

A bacon we're proud to call Corkhill

"OLD fashioned curing method" is a phrase you have often read, but—If you prefer old fashioned automobiles and old fashioned trolley cars, then by all means use old fashioned bacon and ham.

The Corkhill Curing Method is the very last word—the outgrowth of more than a half century's experience in the production of quality meat products.

No—there's nothing old fashioned about Corkhill Bacon; it's the nearest approach to perfection that we know.

Your dealer has it, or can easily get it at your request.

Farmers, List Your Repair Needs

It would be hard to find a farmer who at some time or another had not lost valuable time waiting for necessary repair parts. Take this territory and total up the time lost in this way and it will astonish you. And all because repairs are not odered as early as they should be.

There is no better time than right now—just before the busiest season on the farm—to go over your machines carefully, make a list of repairs you are likely to need and send it to us. With this list in our hands, we can order our stock so as to be prepared to meet every call promptly.

Repair part service is a necessary part of our business. We realize what it means to you in time and money to get what you need at once. Help us to help you by making up your list now and sending it in to us.

WOULD HUMANIZE BRITISH WIRES

London Post Assails Telephone Administration's "Coldly Formal" Attitude.

In a recent series of articles under the heading "No Progress with the Telephone," the London Morning Post severely condemns the British telephone system, both as to development and quality of service.

Twelve years have passed since the telephone system of Great Britain came entirely into the hands of the British government, which operates it in connection with the Post Office. Yet, says the Morning Post, "the general consensus of opinion is that no material progress has been made in the direction of a cheaper and more efficient service." London, it declares, is far behind American cities in telephone facilities.

The Morning Post protests against what it describes as "the coldly formal treatment that prevails in this country (Great Britain), as contrasted with the personal contact established in those countries where the telephone is a matter of business enterprise." It declares that "since assuming control our government has done nothing to popularize the telephone or make known its utility"; but emphasizes the fact that "in commenting on the service or contrasting its working with that of other countries, it is not suggested that individuals are in any way to blame, but the system by which they are governed and which, like the majority of State-operated departments, is devoid of imagination, elasticity, and appreciation of public feeling."

LINEMAN'S FIRST AID SAVES HUNTER'S LIFE

The timely arrival of Joseph Lee, an Ohio Bell Telephone Co. lineman, saved Delmer Bair, of Findlay, Ohio, from bleeding to death after accidentally shooting himself in the arm while hunting, says the Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer.

Lee was working on a telephone line and heard Bair's mother calling a physician. Lee, possessing a knowledge of first aid through a course given him by the company, broke in on the conversation and offered his help when the doctor said he could not reach the Bair home for half an hour.

When the physician arrived, Lee had Bair's wound treated so that the flow of blood was stopped.

TELEPHONE LINE 1200 MILES LONG WAS MARVEL IN 1893

One of the features of the telephone display at the Chicago Exposition was a large wall map showing the long distance telephone line from Boston to Chicago, 1200 miles long. It was labeled:

"The Longest Telephone Line in the World."

That was true in 1893, but the achievement was only a step in the progress of long distance telephone transmission.

The next great advance was the opening of the New York-Denver line, 2100 miles long, in 1911. In 1915, the continent was spanned by the New York-San Francisco line, 3400 miles in length.

Even the conquest of the continent did not mark the limit of long distance telephone transmission. Continued research by the Bell System scientists and engineers has resulted in improvements and inventions in telephone apparatus and equipment, extending the range of long distance telephony and improving the quality of transmission and today telephone conversations are carried on with perfect ease between Havana, Cuba, and Catalina Island, a distance of 5500 miles.

SPECTACULAR STORM DESTROYS TELEPHONE COMPANY'S PROPERTY

A recent snow, sleet and wind storm played great havoc in the territory of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone, which includes the States of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. Rain followed by sleet and a high wind caused widespread destruction to Wire and Pole lines.

More than 700 Telephones, 300 Poles and 12,000 miles of local and long distance circuit was put out of commission, resulting in an estimated damage to the plant of the C. & P. Telephone Company of approximately $150,000.

As soon as reports were received of the storm damage, men and materials were rushed as fast as possible. In many cases repairs were held up by high waters, the rivers having overflowed and blocked the highways. Necessarily, the work of reconstruction was carried on under extremely difficult circumstances, but after 36 hours of unremitting activity over 100 of the 142 long distance circuits out of order had been restored to the service. Within three days service to all points had been restored through the use of 350,000 feet of insulated emergency wire and new poles.

The storm was one of the most spectacular of recent years. In the extent of its widespread destruction and its natural aspects of picturesqueness it was particularly distinctive. During the night trees and telephone poles had succumbed to the weight of ice and crashed to the ground amid the pistol-like reports of snapping wires; when daylight came the scene presented was most fantastic. The gleam of the ice on tree and pole had transformed the storm-swept area into a scene of surpassing beauty. Even the discomfort suffered through this unwelcome visitation was partially forgotten in the compensation afforded by a glimpse at this marvellous manifestation of nature's handiwork.

SPORTS

DUMSCHOTT, THE GREAT SPEED MARVEL—OTHER NOTES OF INTEREST TO OUR READERS

Dumschott, for sheer speed, is the greatest marvel that ever raced the floor in a basketball game for Washington College. Even Carroll, recognized as the greatest basketball man who ever played the game here, and the best the State of Maryland ever produced, is not the equal to his running mate, Dumschott for speed. Where Carroll excells any other man who ever starred in this state is not in his accuracy for shooting; in fact, sometimes we feel that he fall a trifle below his other accomplishments in this respect. Where he does excell is in his natural ability to get in a position to shoot. In this he stands alone. But for speed in racing down the floor, or in getting possession of the ball, Dumschott gets the palm. In many of the games of the season his work has been such a marvel as to call forth the admiration of by-standers who have never seen him work before. In the game with St. Joseph's in Philadelphia recently, Dumschott reached basketball heights which perhaps even he has never scaled before and his work called forth the admiration of everyone who saw him, and right there he was dubbed the star player of the team. And for the game he was! We doubt if there has ever been a man here who could make such a quick race with the ball for the basket when he secured or could secure it so readily. We hereby give him his place in the Hall of Fame at Washington College as the fastest man who ever raced the basketball floor.

Speaking of basketball stars, Coach Kibler, in his prime, was one of the greatest we ever saw in action. Coach Kibler can still play with the best of them, but the loss of a finger in the late war has necessarily handicapped him somewhat in handling the ball. Where Capt. Kibler excelled all of them was in his remarkable reservoir of reserve energy. We have seen him play an entire game, at full tilt, with never a let-up, and never show a bit winded. He was a better shot than any player on Washington's great team, especially when close to the basket, and occasionally he was a marvel from a distance. But when under the basket—he was a dead-eye. Washington has produced some mighty good basketball men, but few, if any, were superior to Coach Kibler.

Base ball is now clamoring for its innings at Washington College and a few more clear days will bring Coach Kibler's squad in action. Then will we see Carroll on the firing line; Dumschott on second; Carington behind the bat; McGrann and Fiore in the field. Thus the basketball stars will have another chance to be in the limelight on the diamond. Let us hope they will again cover themselves with distinction and add further to the glory of the institution.

Carlton Lord, of Ridgely, Md., who is now in the South training with the Philadelphia Nationals, is doing well at third base. The Maryland boy will have to hustle, however, if he holds the third base job, for there are three other hot corner men trying for the position, and of course, the man who makes the best showing gets the coveted position.

Baseball lovers in Kent county are planning to organize a county high school league, similar to that formed in Queen Anne's county last season. It is stated that a schedule will be arranged and that at the end of the season an All-Star team will be selected to meet the Queen Anne's county All-Star team in a series of games for the inter-county championship. Such a series would, no doubt, attract considerable interest in all parts of the two counties, particuarly in view that practically every section of Queen Anne's and Kent would be represented on the two nines.

The proposed return heavyweight title match between Jack Dempsey and Tom Gibbons, which Tex Rickards planned to stage in the Metropolitan district early in June, was dalled off recently by the promoter after a conference he had with Jack Kearns, the champion's manager. Abandonment of the bout, forcast several days ago, was due to a motion picture contract which Dempsey has accepted.

Harry Greb, middleweight champion thinks he can whip Champion Jack Dempsey but we are doubtful if any one else thinks so. He says he believes that Tommy Gibbons can stay with Dempsey another fifteen round, and also admits that he can lick Gibbons. He claims that Dempsey has refused to meet him a number of times, and that heavyweight champ is afraid of him.

Great interest already is manifest in Paris and London over tthe proposed visit of the Giants and another major league team—possibly the White Sox—to those cities next fall. This doesn't necessarily mean that baseball ever will be played generally in France and England, for it is so distinctly an American game that Europeans are not likely to adopt it, but they are rather keen about it as a spectacle. Paris never has seen the game played by major leaguers, for adverse weather conditions made it impossible for the Giants and White Sox to play there in the winter of 1913-1914, and should patronize the proposed exhibitions well In London the world tourists played to 33,000—all that could be accommodated at the field in Chelsea—and next Fall, should the teams play in the Wembly Stadium, which holds 126,000 they may establish a record for an attendance at a ball game.

Bobby Jones has long since been considered the greatest stroke golf player in America. Figures recently compiled would bear out this contention.

Finis has been scrawled across the 1923-24 soccer season. The campaign just closed has been exceptional in many respects. It will go down in history as the greatest this winter sport has ever enjoyed in Maryland-and, regardless of how the reviewer chronicles the soccer happenings in this district during the past six months, even the most glowing pen-picture will fail to do justice to the great popularity of the game.

RUSH OF INCOME TAXES

No greater rush of income tax-payers ever has been seen at the Internatl Revenue Collector's office than was in evidence there yesterday. The rush began when the office opened at 8 o'clock in the morning, and every available employ of the office was put on income-tax duty.

At 4 p. m. when the rush lessened, nearly 11,000 persons had paid at the cashiers' windows and fully that many had sent in returns and checks by mail

The amount of money taken in could not be totalled, as the office was kept open till midnight. However, if the collections mount up to those of last year as a whole the aggregate for the day will be $5,000,000.

Up to yesterday, Friday was the biggest day for receipts, the amount taken in over the counters and by mail being $1,734,781.63. This brought the total for the year's first quarter to $4,854,369.33. Last year the total collected in the first quarter was $10,220,308.07. The year's total was $30,330,106.78.

—As usual, the reports from the camps of all the big league teams show that all the rookie talent are slamming the ball hard, and that a number of Ty Cobbs and Babe Ruths have been discovered.

Successful Farmers are Rapidly Standardizing with the Oliver Walking Plow

It is a high compliment to any manufacturer to have his product recognized as standard equipment by a large percent of the farmers—the men who grow our crops and insure our national prosperity.

This is the proud position of the Oliver Walking Plow. It is so light of draft, so well built, so easy to operate, that every year more and more farmers have come to accept the Oliver Walking Plow as standard.

If you are not already an Oliver user, come to plow headquarters and we will show you the superior features of design and construction. They are convincing.
