He though that by May 5 a large majority of the national convention would be pledged to the President.

SPRINGTIME BLIZZARD HITS KENT.

HILLS AND FIELDS BURIED BENEATH WHITE MANTLE — ROADS BLOCKED AND AUTOS UNABLE TO GET ABOUT

After basking in several days sunshine whih at times came close to semi-tropical magnificence, a springtime-blizzard, one of those peculiar weather throw-backs which frequently occur in this climate following an extremely mild winter, visited Kent on Tuesday. It began about 2 p. m., an din an hour's time the whole county was the scene of a swirling, blinding, drifting blizzard whih by nightfall had increased to such proportions that maed getting about either in cars or by foot almost out of the question. It continued but a few hours, but enough snow was unloosened during that brief period to cover the county with about five inches of its flimsy whitness. Cars were soon almost at a standstill and but a few ventured out. The traffic which was compelled to be out labored through it to their destinations.

A peuliar thing about the blizzard, and something whih our oldest residents have never seen before, was the frequent flashes of lightning during the blizzard, accompanied by violent crashes of thunder.

Nature surely played a real April fool prank in this section of the Atlantic Coast. The storm which swept through here on its way northward from Georgia, where it was centered Monday night, was a typical heavy April thunder storm. It would have been that in this part of the country had the temperature been 10 degrees higher.

Low temperature turned the fall to snow. The temperature remained at or below freezing point all day. It reached its lowest mark—28 degrees—at 2 p. m. The high point was 32, between 9 and 11 a. m.

Northeast storm warnings were put up all along the coast at 9 a. m. Tuesday. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon these were changed to northwest from Delaware Breakwater to Cape Ratteras, including the bay region. Tuesday night they were taken down.

For the first time in nine years racing was called off for the day at Bowie Race course because of weather coniditons rain, snow and sleet caused a similar suspension in 1915.

BOX PEACE PRIZE.

A total of 610,558 ballots were voted in the "referendum" on the Box Prize Peace Plan, the Policy Committee of the American Peace Award has just announced. Of this number, 534,177 were for the plan and 76,381 against it, or a percentage or 87½ for and 12½ per cent against the plan.

Every State in the Union was represented in the vote, as were also, the Virgin Islands, Hawaii, Alaska, Porto Rico and the Phillippines.

—An attempt was made to burn the waiting room on the southbound side of the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at Havre de Grace, Friday night of last week. A large pile of newspapers on one of the seats in the room was set on fire by some unknown party. Fortunately the blaze was discovered before any damage was done.
