FIKE NETS DESTROYED.

Twenty-one fike nets were found by Deputy Game Warden Elliott at the headwaters of Miles River, Talbot County, one day recently. He was unable to find the owner of the nets and according to law he took possession of them and burned them. The value of such nets when new is about $60 a piece. They were placed where they would catch a great many fish just at the height of the spawning season. Mr. Elliott is endeavoring to find out who placed the nets. Nets in other locations have been reported to him.

—There is hardly a spot upon the Eastern Shore that is not accessible to one who desires to be entertained "on the air." Many farmers have radios and after he has learned each evening the New York, Baltimore and Chicago prices of his products he spends the remainder of the evening, with his family, listening to the concerts from Atlanta, dancing to the jazz from Denver or a talk from Schenectady.

—The Dunn farm in Quaker Neck has been rented to Charles Hughlett, of Queen Anne's.
