POULTRY NOTES

Items of Interest That Are Worth Reading By Poultry Raisers

Where many pullets are raised each year, the factor of removing males as soon as possible is most important. Never should the pullets be allowed to be annoyed by the cockerels. This is especially true of leghorns and other such breeds. Market all cockerels as soon as possible.

The feeding of new grain at this time of the year is satisfactory, provided it is done properly. New grain should never form a great proportion of the ration at first, but should be worked in gradually. Heavy feeding of new wheat may injure your birds. Stick by your regular system of feeding if you want continued growth and egg production, and if any changes are to be made, it should be done gradually.

Do not feed too heavy on corn at this season. Corn produces a great deal of heat and should not be fed too heavy. We find at the Bramble Poultry Farm that about half corn and half wheat give good results.

Do not overlook the fact that disease is prevalent at this time of the year. Rigid practice of sanitation cannot be stressed too much. See that all houses are thoroughly cleaned and kept so and an abundance of light and air given the birds. Dead birds or decaying refuse matter is dangerous and one cannot be too alert in removing such matter and burning or burying it. Keep drinking vessels and food hoppers clean.

Now is the time to make a real poultry house out of the old makeshifts that are seen on some Kent county and other Maryland farms. Obtain a good plan from some authentic source and remodel these houses or build new ones that embody the necessary principles of comfort, ventilation, light,etc., that is vital to productive and profitable poultry flocks. Many poultry flocks are unprofitable because they are improperly housed, and many others can be made more profitable by improving housing conditions.

One of our poultry friends told us the other day that they believed the poultry business was being overdone. We don't agree with them. We believe it is only in the making.

The Bramble Poultry Farm incubator house has been about completed, and their new incubators will be installed shortly. When completed they will have a hatching capacity of about 40,000 every three weeks. This firm invites the public to see their up-to-date hatchery after September 1.

To make a study of the different markets for poultry in the United States should of interest to every poultrymen. The year 1922 was an exceptionally good one for the poultrymen, as the cost of feed was comparatively low, while poultry products brought a fair price. In a study of the four following markets, New York, Boston, Washington and Southern country places, we find that the highest average market is New York, while the lowest are the country places. The average price for eggs during 1922 on the New York market was 56.4 cents a dozen, Boston 49.1 cents a dozen, Washington 40.5 cents a dozen and the country prices 35.4 cents a dozen.

An effort is being made to enlist the local poultrymen in a co-operative effort in shipping their eggs. An association is canvassing this section in an effort to get members. The charge is 10 cents per hen per year; and a fee of $10. This is said to be the same association that ships the eggs from the New Jersey poultry section into the New York market. Whether or not it is a real benefit to our poultrymen depends entirely upon who is behind the movement. Something of this sort is surely needed by local poultrymen in, order to get better prices.

Baltimore business men should do something to bolster up their markets before trying to encourage Eastern Shore farmers and poultrymen to ship to them at great losses. Only last week a local poultrymen shipped 72 fine broilers to a well-known Baltimore commission firm, which brought him but $15.60. These broilers, when they were shipped averaged about one and three-quarters pounds and the shipper was paid 23 cents a pound for them. They cleared the poultryman about 22 cents each. Before shipping he was offered 35 cents a pound by a trucker right at his farm.

The Luxury of a Meal in a Dining Car

The Hall Mark of Service

Good food, well cooked and served in an attractive manner are recognized features of Pennsylvania Railroad's Dining-Car Service.

$1.00--One Dollar Meals--$1.00

One dollar will buy a lunch or dinner on a Pennsylvania Railroad dining car.

Four "special combinations" are provided on each luncheon and dinner menu in addition to the usual a la carte features. Over one hundred different combinations are used and changes are made every week in order to afford a variety of choice. Each "special combination" consists of meat, fowl or fish, two vegetables, rolls and coffee, tea or milk. The portions are ample for one person and are served on separate dishes the same as a la carte orders.

This service not only meets the desires and conveniences of railroad travelers, but also effects a reduction in dining-car prices notwithstanding the continuing high cost of dining-car service.

Persons interested in the cost of serving meals in dining cars should read the pamphlet—"Food at 50 miles an Hour Costs"—reprinted from The Nation's Business. Copies of this pamphlet may be had free of cost, by writing to D. N. Bell, Passenger Traffic Manager, Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.
