Farmers, List Your Repair Needs

It would be hard to find a farmer who at some time or another had not lost valuable time waiting for necessary repair parts. Take this territory and total up the time lost in this way and it will astonish you. And all because repairs are not odered as early as they should be.

There is no better time than right now—just before the busiest season on the farm—to go over your machines carefully, make a list of repairs you are likely to need and send it to us. With this list in our hands, we can order our stock so as to be prepared to meet every call promptly.

Repair part service is a necessary part of our business. We realize what it means to you in time and money to get what you need at once. Help us to help you by making up your list now and sending it in to us.

Poultry Notes

BREEDERS AND LAYERS, THE DIFFERANCE-HATCHING EGGS BROODING WITH GOOD RESULTS—OTHER NOTES OF INTEREST.

There is a vast difference between raising hens for eggs and raising them for breeders. We see the difference right along at our hatchery, and in a way that cannot be mistaken. We raise chickens twelve months in the year for breeding. We never force our hens by confinement or lights or unbalanced feed, but allow them to come into laying naturally in the breeding season. Others force their hens twelve months in the year and then bring eggs from their flocks to us to hatch. We make a careful comparision of the hatching of the two classes of eggs, with the result that eggs from our flocks will hatch at least 25 per cent better than will the eggs from the flocks which have been forced. And then comes the question of the vitality of the two kinds of chicks, of which there is practically no argument. Chicks from breeding stock not forced are worth at least twice as much as are chicks from forced flocks.

If your breeding pens are not down to business now, there's no time to lose. Use only hens of good size for the breed of good health, vigor, body-type and freedom from standard disqualifications. Cull out hens that should not be in the breeding pens. You cannot be too particular when it comes to the male bird. A male bird with a pedigree is worth twice as much as one with the same qualifications, but no pedigree. Breeders need exercise. Therefore, fewer birds in a pen and a deep little are necessary. When weather permits, let them out. Fresh air is another essential. Don't close the curtains unless it is freezing weather, stormy, or the wind is from the front of the house. Do not force breeders for heavy laying, especially in winter. Less than 50% production insures better hatches and stronger chicks. If you would improve the quality of your flock, it is a mistake to use as breeders layers kept in a crowded house likely to be insanitary that have been forced for egg production. Breeders of the right type are especially selected individuals, and as such, should receive special care.

Hens of good type and breed qualifications sometimes lay eggs of undesirable size, shape, or color. The tendency to do this may be inherited to some extent. Hatching eggs, like breeding stock, should be selected. "Like begets like," this breeding axiom applies not only to breeding stock but to eggs as well. Select and set only the kind of eggs you wish your pullets and hens to lay, especially if you are interested in producing market eggs.

Keep eggs for hatching in a cellar or other place at about 60 to 65 degrees Fahrenheit. A temperature of 70 degress or above, or 50 degrees or lower, is detrimental to hatching eggs. Turn the eggs being saved for hatching every few days to keep the contents in proper balance. Do not save eggs longer than two weeks and ten days is better still.

If you buy hatching eggs or baby chicks, buy them near home if possible. Long shipments are usually detrimental to the best results.

In a farm or home flock the setting of the first hens to go broody in the spring in the spring, is usually a mistake from the standpoint of flock improvement. Such hens will usually be found to be the best winter layers, and their eggs, having been sold or used, will not be available for setting. As a result the good producers will be set on eggs laid by inferior producers. Such hens should be broken up, put back into laying and their eggs incubated under other hens or in an incubator.

If you are operating your own incubator, follow the directions of the manufacturer. They usually know best how to run their own machines.

Spare no pains with your brooder house. Prepare the floor by giving it a thorough cleaning. Provide about ½ inch covering of coarse dry sand, covered with about ½ inch of cut straw or hay chaff. See that stove is working properly and that temperature is correct and constant. Don't crowd the house with chicks. Many people make this mistake. 3 chicks to a square foot of floor space will give the chicks a chance. Crowding increases mortality and makes culls. Kill on sight and destroy any chick that is weak, unthrifty, or shows signs of "pasting up behind." Cull out the weaklings as they come from the incubator, and continue to cull as the chicks grow, if necessary. Remember that a thorough chilling of a brood is likely to mean a 50% or greater mortality, and a lot of culls in the balance of the flock.

Do not feed chicks until 48 hours old. First few feedings should be given sparingly and often, and should consist of an easily digested food such as hard hard-boiled eggs and rolled oats. Milk should be supplied in fountains which do not allow the chicks to get into the milk. Mash can be given after a few days, and milk every day, if available. Give plenty of tender greens, and begin a light grain feeding in chaff to induce exercise.

EXTREME PENALTY AT EASTON.

A colored man named Ockemy was arrested last week for selling liquor in Easton. He seemed to be a go-between and had disposed of quite a little of bootleg stock when he was arrested by the Easton District Constable.

He was tried before Justice Gordon, States Attorney North prosecuting the case, and the prisoner was found guilty. Justice Gordon then imposed a sentence of $50 on him and committed him to the House of Correction for eighteen months.

The Justice took occasion to say that he would impose the extreme penalty on all who are found guilty of this offense in this court, and States Attorney North announced that he would show no quarter, but would endeavor to prove such culprits guilty.

—An epidemic of grip, mild influenza chicken pox and "pink eye" is sweeping over Upper Dagsboro district in Delaware and for the past week physicians have been kept busy day and night. Nearly one third of the population of Dagsboro, according to advices is suffering from some kind of sickness.

CHEAPER

One reason concrete is used so generally today in all types of construction from sidewalks to highways, from garages to enormous industrial plants, is the fact that Portland Cement actually costs less than it did thirty years ago.

The Atlas rotary kiln, daily producing as much as the old-time kiln did in one month, was the greatest single factor in assuring this cheapness.

And your building material dealer, the only distributing channel between Atlas and you, assures distribution economy. He knows building and building materials. He can help you.

Successful Farmers are Rapidly Standardizing with the Oliver Walking Plow

It is a high compliment to any manufacturer to have his product recognized as standard equipment by a large percent of the farmers—the men who grow our crops and insure our national prosperity.

This is the proud position of the Oliver Walking Plow. It is so light of draft, so well built, so easy to operate, that every year more and more farmers have come to accept the Oliver Walking Plow as standard.

If you are not already an Oliver user, come to plow headquarters and we will show you the superior features of design and construction. They are convincing.
