Cuff note: Where are those people who say children in elementary schools are disruptive and hard to deal with? This visitor did not find this at Coleman School — and our visit was unexpected.

Teachers and pupils were about the business of learning and teaching. There was laughter, of course, sometimes, and a reprimand—but all in a loving, caring manner.

If Coleman Elementary is typical of Baltimore elementary schools, the system has a lot going for it!!

AIDS disease has killed 500 since 1980

Since Mar. 9, 1300 cases of AIDS have been diagnosed, with cases doubling every six months, Quinn said.

Pat Phillips Staff Writer

AFRO Staff Writer

AIDS, or Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, a disease that wipes out the body's immune system and leaves its victims powerless against other opportunistic diseases, has claimed the lives of more than 500 individuals since its discovery in 1980.

At one time called "GRIDS" or Gay Related Immune Deficiency Syndrome because of its isolated incidence among male homosexuals, AIDS according to Hopkins researcher Thomas Quinn, MD., has been known to kill over 50 percent of those infected.

Since mid 1982, further research has shown the rare disease is no longer restricted to the gay community and has been found among Haitians, hemophiliacs and users of intravenous drugs and blood products.

Research within the past few months has shown the presence of the disease among children and sexual partners of AIDS victims, and in prison inmates.

Symptoms of the devastating disease include swollen glands, fever, fatigue, extreme weight loss and the presence of purple or brown raised lesions on the feet and legs.

The body's immune system contains a basic component known as cell-mediated immunity which protects it against viral and fungal infections and helps it to reject foreign cells.

AIDS however dominates the body and leaves it powerless against disease.

Organ transplant patients an, individuals receiving chemosteroids are predisposed to AIDS because of the breakdown in their immune system caused by certain drugs.

A number of diseases have been found in AIDS victims throughout the States. In some cases victims contract three to four different diseases simultaneously and begin literally wasting away because no treatment is available.

The list of diseases developing after AIDS is present in the body has increased within the past few months. Dr. Quinn said AIDS vicitims can be stricken with rare pneumonia, herpes virus and infectious mononucleosis.

These conditions are however intensified in AIDS vicitims and cause death. Continuing to baffle the medical world, AIDS represents a "catch-22" situation that is alarming many members of the industry.

Because the cause of the disease is not yet known, scientists are unable to determine a cure. The number of cases that have been reported have provided physicians with some evidence thus allowing them to conduct limited research.

—New plan

The Council had faced an April 1 deadline for adoption of its own plan. Had it not come up with one it would have been forced to adopt the mayor's proposal intact. An alternative seen by several Council members as less likely to result in greater black representation in Council.

Michael Mitchell (4th district) praised the coalition as an example of the best of Madisonian republicanism.

"I think James Madison would be smiling somewhere today knowing that coalition politics has survived and is working here in Baltimore," Mitchell said, addressing the Council.

Iris Reeves, who voted against the amendment which would include 29 Ten Hill area families in the fifth district called her decision an "agonizing" one.

Echoing the comments of other coalition members, however, Reeves said she would vote against the Ten Hills amendment to avoid the risk of coming away with no plan at all.

"I know this vote may hurt me in the fifth district. However this redistricting is much larger than I as one person am," Reeves said, explaining her opposition to the amendment.
