Chestertown Business Men Hold Most Enjoyable Event Thursday Evening

The Chestertown Business Men's Association held their third annual banquet in Reid Hall Thursday evening. Every part of the county was represented by business men and farmers.

After a very delightful menu, served by Mr. Gunning, caterer at Washington College, Mr. Jefferson, President of the Association, gave an excellent talk on the association, what it was endeavoring to do, and what it could do for Kent County if every resident was interested.

The President then introduced Professor Hart of Washington College, who gave a very interesting talk on the relation between the college and the community and how a getting together and better understanding of each other will benefit both.

Mr. Sweeney of Baltimore was then introduced, his subject being "A little fun now and then". Mr. Sweeney is a master at joke telling and his talk centered on that nationality that generally bears the brunt of American jokes "The Irish". He followed an Irishman from the time he entered this country until he was brought up before the Judge and received free board for two days. Mr. Sweeney, being an Irishman himself, made the alk more amusing.

The president next introduced Mr. C. A. Goodwin. Having lived in Chesttrtown but five years, Mr. Goodwin is known to practically every resident of the county; his popularity is due to his cheerful disposition, always looking on the bright side; his smile when everything seemed to be going wrong; his superior business ability, together with his hustle and pep. His residence in Kent has done much as an example to the business men of the county. Mr. Goodwin's subject was "This and That", and his talk was centered on, Wake up Chestertown, together with many valuable suggestions of how to do it. To talk hard times means hard times, lets look at the bright side and see what will follow.

The President next introduced Mr. Woodburn of near Galena, who talked on asparagus. Mr. Woodburn's talk was both interesting and insturtive. He described how he left the gold mines of Idoho to start farming and after looking all over the East for a farm he finally chose Kent County for his future home. Mr. Woodburn started to grow asparagus after losing money on other farm produce and has made a great success. He not only grows asparagus, but he studies the markets, methods of shipping and predicts a briyht future for asparagus growers of the Eastern Shore.

If we will all talk Kent asparagus, eat asparagus, advertise Kent asparagus, and then talk it some more our neighbors in the cities will hear about Kent asparagus, then start eating it; there you are.

Mr. W. T. Gardner, Sec., of the Salisbury Chamber of Comferce gave a short talk on freight shipment and transportation, and how by cooperating with that body we can better conditions here.

Mr. Freeman, of Salisbury was introduced and gave a few valuable suggestions.

Dr. Titsworth is a busy man these days. Last week he was in Newark, N. J., looking after the interest of the Endowment Fund. On last Sunday and Monday he delivered five addresses in Salem W. Va., helping toward the endowment fund of $500,000 for the University of that place. On Wednesday he went to Phila. in interest of the W. C. Campaign.

He also expects to deliver nine High School addresses one to Waverly, Va., May 26. Nanticoke, Md., June 4. Cecilton, Md., June 6. Hurlock, Md., June 10. Seventh Grade Chestertown, June 11, Queen Annes Tri-county School June 17. Sttevensville, Md., June 18.

He also goes to Suffolk and Cape Charles City, for the same purpose.

The graduating class will be as follows:
M. Ermyn Jewell, Chestertown, Md.
Helen B. Jones, Aberdeen, Md.
Helen G. Mills, Cambridge, Md.
Katherine E. Warren, Balto., Md.
Dorothy E. Woodall, Chestertown, Md.
Roger C. Bounds, Allen, Md.
C. Edward Duffy, Salisbury, Md.
Albert E. Goodrich, Balto., Md.
W. Ernest Griffith, Denton, Md.
Preston P. Heck, Balto., Md.
Elmer L. Kaiser, Balto., Md.
David McMenamin, Chestertown, Md.

The session of 1923-24 is nearing the close at W. C. Commencement day is drawing near a day wihch was so eagerly longed for and now tinged with feelings of regret by the graduate who will leave her honored Walls.

On Sunday, May 25, Dr. Titsworth will preach the Baccalaureate sermon at 10.30 a. m. and the Rev. Jas. E. Leach, of Wilmington, will address the Y. M. C. A. Sunday evening.
