Democratic Ticket

For President of the United States
JOHN W. DAVIS

For Vice President
CHARLES W. BRYAN

For Congress
T. ALLEN GOLDSBOROUG

IN this issue of this paper will be found a letter from Mr. Paul Winchester, one of the best posted men in this state on political situation. which every reader of this paper should read.

THE Democratic situation at this time is most encouraging. Wm. Jennings Bryan says Davis is gaining in the west while information from other important sections of the country are to the same effect. The present campaign is rather a peculiar one, and the three cornered fight makes it difficult to get anything definite regarding the final results, although it is generally believed that the vote of the country is turning to the Democratic party. While we know the Republican party is well oiled with Tea-Pot-Dome Oil, yet the Democratic candidates are steadily forging ahead in the states that are regarded as in the doubtful column.

By the Maryland County Press Synd.

Hotel Rennert, Baltimore Oct. 1st, 1924

The visit of the Presidential candidate to Baltimore this week has aroused the enthusiasm of the democrats to a high pitch, and many who were lukewarm in their efforts to roll up a big party majority have gone vigorously to work, and from now on to election day all thse democrats who are loyal to the cause of good government will be found vieing with each other in their desire to roll up for Davis and the Congressional candidate a majority which will correspond with the large affiliation the registration lists show a democratic majority in this state of more than fifty thousand.

Reports from the counties show that the democrats in all sections of the state are beginning to work with vigor not only for the Presidential ticket but also for the several candidates for Congress.

In the First District the party leaders are preparing to poll the full democratic vote for Mr. Goldsborough and a large proportion of the independents and not a few Republicans across the bay are also reported to be lining up for the able and eloquent young democratic nominee, who has made a most enviable record in the House of Representatives.

As a member of several important Committees, Mr. Goldsborough has demonstrated his fitness for the place he holds, and it is no reflection on any of the long list of able men who have served the Eastern Shore district in the House in the past years to say that the present representatives is on a par with the best of them. The writer knows that his colleagues in the House think of Mr. Goldsborough, and his rank as a safe, conscientious and conservative legislator is not excelled that of any other member. He has been watchful of the interest of his immediate constituents and no matter affecting the people of the Eastern Shore and the State of Maryland has failed to receive his immediate and painstaking attention. In addition to that, he has at all times remembered that Congress legislates for the people of all the States, and that the general public, and the vast concerns of more than one hundred millions of people are vitally concerned in all that takes place at the Capital. Mr. Goldsborough is broadminded enough to see all this, and he has at all times taken into consideration the fact that a member of Congress is not merely the personal agent in Washington of a small section of the land, but that he is there to do all that lies in his power to benefit the great masses of all sorts and conditions of men throughout the remotest sections of the States from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The democrats of Maryland expect the Eastern Shore, which is the old-time, rock-ribbed stronghold of the party of Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson to do its full duty this year, and to roll up a phenomenal majority not only for Davis and Bryan, but also to see that Mr. Goldsborough gets a majority equal to that given many of his predecessors in past years.

Much interest is taken here in the Congressional situation in the Fifth District. Mr. Chance. the democratic nominee is apparently gaining strength as the days go on, and many democrats now confidently hope for his election, and the return of the Southern Maryland section to its old-time loyalty to the democratic party.

In the 6th., district Mr. Winbrenner is making a vigorous and brilliant open fight against Mr. Zihlman. who is working the gum-shoe game in all parts of the district, and Col. Tydings, while sure of his re-election by a very large majority is taking no chances but is working with his usual ability and energy for the whole ticket. There is no better campaigner in the state than Col. Tydings, and Maryland has never had a more popular member of Congress than the able young man who represents the Second District, who is proving himself a worthy successor, of the late Mr. Talbott, who broke all records in the number of times he served his people at the National Capital.
