Legislative Notes

The Boulevard Road Bill from Love Point to Denton looms bright in the Maryland Legislature.

The State subsidy of $19,000 a year paid the Baltimore and Eastern Shore Ferry Company for the operation of the Bay Shore-Queenstown Ferry is cut from the State budget by the recommendation of the Finance Committee of the Senate. Senator Lawrence B. Towers, of Caroline county, made a motion to withdraw the subsidy at a meeting of the Finance Committee Wednesday night, and it was adopted with but only one dissenting vote.

Delegate Bowers has introduced a bill in the House of Delegates to limit the catching of shad in the upper Chesapeake bay to residents of Hartford, Cecil and Kent counties. A bill has also been introduced to extend the time for catching shad from June 1st to June 10th.

A bill to make the office of the sheriff if this county a salaried one has been prepared for introduction in the legislature. The bill provides that the sheriff shall receive an annual salary of $1.200, together with the profits occurring from the board of prisoners and other appurtenances.

The Love Point-Denton road loan, regarded as one of the most important measures affected, was to have been supplemented by provision of a ferry service between Baltimore and Love Point promised by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Several bills, including the $750,000 loan for the Love Point-Denton road, passed or under consideration by the House. were held unconstitutional in an opinion sent by Attorney General Thomas H. Robinson to Senator Walter J. Mitchell, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Neither house can legally consider additional appropriations, Mr. Robinson ruled until they have acted upon the Governor's budget. He suggested that bills already considered will have to be reintroduced in order to be constitutional.

The following measures were killed Tuesday:

No. 83—Requiring sanitary conveniences for motion pictures operators.

No. 237—Giving parents equal rights in guardianship of children.

No. 103—Increasing the penalty for driving automobiles while intoxicated to a minimum of one year and the maximum of three days.

No. 79—Giving the sentencing authority and not the Motor Vehicle Commissioner the right to suspend licenses.

No. 16—Prohibiting motor vehicles from parking at the top of a hill.

No. 41—Removing previous unchastity from the list of grounds for divorce.

No. 121—Providing for closing of any public school when less than 12 pupils attend for two consecutive terms.

The bills requiring 10 days' notice to creditors prior to sales in bulk, and to place all outside salesmen under the Workmen's Compensation Act were reported favorably.

The House, in an onset against measures to which objections had been registered, slaughtered eight bills. The first was one authorizing judges to impose indeterminate sentences, sponsored by the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission. It would have abolished the State Parole Commissioner, placing parole power in the hands of the courts. The measure was reported unfavorably by the Judiciary Committee and this report was adopted.

The Maryland State Senate assembled tonight as in the early days of the Commonwealth, by the light of candles. The Senate and House chambers and the spacious halls of the State House were shrouded in darkness, with electric lights put out of commission by the storm. Candles and lanterns guided Senators to the upper chamber, where they remained only long enough to record a formal adjournment, as required by parliamentary law. Disabandonment in the afternoon had been on a motion to recess until 8 p. m. Governor Ritchie, left without lights in his office at the State House as night fell, worked with members of his staff with pocket flashlights as the only illumination. Paralysis of railway communication deprived the General Assembly of 46 of its members. Twenty-four of the 36 members of the city delegation in the House and one city Senator—Curran—were absent. having been unable to reach the State capital. Some business was transacted despite the curtailed attendance.

—The Peoples Bank of Elkton, a newly-organized institution, opened its doors for business Wednesday morning. The bankingbuilding is located on North street. which was for a number of years the home of the Second National Bank of Elkton. The bank starts with a capital of $50,000, and a surplus fund of $5,000. Mr. Argus Robinson of Chestertown, is Cashier of this bank.

The family of Mr. Argus Robinson will move to Elkton in the near future where Mr. Robinson is cashier of a bank.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brice, of Far Hills, N. J., were guests of friends in town this week.

STORM HITS TELEPHONES HERE.

The storm of this week hit the telephones of this section particularly hard. Mr. R. C. Harris, district telephone manager, stated to the Transcript man that 1100 telephones, approximately, were out of commission in his territory. Seventy-eight lines were out of commission and about five hundred poles were down. Nearly five hundred stations were out of commission. Mr. Harris' territory comprises of Kent, Queen Annes, Talbot and Caroline. He resides in Easton. The Telephone Co., at once mustered every available man and all equipment and work of repairing the lines was begun at once.

WEDDINGS

Mr. Hyland D. Orem, one of Chestertown's prominent business men and Miss Mary E. Bullen, of Rock Hall, were married at Elkton, on February 29th.

Clerk of the Court Robert R. Ayres, has issued the following marriage licenses since March 1st, Goldey Morgan Jones and Catherine Estell. Kendall, both of Kent County; Oscar King of Denton, and Mary Leslie of Marydel; Albert Kraft and Frances Crockett, Philadelphia; Primo Custidio, Philadelphia, and Alice Young, of Chester, Pa.

NEAR-CYCLONE HITS KENT

Wild Gale Mows Down Trees and Poles Accompanied By Sleet and Snow—Much Of Eastern Shore Isolated—Was Anniversary Of Blizzard Of 1888.

Kent County, the Eastern Shore and the entire Maryland-Delaware Peninsula was visited by a wild gale which approached the proportions of a cyclone, both in the strength of the wind and the damage which resulted. The storm began on Monday night, grew fiercer during the early hours of the next morning and abated but little during Tuesday, Tuesday night and Wednesday, when the wind changed to northwest.

Snow. sleet, hail an rain accompanied the gale at various intervals, one minute a snow storm, approaching a blizzard, raging and the next a heavy rain, driven by the storm. broke thu every available crevice imaginable and drenched the streets of towns and filled the streams of the country with raging torrents. It was a fitting anniversary to the memorable blizzard of 1888.

The severest blow was probably dealt to the telephone system, which was more or less paralyzed for a time by poles being blown to the ground and much damage being done to the wires and to the system generally. Early Tuesday the Telephone Company had its repair men out all over the county and much repair work was done in a short time. Many trees were blown down throughout the county, trees which have stood many gales. while many valuable orchards were damaged.

On the river and bay few, if any ventured out. Considerable damage was done to fishing nets.

Other parts of the country were affected in various ways by the storm. In Pennsylvania snow piled in deep banks inseveral counties, while in the south the temperature dropped dangerously near the frost line.

Every available man was pressed into service by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company to repair the most extensive damage their lines had suffered in almost a decade. long-distance service in the State, except to Belair, Aberdeen, Havre de Grace and to Annapolis via a temporary line line was suspended.

It was estimated by G. H. Warren, division manager, that 2500 poles were down, not including those in Western Maryland, and that 700 telephones in the State and 2500 in and near Baltimore were out of service.

Working night and day. repair crews will not restore normal service in less than a week, it was said. Some of the lines must be virtually rebuilt.

Telephone and telegraph communication to Washington and further South was virtually out of commission, the Capital being almost isolated during most of the day.

Official telegrams received from other parts of the country were received in Baltimore and were relayed to Washington by train. Other telegrams from Washington were carried to Baltimore offices by messenger and thence sent to their destinations.

Two strands of telephone wire and the State highway were the only avenues of communication Tuesday and Tuesday night between Baltimore and Annapolis.

A DOLLAR SPENT IN KENT.

Have you ever stopped to consider what becomes of a dollar spent in Kent County. Part of the dollar is spent or invested with some business in the county. Your prosperity depends upon the prosperity of individuals and business organizations in the county. Therefore part of this dollar spent in the county is likely to come back to you. A dollar spent elsewhere is gone for ever.

Visit your local merchants, and business organization and see what they can offer you before going else-where. If they can not interest you then go outside, but we believe they can in most cases. This is community spirit. Many articles are bought outside that could be bought locally for less money.
