THE NEW PILOT OF WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Up at Washington College there is a man the world wants. Some folks would call him a small fellow, but as a matter of fact there is nothing small about him. When I am tired and feel like taking a hour or two off from the routine of college life, I slip off from my classmates and run over to that man's office. My excuse is always to get news for some newspaper. But that is a mere blind for I just want to talk to him. He is seldom around and I consider myself lucky when I catch him alone. He always appears cool and comfortable even while busily engaged attending to his various administrative duties.

I like to visit with this man because he has a big dream. the dream that a man's life consists not in the abundance of things which he has, but in the things he can use and enjoy and put to some sort of service for others.

All that I know when I return to my room is that for a little while I have been sitting down in the presence of a man who wants to make me want to do something finer than I ever did before and be a better man than in the past.

After all the fellow most sorely needed is the one who inspires others to make up their mind that, come what will, they will always do their level best, just where they are and with the things they now have to work with.

And Washington College has found one of these fellows. You do not see him around the campus with his head down. No, this man of whom I speak keeps his head up high with the light of a great determination in his eyes, the determination to leave Washington College, when the time comes for him to leave, a place for better than he found it.

SPORTS

Washington College won a clean-cut victory over Penn Military College at Chester Wednesday afternoon by the score of 38 to 29.

Both teames played on even terms through the first half, the score at half time being 21 to 20 in favor of Washington. Washington got the jump, however, in the opening minutes of the second stanza and ran their score up to 34 before P. M. C. scored from the floor. The cool and spectacular play of Carrington, Washington's star back court man, during the second half was a big factor in Washington's victory. Red Alten starred throughout for P. M. C. on the offensive, but Carroll, who played opposite him, caught him off guard on five occasions. Carroll's work was also good especially during the first half.

Each team scored alternately. Neither seemed to be playing their regular game and resorted to long-range shooting. The P. M. C. quintet managed to work the ball in several times for scores, thereby hanging tenaciously to the visitors' heels. It will be remembered that last season the Chester Cadets hung a defeat on Washington, winning, 41 to 40.

From the result of the first 20 minutes of play it looked rather gloomy for a clean-cut victory by Washington. However. the splendid reserve power which Coach Kibler's men threw into the game during the final period of play told the story.

KENT TOMATO POOL

NEARLY FOUR THOUSAND ACRES SIGNED UP SO FAR.

The Board of Directors of the Kent County Farm Bureau met in the Farm Bureau Office in Chestertown last Wednesday. The tomato situation was the principal topic of discussion. Reports from the committees in Kent County showed that there were 3800 acres signed in the Tomato Pool, with a few sections yet to be heard from. It was also brought out that Queen Anne County had 2800 acres signed in their pool and Dorchester County had over 4000 acres in their pool.

A discussion of prices for tomatoes brought out the fact that every Farm Bureau Local was unanimous in saying that the Kent farmer must receive 30 cents or more per basket for his tomatoes this year. This was also the unanimous opinion of the two County-wide meetings of Kent County tomato growers.

The general price for tomatoes last year was 25 cents per basket. The increase of 5 cents per basket necessary to the farmer would only cost canner, and should only cost the consumer, less than one-half cents per number 2 can, and less than two-thirds cents per number 3 can, the large size.

Meetings held lately at Massey and Rock Hall show that both Local Farm Bureaus are much alive. Both are very active with their Programs of work and are getting good results.

NEAR EAST RELIEF BUNDLE DAY.

Some of the exquite needle-work made by the Armenian Orphans, will be on sale at Rote's and at Newnam's on Saturday March 15, for a period of ten days. These merchants will devote a window for display, and will sell the goods for us, free of charge. We are hoping that many will take advantage of this, and will purchase part of their Easter Gifts at this time.

Harold F. Pellegrin, Director for Maryland, will hold a Conference with the Clergymen and some of the laymen. on Saturday Afternoon, March 15 at 3 p. m. in the Parish House, Chestertown.

This will open the drive for Kent County, and all are working hard to put Kent, "over the top." Bundle day will be March 19, and we hope by this little announcement, to get folks to hunt up all they can spare. Boy Scouts will be mobilized for work in the towns where they will collect all bundles. Country people are asked to bring them to the schools.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE

An old Mt. Vernon Literary Society pin, worn by the late D. James Blackiston in the early sixties while a studdent here, was presented by Toastmaster H. P. Ford in behalf of Dr. E. J. Clarke of Pocomoke City to President P. P. Heck at the annual Mt. Vernon banquet held here March 1. The pin is to worn by future Presidents of the society as a badge of office.

The pin is of gold and about the size of a half dollar having engraved on its face a likeness of Washington's Tomb at Mt. Vernon together with a latin motto and the letters M. V. L. S. It is doubtless one of a very few that may exist.

Mr. D. James Blackiston graduated from Washington College in 1864, later becoming a very prominent lawyer in Cumberland, Md. He was a brother of the late Miss Mary J. Blackiston, of Chestertown.

Out of town guests attending the Mt. Vernon banquet on March 1 at the college dining hall were: Mr. H. P. Ford, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Coulbourne, Philadelphia; Mr. H. H. Rash, Betterton; Mr. Emory Roe, Wye Mills; Mr. Richard Rasin, Kennedyille; Mr. G. V. Byron, Kennedyille. Town guests included Mr. Snowden Thomas, Mr. W. R. Huey and members of the faculty.

"Resolved that the pen is mightier than the sword" is an old topic for debate, but despite this it was very ably debated by B. Dalton and E. Nuttle at the Adelphia Literary Society meeting held in Wm. Smith Hall on March 3. Mr. Dalton dressed in the conventional cap and gown of a college professor pled well the cause of the pen but Mr. Nuttle in a cadet's uniform and with a huge sword in hand pierced the defense and won the debate. Mr. Nuttle in comparing the two instruments showed the effects of plunging the sword through paper, then the pens effects. The climax was reached when the defender of the pen was challenged to a duel with pen versus sword.

Other numbers of the program were a humorous reading by Gardner, impromptus by Cavanaugh, Hildebrand and Armstrong and the Moonbeam by Rayne.

Rev. C. L. Atwater of the local Episcopal Church addressed the students and faculty at chapel services last Monday.

Quite a number of the students and faculty attended the basket ball contest between Mt. St. Marys and Washington at the fourth regiment armory last night.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loing remembrance of my dear father John Collison who departed this life one year ago, March 4, 1923.

My heart has been crushed and wounded
My life has been lonely and sad,
And only one look upon your dear face,
Would make me content and glad.

The depth of our sorrow we cannot tell,
The loss of our father we loved so well,
And while he lies in peaceful sleep
His memory we shall always keep.
By his son and daughter-in-law.

From our chain this link has fallen.
In the East the stars hae set;
But engraved on memory's tablet,
Is the name I never forget.

His cheery smile and kindly ways
Are pleasant to recall;
He had a smile for everyone,
And died beloved by all.

Although I cannot clasp your hands,
Your face I cannot see;
But let this little token show,
I still remember thee.

By his grandchildren Gladys and Thelma.

This Community was shocked last Wednesday evening by the sudden death of Mr. Hiram Wooleyhand. Mr. Wooleyhand had been at work during the day in his usual health, but in the evening not feeling so well he went to the office of Dr. Merrett Brice for treatment but finding the doctor not in his office he started to return home and fell on the street. He was found by some young men lying in the street, who picked him up and carried him into the store of Paul Comegy's where he was treated by Dr. G. L. Copeland but in a very few minutes he passed away. When found by the boys they started one at once for the doctor but Mr. Wooleyhand told them it was too late.
