OPERATORS IN BOMBAY SPEAK MANY LANGUAGES

Girls at Switchboard in India's Most Cosmopolitan City Must Be Linguists.

Bombay, the great seaport of the West Coast of India, is perhaps the most cosmopolitan city in the whole vast Indian Empire. English, Portuguese, French, natives of India, Chinese and Japanese swarm about the great bazaars, along the docks and among the cotton-mills for which Bombay is famous. Christian, Mohammedan, Hindu, Parsee and Sikh meet for trade in this great center of Eastern commerce. Many languages and more dialects are spoken on Bombay's broad streets and splendid quays.

Anyone who serves the general public in this polyglot metropolis must, therefore, necessarily be something of a linguist; and this applies especially to the telephone operators who work at the swttchboards of the local telephone system. All telephone operators in Bombay, it is said, must be able to speak, in addition to their native language, not only English, but French, Arabic, Chinese and Japanese as well.

Twenty years ago the Bell Telephone System's total mileage amounted to 3,958,891 miles. Today there are 34,523,842 miles of wire. At the beginning of 1904 the toll line mileage was 975,702 miles. It has now increased to 4,569,256 miles.

Twenty years ago, there were less than 2,000,000 telephones in the Bell System. Now there are more than 15,000,000 Bell-owned and connected telephones in the system.

From The Century Theatre Press Department

Reginald Denny, who won screen fame with his fists, is holding it by his versatility. For it is a new Reginald Denny whom one sees in "The Reckless Age," his latest universal-Jewel feature which will be shown at the Century theatre beginning Monday, August 4.

The new picture, a screen version of Earl Derr Biggers' Saturday Evening Post story "Love Insurance," is a rapid fire tale of an insurance man standing guardian over an English lord who has insured himself against the failure to marry an heiress.

Harry Pollard, who directed Denny in "Sporting Youth," made this highly pleasing production.

The music at the Century beginning with the week starting Monday, Aug. 4, will be played by an enlarged orchestra with an entire new roster of musicians. Cesare Nesi, the well known tenor, has been engaged to render solos in a special musical act to be given on the program.

"The Home of Rose Bud Flour"

Grinding the Farmers' Wheat

It has been our custom for many years to grind wheat into flour for the farmers of this section. This constitutes quite a saving to those who raise wheat and will bring it to us to make into flour. Bring us 5 bushels and 36 pounds of good milling wheat and we will give you one Barrell of Fine ROSEBUD FLOUR, and 45 lb. Bran; or 5 bushels and 10 pounds and no bran.

Storing Wheat for Your Flour

During the past years we have ben storing wheat for our customers and giving them their flour as they needed it in return. This is an excellent way for our farmers to always have a fine supply of fresh flour on hand at all times. During the past year we stored wheat and exchanged flour for it for about three hundred and fifty customers. This year we will be better prepared than ever before. We are building for the accommodation of our farmers an up-to-date grain elevator. By means of this we will be able to accommodate all our patrons in a most competent way.

Saving, the Keynote of Success

Saving is the keynote of success. This is recognized by successful business men and economists the world over. We know of no better way to save than by exchanging wheat for Rosebud Flour. A clear saving of from $1.00 to $1.50 per barrel is made by this exchange. Figure on how many barrels of flour you will use in a year, and figure up just what you can save by bringing us your wheat for your flour. You cannot lose by this proposition. It is a bona fide saving exactly in proportion to number of barrels of flour you use.

ROSE BUD FLOUR

It Means Successful Cooling

Successful cooking depends somewhat upon how good the flour is that is used, and exactly in proportion as the flour is up to recognized standards, so will the cooking be good. Rose Bud Flour is recognized by all who use it as flour of the very highest grade, made under the most sanitary conditions and by the very finest equipment. It cannot help but being first-class in every way. The wheat used is the best that the fine grain fields of Kent and Queen Annes produce. It is milled by a man who knows his business, and the price is within reach of all.

Gome and See Us and Talk the Above Proposition Over--It will pay you
