a blue serge which in keeping with the character is shabby and a very poor fit. The hat is a plain old-fashioned straw with a broad brim trimmed with a few flowers. It is kept bright by polishing with ordinary shoe polish.

The other dress she wears in the early episodes of the picture, is a very plain blouse and skirt of brown cotton material. The hat is a straw with a narrow tattered brim. Several of her toes protrude from the shoes.

In the later episodes of "Peg O' My Heart" Miss Taylor wears dresses of a more opulent style. She had several beautiful gowns designed in New York, which she wears for the first time in the picture.

One of these is a yellow georgette made in bouffant style and trimmed with a design of the same material. It has a round neck, outlined with a lace collar and puff sleeves edged with ruffles of lace. With this is worn salmon slippers and stockings.

King Vidor directed "Peg O' My Heart."

WASHINGTON ..COLLEGE ..BASEBALL TEAM LOSES THREE IN A ROW TO STATE TEAMS—OTHER NOTES OF THE SPORTING REALM

Minus the services of Flowers and Johnston, Washington's baseball outfit hit the tobaggon this week and dropped three straight to state teams—St. John's, Blue Ridge and Mt. St. Mary's. At the beginning of the season any of these teams would have been easily defeated.

Lieut. Floyd Brown, said by many to be the all-star athlete of Washington College for all time, was here with the Marine baseball team last week.

Washington College lost to their old rivals on the athletic field at St. John's Saturday, 16 to 5. Scarborough was on the mound for Washington and was unable to locate the plate at times. The whole team played away below their usual calibre.

On Monday Washington, playing a far superior team to St. John's, lost by the score of 3 to 2 and showed a reversal of form. Washington was allowed but three hits, while Bradford was hit for eight and gave eight bases on balls.

The Eastern Shore League began its second season last Friday and a large crowd of local fans attended the various towns on the circuit. Two umpires have quit and one player has been suspended after a week of ball. If this keeps up, there will be a great dearth of umpires in this section before September begins to turn the foliage brown in the woodlands.

Flowers and Johnston are playing good ball in the Eastern Shore League for Cambridge, but, to date, that town has been unable to register but one victory.

Washington went down before Mt. St. Mary's Tuesday by the score of 9 to 3. The game was loosely played. Mt. St. Mary's piled up an early lead and were able to hold it. They scored three runs in the first inning and one in the second. Bradford pitched for Washington and Lomond for the other team.

Washington College swamped the St. Joseph's College, of Philadelphia, here on Thursday afternoon by the score of 33 to 1, in a game that was a veritable "slaughter of the innocents. The visiting team could neither hit nor field and ordinary infield outs frequently went for home runs and three-base hits. Washington piled up the largest number of runs scored on the local field in years.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear little daughter, Della Gertrude George, who died two years ago today.

Her cheery smile and kindly way
Are pleasant to recall;
She had a smile for every one
And died beloved by all.
Sadly missed by
MAMMA AND DADDY.

May once more is here,
For us the saddest of the year.
Her memory is as dear today
As in the hour she passed away.
GRANDMA AND GRANDPA GEORGE.

Oh! So sudden was God's call,
But you are not forgotten by us all.
GRANDMA PRICE.
