ROCK HALL, MARYLAND

THE FIGHT AHEAD
By Grantland Rice

Into the face of the wind that's blowing
You know there's a fight ahead;
But the mind is set on the rougher going
That calls for a firmer tread.

And there isn't much time to get swell-headed,
To stop and to look about,
For you hustle along till the trail is threaded
On to the end of the route.

When there's a favoring wind to aid you,
Look for a darker day;
For the road's too easy that fate has made you
Over the softer way.
You get no training for coming trouble,
Nothing to make you fight,
And then there's a shift as the wind blows double,
And nothing is ever right.

GHOSTS BELIEVERS STILL EXIST

Chestertown Has Several Who Firmly Believe That Persons Existing In Past Ages Still Stalk About In The Shadows

While the average white person knows absolutely the physical impossibility of the existence of what is termed "ghosts," yet in the minds of many there lurks a suspicion of something mysterious in the world which cannot be explained, something vague and uncertain, especially when the curtain of night obscures the rays of day and dark shadows cast omnious outlines.

This is particularly true of the colored race, but is not confined to it, by any means. Many are the stories of mysterious shapes and dim outlines seen under proper conditions of moonlight,deserted houses or country lanes. And they don't all come from either the colored race or the simple minded by any means.

There have been many houses in Kent that people have sworn everlastingly were haunted. Mysterious sounds have come from them; vague shapes have been seen flitting through twilight hours; even a scream or two have pierced the quiet hours of the night when human folk were wrapped in morpheus' arms, as they should rightly be.

And, while most of the believers in ghosts have gone to better lands beyond the stars, a few yet remain, relics of another age, clinging tenaciously to age-old beliefs, and living ever in the past, from which experience comes crowding in upon them, filling their later years with interest and pleasure.

Such a one is "Uncle" Isaac Brown, colored, in the employ of the Vannort family for many years. "Uncle" Isaac is one of those gentle, respectable and, honest old colored men, about which the history of the colored race clusters with happy memories. He is from the South, and of the South. He believes explicitly in the supernatural, and who can deny that, looking through the lenses of the years, that he cannot see vague and uncertain shapes and mysterious forms, and that he cannot hear sounds that are not for the ears of mortals reared under different environments.

He tells of how he has chased ghosts in forests' shadows, by winding streams and down myth-haunted dells. He tells of how he has treed them and how he has driven them down old wells. His tales of ghosts would fill pages of reading, interesting to the ears of those who love the credulous.

But of all the stories of ghosts that have come to our notice, one concering a local man recently caught our attention. The man resides near Chestertown at this time and dwells in a small cabin in a secluded place. Night brings untold terrors for him. He shivers with fear as the dark curtain falls lower and lower over the earth and obscurs the orb of day.

But he has found a way to make himself safe from these imaginary enemies, which seem to travel by night only. And so he has had sleeping quarters built at his cabin which are large enough only for himself to squeeze into. This he does, and, locking his door, "he draws the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to sweeter dreams."

IT HAS LASTED

Chesttertown People Must Believe Such Convincing Testimony as Mrs. Kirby's

No one in Chestertown who suffers backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this twice-told story of a Chestertown resident. It is confirmed testimony, telling of lasting benefit from Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. It's evidence that no man or woman in Chestetrown can doubt.

Mrs. S. E. Kirby, 101 N. Queen St., says: "I used Doan's Pills with good results when I was troubled with a slight disorder of my kidneys and backache."

Over Five Years Later, Mrs. Kirby said: "Doan's Pills cured me of kidney complaint and the cure has been lasting. I always recommend them."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Kirby had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs. Buffalo, N. Y.
