Single PARENTING

By Kelly Hill

As single parents, it is all too easy to feel guilty for many of the problems that our children experience. Today's column is focused on the ways in which we mistakenly blame ourselves for their problems and changes that are simply normal for children of a particular age group.

I talked with several single parents who have children of different age groups about the "Pitfalls" for single parents.

"INFANCY"

During the years of the 50's and 60's, it was thought that a woman should stay home with her child until the child was in its teens. It is necessary for the child to be with a person on a regular continuous basis with a schedule that is consistent.

Infants in particular, are aware of their mother by sight and smell. Exposing the child to a warm loving person who has the child's best interest at heart is a good substitute for the mother.

To relieve yourself of the guilt, be sure that you "shop" for a good babysitter that you will feel comfortable with. When the infant becomes seven months old he or she will experience separation anxiety and will scream when you want to go out. The single parents that I talked with said, they blame themselves for this outburst, thinking this is the result of the child having one full time parent. This is not true. This seven month old's anxiety attack is normal and a healthy developmental sign of any child. The child is gaining a new sense of self.

Single parents especially fall into this pitfall and continuously feel so guilty, they may put aside their own needs. It is important for you to realize that you have needs and it is "OK" to develop ways to meet your own needs. If you ignore your toddler when this occasionally occurs, do not feel guilty, it is a part of the growing up process for the child.

"Teenagers"

Many single parents feel helpless in the upbringing of teenage children. Some children are unwilling to listen, refusing to follow your rules, are actually acting out as an infant. Rebellious adolescents are asking for a "spanking", not in the sense of physical spankings but in the form of punishment.

Discipline is very important during the adolescent years and must be structured evenly. Parents, especially one parent families have a tendency to issue the punishment and eventually let the child off of his or her punishment.

In order for this "young adult" to be an effective responsible, and productive person discipline is essential.

There will be times when you will have to curb your own activities in order to follow through with the punishment.

The unruly adolescent is testing you as the parent. They know the pitfalls expecially in single parenting. They know that you will probably have a softer hand in disciplining after a couple of days have gone by. But what does the adolescent know about discipline unless the parent teaches it in the home?

Parents who continuously give in or do not follow through with the punishment, become ineffective in the upbringing of the child.

Looking back into time, I am sure you can remember how strict your parents were when it came to discipline and manners.

Reinforcement of the strict discipline tradition should be modified according to the times. There is nothing better than a "well disciplined, well mannered child."

Mr. William L. Foster, Sr. and his son William Jr. are an excellent example of a one parent family where discipline and manners were a household name.

Mr. Foster feels that discipline must be taught at home and he has been able to see the fruits of his labor. His son is so well mannered and disciplined that I wanted to ask for the recipe.

In summary, to identify what the pitfalls and problems are, when to feel guilty, and when not to feel guilty, when to discipline and when to look for help, the single parent must take these things into consideration.

To the single parent whether male or female "My Ma, she's the best cook in the whole world, she can sew my pants, give my sister two curls below her ponytail, somehow she finds money for clothes and shoes and P.T.A. dues. She takes time to listen to what happened to us today and she tells her dreams for our tomorrows. She is special, she really has her head together. "My Ma." Taken from the book TOWN TALK by Mary Carter Smith.

Black Single Parents Without Partners will be having a Can Good Happy Hour at "Room 81" located at 2131 W. Belvedere Ave. across from the Pimlico Race Track, on Dec. 17 and 18.

Admission is a Can Good and a $3 donation. All will go toward filling a basket for the needy. There will be Hot Hors d'oeuvre and continuous music all beginning at 5 p.m.

commentated by Carolyn Wainwright who also modeled two outfits.

To the guests' delight there were also numerous door prizes, including many gift certificates to the boutique.

But the main throust of the event was the honoree herself, who represents much to many Baltimoreans and whose endurance as a businesswoman can best be summed up in the words of her daughter and business assistant, Paula Brooks. She said of her mother, giving the Occasion, "This moment represents thirty years of self-sacrifice, self-denial, strength and fortitude."

For Pauline Brooks, who started her "little" business in a one-room basement in 1952 at 2112 W. North Ave., in 1953 moved to a three-room basement, then across the street in 1956 to 2137 W. North Ave. to her first regular store, and in 1967 to Mondawmin Mall's upper concourse and finally, in December '82 to The Belvedere, it has been a long trek.

It has sometimes been a rocky road paved with difficult times. But it has also been a road paved with joy for her as she provided Baltimore's females with 'something different, something unique' in fashion down through the years, and as she made each move, her business grew

It has long been noted that if you purchased an outfit from Pauline Brooks you would not see yourself everywhere you turned, and it's a known fact that she has always offered quality.

Even I have an outfit, a black silk suit, which I bought from her more than 20 years ago and it is still "like new."

As one who has persevered for three decades in business and has continued to serve up quality in dress and great character and friendiness as a person, one must salute Mrs. Brooks on her 30th year in business and wish her luck in her new venture as she continues to dress up Baltimore.

Pauline, who originally hailed from Staunton, VA. but who has lived in Baltimore since she was five years old, is married to Arthur T. Amis of this city.

The executive director is Norman Ross.

...a word of caution

The AFRO's Mrs. Santa has received all kinds of letters and most of them are from people who are truly hungry and in need at Christmas.

Nevertheless, we now and then run into people who try to run a game on us.

Rule 1- Do not adopt a family in an unfamiliar part of Baltimore. Do not attempt to deliver by yourself... especially if you are elderly. Do not wait until Christmas Eve night to go out alone to help a family.

Here's a case in point: It happened ten years ago but it could happen today. A white friend of ours adopted one of our families. She went to the Army Commissary and purchased $65 worth of food that took up 10 bags.

It happened to be snowing that night and she finally found the house in East Baltimore on Luzerne Avenue. When she got there the family at that house had a party going full swing and the lady who answered the door said she had not written to the AFRO, but her niece around the corner had.

A guest at the party accused her of being a "Welfare Snoop" and pulled a knife on her. While she was in the house someone stole the battery out of her car. To top this all off, she had to walk back to West Baltimore because she never found a cab.

MISERY at Christmas-time — A family on E. North Avenue had their furniture and belongings set out on the street in the rain last week. This is a miserable sight that can be seen all over town.

Mrs. Santa needs you

Christmas is supposed to be a special family - time and the AFRO - AMERICAN Newspapers for more than 90 years, has tried to help the unfortunate make it through the holiday season. In the early years our editors used to dig in their own pockets to help people who had nowhere else to turn.

More than 30 years ago AFRO Charities came into being and the AFRO Christmas Basket Program was started. Since 1972, the need has grown so great that the AFRO Mrs. Santa Program not only gives out 450 food baskets, but 1,300 needy persons in 1981 received $10 and $20 food certificates. Last year AFRO's Mrs. Santa raised $27,250.

In 1981, 300 of Mrs. Santa's families were adopted by churches, clubs and organizations. Also, Mrs. Santa gave a party for children at City Jail; sent car loads of canned goods to Bob Cheeks' Welfare Right Organization; canned goods, chicken and bread by the car loads to social workers at Murphy Homes; adopted 100 families from the Mayor's list and bought $500 worth of new shoes for 34 children donated by General Electric in Columbia.

The Mrs. Santa Fund, AFRO Charities, is a non - profit organization sponsored by this newspaper to help families at Christmas have a dinner. Names are supplied by our readers, AFRO Clean Block Captains and city agencies.

There are three ways you can help us make our goal of $20,000.

ONE: Make a generous cash donation so that food baskets may be purchased wholesale.

TWO: Wear a flower supporting the AFRO's Mrs. Santa. Senior Citizens and volunteers have crocheted red flowers which we will be selling during December for $1 each. Urge your club or other organizations to sell these flowers at various social functions and business meetings.

THREE: Contribute good used toys and clean clothes to Mrs. Santa's Store. When you contribute to the store, we will contact our families so they can select the things they need in their sizes.

SPECIAL NOTE: We'll be glad to arrange a picture with Mrs. Santa for all contributions over $100. When it is published in the AFRO, it will encourage others to give and we desperately need all the support we can get.

Please make checks or money orders payable to Mrs. Santa, AFRO Charities, 628 N. Eutaw Street, Baltimore, Md. 21201. All contributions are tax deductible.

Clyde Rucker made a presentation to AFRO's Mrs. Santa, Ida Peters, last week in Mondawmin of $1,500 from the General Electric Employees Fund in Columbia, Md.

The Naomi Grand Chapter, Order of Eastern Star made a contribution of $200 to AFRO's Mrs. Santa. Above seated, Miss Ruth Clayton, chairman, Charity Committee; Mrs. Mary Pettus, chairman, Special Projects; Mrs. Bernice Merritt, member. Standing from (L) Miss Helen Benton, Grand Matron Emeritus; Mrs. Dorothy Wilkins, Mrs. Ida Peters, Mrs. Mary C. Frazier, Grand Worthy Matron and Mrs. Ardessa Pitts, Grand Associate Matron.

Special events

The Maryland Legislative Black Caucus, community reception will be held Monday, Dec. 20 at the Tawes College Center at Coppin State College from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

State Senator Clarence Blount, chairman says the reception is to recognize the significant gains made by black legislators in leadership positions in the Maryland General Assembly.

Senator Blount says that these achievements would not be possible without the enlightened and courageous initiatives taken by the AFRO - AMERICAN Newspapers.

To recognition of this the Black Caucus will present the entire proceeds of the reception to the 1982 Mrs. Santa Program.

Mrs. Santa's cases

Mom can't make it...

Case 182 — As the mother of a set of twins aged 11, I am in dire need of help. My twins are a boy and a girl. I am on a fixed income from Social Services and there is no father in the home and no assistance from him. With their rate of growth, it has become more and more difficult to feed and clothed them on this income, although I do the very best I can raising my children alone. I would truly appreciate any assistance.

Case 183 — My family needs a food basket and some clothes this Xmas. My oldest girl aged 12 needs a coat and sweaters. The other children need everything. If it isn't possible to help us with clothing, we would be very grateful for a food basket.

Case 184 — I no longer receive food stamps for my family, and I have to pay all of my bills with my Social Services check. I rent out the third floor of my home, but I have to pay all of the utilities. Can I get food and clothes for my two children this Xmas?

Case 185 — Since I lost my job in June from an ongoing illness everything has gone wrong. By Dec. 3, I will be set out of the home I have been trying to buy for the last six years. On Nov. 29, my gas and electricity is supposed to be shut off because of non-payment. I cannot afford to move and I can't afford to pay the rents asked for on apartments or houses. Xmas is coming and
