Labor Shortage Effects Cecil Court

So great has been the dearth of labor in Cecil county that it has materially affected the workinf of the Cecil County Court, recently in session. Farmers presented such stories of the deplorable condition of their farm work that, wherever it was possible, the judges relieved them from attendance as jurors and only a skeleton of the petiti jury remained in court. The deficiency was supplied by talesmen picked up on the streets of Elkton.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Perkins will move Monday to their home on North Queen St., after spending the summer at "Lauretum Place," the home of Mrs. H. W. Vickers, Sr.

To Preserve I. U. Church History

Rev. S. S. Hepburn, who has been rector of old I. U. parish, Kent county, for many years, has conceived a plan by which the historic interest surrounding the old church may be preserved to posterity. He is having erected around the cemtery, which contains the remains of some of the most distinguished men and women of former years in this county, a cement wall blocked off in tablets upon which are to be inscribed the names of former as well as present members of the parish, and anything else of historic interest pertaining to the family history. Each person is to buy the space and have the inscription lettered on the blocks. I. U. Church is one of the oldest parishes in the state. Organized in 1766, the church was a prosperous institution for many years when it lapsed into oblivion almost for nearly a century. Then it was reorganized by some of the leading citizens in the county, and it has been preserved to this day and at present is a prosperous congregation. The records of the church, which date back to its founding in 1766, contain the names of the original vestrymen as well as much of historic interest pertaining to the parish and Rev. Hepburn proposes to preserve these archives and to give to the grounds and surroundings an additional historical significance by the erection of the cement wall around the cemetery. The members of the congregation are co-operating heartily in the enterprise and when the work is completed it will be one of the most interesting spots in Kent county. The church is situated about six miles from Chestertown and is easily accessible to tourists.
