HAY FEVER SUFFERERS, LISTEN!

Why continue to suffer with the annoying symptoms of so-called Hay-Fever, when the new Health System of Chiropractic has proven to be a God-send to victims of this dreaded malady.

THE CAUSE OF HAY-FEVER

Before attempting to find a cure, Chiropractic first made a deep and thorough study of the fundamental cause of Hay Fever. Excessive Sensitiveness of the mucous lining of the Respiratory Toact is the cause of Hay-Fever. This sensitiveness is due to an interference with the nerves supply to the tissues of the nasal passages, caused by a slight misplacement of one of the small bones of the spine in the neck, thru which these nerves pass. The cure then, consists in nothing more than relieving this nerve pressure and allowing for a normal distribution of nerve energy.

THE UNSOUND THEORY

It must be remembered that until the advent of Chiropractic, Hay-Fever was one of the ailments of mankind about which scarcely anything was known, therefore what theories that were advanced were "just theories", and never proven to be facts. One of the commonly accepted theories regarding Hay-Fever was that Pollen or other foreign substances in the air irritated the Mucous Membrane and that this caused Hay-Fever. If such were the fact everybody would sufer with Hay-Fever. Such, however, is not the case as but a very small percentage of people suffer with this annoying complaint, and as everybody breathes practically the same air.

Chiropractic offers to prove its theory that Hay-Fever is caused by nerve pressure by practical demonstration on some reputable person (accepted by the writer) the only understanding being that the results of such test be published in this newspaper.
