WASHINGTON LOSES TO CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY — HAVERFORD ON THE CARD FOR TODAY—OTHER NOTES

Washington College played Catholic University last Saturday at Washington. The game was closely contested from start to finish. Washington was in the game with plenty of fight, but the other team had a shade on them in experience and knowledge of the game. Washington held the home team to one touchdown until the contest was about over, when a forward pass by Lohran was intercepted and resulted in Catholic University's second touchdown. The Washington College boys report a fine trip. During the game Bobby Cavanaugh's hip was injured somewhat, but it is believed it will be shape before the St. John's game, Saturday, November 24.

Football fans on the Eastern Shore should not forget the Washington College-Lebanon Valley College football game on Washington Field Thanks giving Day. Lebanon Valley has a fine team and Washington's eleven is rounding into form. The game should be a good one.

Washington College will play Haverford College on the latter's field today, Nov. 17. Washington is being picked to win today by local football enthusiasts. It will be remembered that Haverford played Hopkins a good game several weeks ago and the Baltimore team was barely able to defeat them. We look for a close game, with neither side scoring more than one touchdown.

Firpo, defeated South American contender for Dempsey's crown, is not so popular in his home country as he thought and the other day was almost mobbed by his own countrymen.

Western Maryland and St. John's will play today. We pick St. John's to win.

The "Yale News,' 'in a recent article, gives Maryland University high praise for their brilliant showing against Yale Saturday, when they lost by a narrow margin of 16 to 14. In the last minute of the game, Maryland lost a field goal that went wrong about two feet.

In spite of the fact that game was said to be quite plentiful, the first week of the season finds hunters from all parts of the county saying that they have found game quite scarce. The trouble with our hunters is that they are not satisfied with a minimum amount of game, and think they should shoot and bang to their heart's content, killing all they can, with the idea in their mind that the supply is exhaustible. So long as our hunters have this view of sport, game will always be plentiful. Further than this, we predict that rabbits will be almost extinct in this section in ten years, unless the season is restricted to two weeks, the bag limit put at three or four, or else make every other season a closed season.

Talbot County has a kennel, where dogs from the wealthy northern people are boarded when it is inconvenient for them to keep the animals themselves.

Notre Dame's big football team was smashed by a second-class team last Saturday and Yale almost beaten. Cornell and Syracuse have the best claims on the championship. Our prediction is that if Cornell had played the teams this year that Syracuse has, there would be but one real contender and that one would be Syracuse.

In the international contests United States gets all the cups and most of the coin.

Organized baseball on the Shore hangs in the balance. Baseball moguls will meet this week to decide whether or not to continue the league.

Hunters should realize that they have a personal interest in preventing forest fires. Their own sport is ruined whenever a fire sweeps through a woodland, for even a blaze in the underbrush destroys the cover and the food supply of game birds and rabbits ruined. All fires, small and big, kill incalculable amounts of game. Bear this in mind and don't start a fire in the woods or fields. One is easier started than exterminated.

Hopkins won, 3-0 from St. John's on Saturday. A break cost the cadets the game.

Memoriam, who won from Zev recently, will meet him again at Louisville today, Saturday. Memoriam won somewhat easily from My Own and Zev in the other race and we don't see any reason why he should do the same again.

Yale and Princeton meet in the annual contest on Yale Field today. Yale will probably win the game. Yale has an unbroken line of victories, while Princeton has been defeated several tims. Princeton has a way, however, of showing up unexpectedly against her ancient rival. From 1873 to the present, with the exception of 1874 and 1875 and the years 1917 and 1918, during the World War, Yale and the Tiger have met on the football field. Of the 46 games played Yale has won 24, Princeton 13, while 9 have resulted in draws.

Notre Dame's defeat by Nebraska was the biggest upsets of the year.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. Walter Wright has returned from Easton Hospital and is convalescing at his home.

Has Good Turkey "Crop"

Kent has its usual good turkey "crop." While Thanksgiving will, of course, bring forth a good many of them the great majority of them will be held for the Christmas holidays, partly because a better price will be paid and chiefly because of the fact that they will be better matured and in better condition.

It would a hard matter to tell just how many thousands of dolalrs Kent's turkeys are worth every year, but it is well known that it runs up into big money.

Turkeys range at will over the farms and gather their own living at small cost to the farmer. However, the amount of work required to rear them and the loss sustained in so doing makes them well worth every cent made off them.

Notwithstanding this, they bring in a good revenue every year to Kent County farmers.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Quite a few alumni returned to their old college on Saturday, Nov. 3, to witness the Mt. St. Mary's-Washington College football game.

On the night of Nov. 3 the Adelphia Society held an informal dance in the gym. A record-breaking crowd for college informal dances attended. Many alumni were present. Dr. and Mrs. P. E. Titsworth, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Harrington and Miss S. Chorn chaperoned the dance. Kelly's Kollegians furnished the music.

News of the death of the father of Roland Nelson, of Crisfield, Md., on Nov. 1 came as a shock to Mr. Nelson's many friends here.

The class of 1923 is planning to hold a reunion on Nov. 29 at the college. On this day the Lebanon Valley eleven will be met on Washington field. At night the first of the series of Cotillion Club dances will be held.

Simultaneous with the arrival of their class rings on Nov. 7 came happy smiles upon the faces of the Junior class. The ring is similar to that of the class of 1924, the latter having been adopted by the college as the standard college ring.

Approximately $4000 was pledged by the student body toward the payment of the college debt at a meeting held after chapel on Monday, Nov. 5. Adding to this amount the $3500 pledged by the student body here four years ago it is seen that the students have responded nobly. The debt is very small now and one more sweep will clean it up. Alumni are asked to come across with the balance.

Gilbert V. Byron, '23, addressed the Mt. Vernon Literary Society Wednesday, Nov. 3, at their regular meeting in William Smith Hall. Mr. Byron is a former president of the society. At present he is principal of Kennedyville High School.

EVERY HOUSEWIFE IS ASKED TO TRY A SACK OF ROSE BUD IF NOT ALREADY A CONSTANT USER

A Trial Will Be Convincing of its Many Superior Points For General Use

So confident are we that Rose Bud Flour will stand the most severe tests that we invite every housewife to try it in any manner desired. Make it up into biscuits or rolls or cakes—see if each isn't just a little bit superior to those made from the ordinary flour. As an all-around flour for general household use it positively cannot be beaten. It's finely milled flaky whiteness proves itself when used. There is nothing about it that will cause your bread to be soggy and dark in color. To the contrary you will find that everything made of Rose Bud Flour is superlatively fine. Try a sack.

Try it on Waffles and See If They Do Not Turn Out Beyond Your Best Hopes

Take this old-fashioned recipe and make a batch of waffles. Use Rose Bud Flour and you'll find that you've made the most delicious edible imaginable :

1½ cups Rose Bud Flour, 1½ teaspoons Royal Baking Powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoonful sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoonful shortening, 3 eggs.

Sift and mix dry ingredients into bowl, add milk and melted shortening. Separate eggs or egg, beat in yolk and fold in in well-beaten white. Bake in very hot greased waffle-iron.

Two Cash Prizes To Dealers First Prize $15 Cash

For Best Display of Rose Bud Flour

Any Merchant Who is Handling Rose Bud Flour is Eligible to Enter the Contest for the Prizes.

As an incentive to all merchants who are selling Rose Bud Flour, to pep up their retail sales by better display of the product, we are going to give two cash prizes for the best store display of Rose Bud Flour. Where there are windows, window displays will count more than counter displays. However, if the store has no display window, those made on counters will receive as many credits as the window displays elsewhere. During the weeks of November 26 and December 3 we will send an inspector to each store who will decide the winner of the contest. We feel that this plan will largely increase the retail sales of Rose Bud Flour. Goods well displayed always have a strong suggestive selling power over the customer, and if all merchants handling our product will better display their stock sales will be greatly increased and larger profits will result.
