Popular local musician is honored with Appreciation Banquet

James Charles Poney, under the impression that he was to play for a retirement, received a surpcise that he will remember for a lifetime. It was an evening containing a deluge of memorable events.

The Three Generations Choir of Lewin United Methodist planned a gala evening for Poney in the form of an Appreciation Banquet.

The theme, "Your Life Is A Love Song," permeated the room from the processional of the head table guests to the conclusion when all joined hands singing, "Praise God." Mr. Poney's aunt, Mrs. Sally McLaurin, a deaconess at Shiloh Baptist, was one of the head table guests.

Poney is a native of Easton and was educated at Glenwood Elementary and Moton High. His parents, Charles and Marie Poney, are deceased.

Poney holds a B.S. in Education from Bowie State College, a B.A. in Music from New York University and a M.A. in Education from John Hopkins University.

He is currently pursuing a doctorate in Education Administration at Johns Hopkins University. he is an educator in the Baltimore City Public School System, with a tenure of over 15 years.

A past member of the Foundation For Music Therapy, Poney is active in the Bowie State College Alumni Association, NAACP and the Baltimore City Teachers' Union.

His musical talents and education are utilized by directing the Sanctuary Choir of Wayland Baptist Church, the Senior Choir of First Baptist Church, the Threes Generations Ensemble of Lewin Methodist Church and the Combined Choir of Gospel Tabernacle.

Members from these choirs and others comprise the membership of the J. C. Poney Chorale, who travel to Easton, Md. each September for Homecoming Services at Poney's home church, Asbury Methodist.

At present, Poney is a member of First Baptist, where he serves as director of music.

Paying tribute to Poney were the Rev. Edgar Reid of Gospel Tabernacle; Alvin Steele of Wayland Baptist, Rev. William Booker of Churchville Charge in Bel Air, Md., Rev. Nicholson of Asbury Methodist and Barbara Lomax of Lewin.

Roscoe Herring reading a congratulatory letter from the Rev. Leroy Fitts of First Baptist Church, who was unable to attend because he was conducting a revival. Herring also read a citation from the mayor and presented Mr. Poney with a pewter tray from the City of Baltimore.

All remarks centered around the fact that the honoree is an energetic, Christ-centered young man who is not only a talented musician, but a Christian friend and brother who is fondly called "JC" and/or James.

Officers from each of the four choirs presented Poney with gifts. Among guests presenting the many personal gifts to the celebrant were his cousin, Michael Russell of New York and Anna Gibson from School No. 180 in Cherry Hill.

In his remarks, Poney thanked all who participated in this display of love and to his family who came from various cities. He said, "...you can see that even though I left home, I have inherited a very large family here in Baltimore."

He cited the fact that Mrs. Thelma Rya of First Baptist had adopted him as her son when he first came to Baltimore.

Talented vocalists accompanied by Victor Myrick of New Shiloh Baptist Church lifted their angelic voices to sing Poney's favorite hymns.

An impressive climax to an already beautiful evening was the singing of Margaret-Douroux's "Love Song" by the combined choirs and directed by none other than the maestro.

The dynamic toastmaster for the evening was Wibert Miles, a member of Wayland's Sanctuary Choir.

Amelia Chase was chairperson for the affair and Sylvia Edwards is president of the Three Generations Choir.

'Fatima: well-known documentary to air on local television

"Fatima," already aired in 43 cities across America, will make its East Coast television premiere on the following channels: Channel 24 — Sunday, Oct. 12, 6 a.m. and 10 p.m.; Channel 54—Sunday, Oct. 26, 8 p.m.; Channel 45 — Wednesday, Oct. 29, 10 p.m.

The highly-budgeted film was produced and directed by Shelby Newhouse, a 1983 Emmy winner and highly respected as a filmmaker. Two years in the making, the documentary was filmed on location in England, Portugal and Italy in addition to the U.S.

The documentary is a major effort toward the understanding of current-event causes and effects, with the intention of effecting a means toward world peace. It tells the story of the appearance of the Mother of God to three Portuguese children in 1917 and the dramatic messages received by them regarding the spread of Communism.

The film highlights the significance of these prophecies of Fatima regarding Russia as they apply to our present-day political and moral crisis, and offers a solution that, if followed, could bring world peace.

Narrated by Ricardo Montalban, the documentary also presents internationally-recognized personalities such as Alexander Solzhenitsyn and Malcolm Muggeridge, who discuss the subject's modern-day urgency.

Fascinating from both a historical and religious viewpoint, the documentary is of vital importance for all persons interested in furthering peace among nations.

Solidarity group to have slide show at church

"Risking to Rebuild," a talk and slide discussion on the grassroots repopulation movement in the war zones of El Salvador, will be presented Tuesday, Oct. 21 at 7:30 p.m., at St. John's United Methodist Church, 2700 St. Paul St., sponsored by the Central America Solidarity Committee.

The talk will be preceded by a wine and cheese reception for the speaker, Tami Ito, a Baltimore resident and recent witness to the repopulation struggles. Miss Ito was part of a religious delegation which was forcibly removed and deported from El Salvador this July, while accompanying a repopulation caravan of 600 refugees back to their homes in the San Antonio El Varillo farming co-op in the Guazapa war zone.

In El Salvador, Miss Ito witnessed the dedication and courage of people in the crowded refugee camps, determined to return to their homes in the countryside, as well as the efforts of the Salvadoran armed forces to frustrate this grassroots movement.

The Central America Solidarity Committee of Baltimore is developing a friendship-city relationship with this community in El Salvador.

Black Methodist pastor is elected to national religious post

WASHINGTON — A black United Methodist pastor in Cleveland has been elected to a key post in that denomination's national agency monitoring racial affairs.

The Rev. Warren C. Hill is expected to begin his new duties as associate general secretary of the Commission on Religion and Race at its headquarters here on Dec. 1. He has been pastor of Windermere United Methodist Church in Cleveland since 1982.

A native of Mississippi, Dr. Hill, 43, has held a number of local and regional posts related to efforts to eradicate racism in the church. Before he entered the ministry he was a high school teacher and college counselor.

He received his education at Dillard University in New Orleans; the Methodist Theological School in Ohio, and Purdue, Southern Methodist and Ohio Wesleyan Universities.

Dr. Hill succeeds the Rev. Gilbert H. Caldwell on the Religion and Race staff and will have special responsibilities in relating to the church's black constituency among its 9.2 million members, according to Bishop Melvin G. Talbert of Seattle who chairs the commission. Dr. Caldwell, earlier this year, was appointed pastor of St. Daniel's United Methodist Church, Chester, Pa.

The election of the new Religion and Race official took place during the autumn meeting of the commission Sept. 27-29 in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Shiloh C.C. celebrates 39th Anniversary

The Chancel Choir of Shiloh Christian Community Church recently celebrated its 39th Anniversary in concert in the main sanctuary of the church, located at 2500 W. Lombard St.

Helping the choir celebrate its illustrious event were members of the Baltimore Chamber Players, who accompanied them. The concert attracted a standing room only crowd.

Many individuals in attendance at the concert are still talking about it.

Additionally, the Women's Chorus of Providence Baptist Church presented its Great Hymns Breakfast recently at the Hyatt Regency of Baltimore.

The guest song leader for the event was the Rev. William Calhoun and the accompanist was Hugh Carey.

400 persons attended the event.

Dinner-Theater presented at the Palladium

The Minsiters Wives of New Shiloh Baptist Church is sponsoring a Dinner Theatre at 7 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 24 at The Palladium, 2900 Liberty Heights Ave.

The play, "Friends Forever," written by local playwright, Betty Glascoe, will feature Jaki Hall, Avis Johnson, Kewanee Smith, Bertha Guthrie and Jackie Westbrook.

"Friends Forever" is a rich, witty and moving story focused upon a 10-year reunion among five best friends. As the story unfolds, the glamour, intellect, talent, competitiveness, jealousies, approval seeking, caring, sharing, heartbreak, and ultra designer fashions capture the audience in a very stirring and thought-provoking manner.

There is tremendous beauty and love in the friendship of these five women, who wear masks to camouflage their true feelings.

The play generates laughter, because of its humorous aspects; it is a tear jerker, because of the unabashed exposure to realism; and a spiritual uplifter, because of our need to have that true friendship that only God can guarantee and that will be there forever.

Tickets are $30.00 per person and reservations can be made by calling 523-5306.

About people

Happy 88th birthday cards to Paul S. Henderson. He's the veteran photographer, (for years he was the photog on this newspaper, and the photos he took are historic).

Note: Mr. Henderson is the longtime Druid Hill Ave. resident, and member of St. James Episcopal Church. Fellow members were happy to see him out walking up the aisle for communion during Homecoming services there last Sunday.

Church note: This past Sunday (Oct. 5), flowers on altar at St. James were in memory of Herman L. Toulson, Jr. He was the prison guard slain a year ago. Donors: His wife, Dorothy, and daughters, Cecilia, Lynelle and Noelle.

Bill Loggins of Los Angeles joined fellow members of the Douglass High School class of 1930 for reunion at Baltimore's new Palladium on Friday. He called to say he was "pleasantly surprised" at the new black-owned facility, that the food was good, and owner, Ed Butler, was "gracious."

Loggins guested here with his sister, Mrs. Evelyn Rigby. He wants friends he did not see to know that when they come to the California city to please call him, "I'm only eight minutes from the airport, and I'll pick them up."

Note: He said Baltimoreans Harry (Sonny) Pratt, and Dr. and Mrs. Roy Johnson, had a Labor Day reunion when Baltimorean Dr. Granville Marshall entertained friends at his Baldwin Hills home there.

More travel notes: The Miller sisters, members of an old Baltimore family, had a reunion in Seattle last month. Baltimore's Vonzella Miller Murray, and her daughter, Shawn, were there for the wedding of Vonzella's sister's son.

AVID INTEREST in everything about her was the reputation of Mrs. Rubye C. Gill. See how and why in If You Ask Me.

REMEMBERED — Miss Lucille Williams, unemployment supervisor and church worker, touched many lives. See more in If You Ask Me.

Sister is Mrs. Joseph Craig (Ruth), a 20-year resident of Ketchikan, Alaska. Son, Gary, wed Suzanna L'Heureux.

For the past two weeks, Mrs. Craig has been visiting here. In addition to Mrs. Murray, other sisters are Mrs. Veronica Dorsey, Baltimore, and Mrs. Roberta Montgomery of Seattle.

The Miller girls are daughters of the late Ruth and Robert Miller, long residents of the 2400 block Brentwood Ave.

Baby note: Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Ellis, 2nd. (Helen), had their infant daughter, Marla Clarice baptized at St. Katherine's Episcopal Church on Sunday. She's their second oldest, Helena, is 3.

Reception followed at the Ellises' Cedar Rd. home. Among guests, the happy grands, Aaron and Mary Ellis, and Stanley and Clarice Patterson.

Rubye Cordelia Gill filled her life with meaning.

Her death on Oct. 3, at the age of 76, removes from the Baltimore community an exceptional servant of God — scholar-educator, musician - community leader-role model — quiet, reserved, yet jovial — who demonstrated that a woman can excel in many fields if she desires.

Look at this — She earned her bachelor's degree in music education, with a minor in violin at Oberlin; her master's from Northwestern; a violin scholarship at Chicago Musical University, and did graduate studies at Peabody, U. of Md. And during this period excelled playing tennis!!

She taught music at Lincoln University in Missouri, before moving to Baltimore as bride of the late Dr. Robert L. Gill, the Morgan professor of philosophy.

She continued teaching in the Baltimore city schools, became involved in numerous community activities and reared her family and was supportive of her husband.

Wherever she volunteered, those of us who knew her can attest that Rubye Gill didn't just put her name on an organization's books, she was active all the time.

Rubye Gill Mother of year

Ask members of Sharp St. Methodist Church, where funeral services were held today. There, she was chair of the church's outreach program, responsible for feeding some 200 hungry persons twice a week, as well as helping to clothe them and provide other services. Ask those same members of Sharp St., where she was a member for over 40 years. They elected her this year's Mother of the Year.

Ask members of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority. Since the inception of the group's benefit Ebony Fashion Show, it was Rubye who hosted the male models. It was Rubye who helped her sorority secure the initial $89,000 grant to implement a model integration project in Baltimore city schools.

She was a dyed-in-the wool Republican, a delegate to the party's state and national conventions, and served on numerous state and city commissions, including the Park Board.

Rubye was a world traveler — had been everywhere in the U.S. and abroad, except Alaska.

Yes, she and Dr. Gill enjoyed their Calloway Ave. home, and their country place at Shadyside, Md. While he tended the garden, she nurtured the flowers, made the jams, jellies and pies.

When the children were young, she accompanied them on trips to concerts, museums and the PTA's and other places they needed to see.

Delight

The family tribute put it correctly — Rubye Gill had an avid interest in everything around her. Not too long ago, she went skating with a granddaughter and taught her to use a computer she had recently purchased.

Rubye Gill was a delight to know. To be in her presence, we, her friends knew we were with somebody special.

We would add that she never put on airs — nothing false about her. You knew where she stood. She will be missed.

It seems only yesterday, but Rubye's children have grown up. Survivors: Son, Dr. Walter Gill, is now institutional technology at the University of Omaha (Neb.); daughter, Roberta Gill Washington, an attorney, is director of the Sickle Cell Anemia program. Grandchildren are, Danell Gill, 23, a second year grad student at Ohio State U., Marine Pfc. Daren Gill, and Tara, 10.

Also, a sister, Mrs. Lucille Smith, the retired government worker.

NAACP orchids

In this space last week we reported on the very successful NAACP Unity Banquet, where Black Enterprise publisher was the guest speaker.

Space did not allow printing of the following Orchid Section on the banquet:—

Orchids to the city's personnel chief, Mrs. Hilda Ford, who chaired the banquet; to executive secretary, George N. Buntin, Jr., and longtime warrior and Baltimore president (and national board chair too), Mrs. Enolia P. McMillan.

Her citations to retiring Congressman Parren J. Mitchell and Senator Charles McC. Mathias, were impressive. They received the NAACP's first annual community and service award for "dedicated service, not to themselves, but to others . . . and for their commitment to democratic ideals . . ."

Mathias was unable to attend. The audience appeared disappointed that Parren was not urged to speak.

And VIPs

More orchids to Rod Daniels, the WBAL-TV anchor, who presided, (wish he had not tried to introduce the VIPs there, because he missed so many.

For example, the crowd would have been pleased to know that 96-year-old Miss Mattie White, longtime Baltimore public school physical ed teacher, was in the audience, and looking good.

Among VIPs introduced Congressional candidates Kwesi Mfume and Congresswoman Barbara Mikulski. She presented an award to Mrs. McMillan, and Mfume, Senator Troy Brailey, and State's Attorney Kurt Schmoke got the most applause.

We were surprised there was little applause for the "crime" statement by NAACP exec Buntin. He observed, "We as NAACP and NAACP supporters need to come together to do something about crime that is sweeping our communities. Civil rights gains have been under attack for several years, but nothing is of greater harm to ourselves than lawlessness in our community. Let us come together and try to do something about it . . ."

We did hear some "amens." Maybe what's needed now is the NAACP Plan "to do something about it."

Moving: the Invocation and benediction by Rev. Mamie A. Williams, Pastor of Centennial — Caroline St. Methodist Church. Both times she had the audience hold hands as she offered prayer, and her words had real meaning . . .

Example: "O God, this day You have been so gracious to us. You have brought us together to be reminded of how good You are . . . of how many persons You have put in our lives as examples of Your goodness and how indeed we invest Your goodness in each other . . ."

More orchids: Palladium staff did an excellent job of serving the huge crowd. Food was excellent. Crip's Florist donated the table centerpieces.

Lovely Lucille

Miss Lucille Williams, 70, who was eulogized at Metropolitan United Methodist Church recently, was an unusual person who touched many lives.

Many knew her as the 37-year employee of the Maryland Department of Employment and Training, where she retired in 1984, as supervisor in the unemployment insurance division.

Many others knew her for her church work in the Inter-Religious and Concerns, Christian Unity and United Methodist Women.

Metropolitan pastor, Rev. Irvin Lockman, and three other ministers were present to tell of her outstanding service. They were the Revs. Frank Williams, Kelly Jackson and Ernest Clark.

They recalled her work with the NAACP, BUILD, the Evergreen Neighborhood Association and the Maryland Classified Employees Association.

A former co-worker and friend, Louise Kerr Hines, recited her admirable character traits of love, sharing and caring, concern, for family, neighbors, co-workers and friends.

She recalled, "She was a person who could be serene and in control of her emotions in time of stress . . . she had a most unusual sense of humor . . . and always she was pretty in dress and in her manner . . . during her illness, she never complained or talked about herself . . ."

Thinking-of-you cards to her survivors: brother, George Williams, D.C., sisters, Eunice Bishop, Bridgetown, N.J., and Evangeline Williams, Baltimore.

Cuff note: Both sisters were at her bedside when she died Sept. 19, listening to the spiritual, "Somebody's Knocking At My Door," on which sister, Evangeline, is the soloist. She sings with the Great Hymns Choir.
