Many Chestertown Folks Are Showing How To Avoid Needless Suffering

There's nothing more annoying than kidney weakness or inability to properly control the kidney secretions. Night and day alike, the sufferer is tormented and what with the burning and scalding, the attendant backache, headache and dizziness, life in indeed a burden. Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many Chestertown people. Profit by this Chestertown resident's experience:

Mrs. S. Pfeffer, 102 Cannon St., says: "I have used Doan's Pills at different times when my kidneys are troubling me and they have never failed to give relief. The least cold I took settled on my kidneys and my back became weak and painful. Mornings I felt dull and sluggish and my kidneys acted irregularly. Doan's Pills were the right remedy for me and soon put a stop to the backaches and other signs of kidney trouble."

At The Century Theatre

"Forbidden Paradise," Pola Negri's greatest screen triumph since she came to this country, will be presented at the Century Theatre during the week beginning Monday, October 27.

This is the first American made Paramount picture to be produced with this renowned screen actress under the direction of Ernest Lubitsch, the man who discovered her genius and brought it to full flame in "Passion." Mr. Lubitsch was loaned to Paramount by Warner Brothers to produce this picture.

In this great production is Pola Negri displaying all the fire and seductiveness that has made her world famous; a Negri lavishly gowned and splendidly supported in a sensational story of romance and intrigue.

There is a wonderful cast supporting her in the principal roles, including such players as: Rod La Rocque, Adolphe Menjou and Pauline Starke.

FARM SPOKESMAN AFTER WALLACE

Secretary's Dismissal Of J. M. Burns Because Of Latter's Testimony Called "Underhanded."

ACTION IS CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Department's Laxity In Administering Packers And Stockyards Act Alleged.

Washington, D. C., October.—Secretary Wallace's alleged favoritism to commission merchants who were practicing fraud on farmers and his unsatisfactory enforcement of the Packers and Stockyards Act have been brought once more into the limelight by his attack on Ben C. Marsh, managing director of the Farmers' National Council. It is expected that the complaints against the laxity of the Department's administration of this law, which was intended for the protection of farmers and producers of livestock, will be a big issue during the remainder of the campaign, especially in the Northwest.

Mr. Marsh complained in a letter he wrote to Secretary Wallace characterizing the latter's removal of John M. Burns from the legal staff of the Packers and Stockyards Division of the Department of Agriculture as "one of the most underhanded and sneaking cases of official terrorism in our country's history." Marsh charged that Burns was really dismissed because he told a Senate Committee that officials under Secretary Wallace "have administered the law in the interest of certain marketing agencies to the injury of the producing public." Burns also expressed the opinion in his testimony before the Committee that "if the Department of Agriculture had exerted its influence to bring about competition in the stockyards rather than to stifle it, it would have been worth many millions of dollars annually to the livestock producers of this country."

Burns Dismissed For Testifying

Burns was discharged, and Secretary Wallace now practically admits that his offense was that he testified so frankly to the Senate Committee. "The Burns case," wrote Secretary Wallace to Mr. Marsh, "was handled with far greater consideration than he had any right to expect." Originally Secretary Wallace explained the dropping of Burns as due to lack of sufficient funds for the operation of the Packers and Stockyards Division. That is what the records of the Department of Agriculture were made to show.

It is believed that what angered Secretary Wallace more than anything else in the testimony given by Burns was the latter's statement that, when auditors reported sixteen members of the St. Paul and Minneapolis livestock exchanges as practicing fraud against farmers who sent livestock to them, Secretary Wallace declined to take any action against them but turned the matter over to the exchanges "for such corrective action as they may see fit." If Secretary Wallace had denied that, he would have been confronted with the fact that the legislature of Minnesota said practically the same thing in a formal resolution and that Jacob Preuss, the Republican Governor, backed up the veracity of the legislature by approving the resolution.

Wallace Doesn't Meet Issue

Persons who have read Mr. Marsh's statement and Secretary Wallace's reply cannot see that the Secretary has disproved the charges against him by saying that Mr. Marsh did not tell the truth. His tactics of having the official record show that Burns was dismissed as a matter of economy, by way of reducing the force, and then admitting under pressure that Burns was discharged because of what he told the Senate Committee is looked upon by some persons as possibly justifying Mr. Mash's adjectives, "underhanded" and "sneaking." The incident calls to mind the fact that, some time ago, Walter Y. Durand, formerly of the Federal Trade Commission, said, "The facts have been so shrouded in secrecy by the Secretary and his statements regarding them so meagre and blind, that the farmers and the public are still in the dark."

URGES DAVIS' ELECTION TO PREVENT DEADLOCK

New York, October.—The New York Times, which is ordinarily friendly to the Republican party, is urging a heavy vote for John W. Davis to prevent the election from going to Congress, with attendant delay and confusion. The Times says this question is of much interest that it ought to induce voters to cast their ballots so that the result will be decisive.

"But it is possible to show mathematically and politically that this interest would be most surely preserved by a turning of detached voters in the doubtful States to Mr. Davis," says the Times. "Even if they went to Mr. Coolidge, they would not certainly give him a majority. But they demonstratably would give Mr. Davis a majority."

Oyster Outlook Good.

The oyster business in these waters began the season with the best prospects for a good supply and good prices that the county has had in years. In addition to the stock of marketable oysters on the bottoms, there is also a large catch of small oysters which will bring prosperity in future seasons if the cull law can be enforced.

The leaders of the oyster business will bend great efforts to keep the catch of small oysters on the bottom. The oystermen who used to favor the program of combing the bottom of little oysters in order to make a little money at the time are swinging over by the dozens to the idea that it is very foolish practice to rob the bottom of the food that must be there for the next year's crop. The planters who used to come over from Virginia and elsewhere to buy seed oysters here and take them away to their own bottoms and make fortunes on them, are finding extremely scanty offerings now. The oystermen who think have seen to it this year that all small oysters stay on the bottom. and they will do their best to keep them there. and in this they have the support of the oyster packers who know full well that big oysters come from little ones.

Jail Delivery At Centreville

The first large jail delivery in Queen Anne's county since the construction of the Centreville jail a dozen years ago occurred between midnight and dawn Sunday, when four Negroes, sentenced to terms in the Maryland House of Correction, smashed the bars in one of the rear windows and escaped. The next step in their flight was at the farm of Mordecai T. Gibson, near Centreville, where they stole an automobile. It is believe they reached Philadelphia or some more distant point before their escape was discovered by Sheriff T. Frank Seward.
