ARE YOU ALL RUN DOWN?

Many Chestertown Folks Have Felt That Way.

Feel all out of sorts
Tired, achy, blue, irritable?
Back lame and stiff?
It may be the story of weak kidneys!
Of toxic poisons circulating about
Upsetting blood and nerves.
There's a way to feel right again.
Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic.

Doan's are recommended by many Chestertown people:

Mrs. R. J. Matthews, S. Cross St., Chestertown, says: "I have found Doan's Pills a reliable remedy and recommend them to anyone having weak kindneys. I have used them at different times when my kidneys troubled me and my back felt weak and lame. I had no energy and became run down and my kidneys didn't act right. Doan's Pills, from Toulson's Drug Store, weren't long in giving me relief and putting my kidneys in good order."

WASHINGTON COLLEGE

The Hill has been rather quiet this week as the tests for the month have been on and every one was hard at work. When the fellows have not been busy preparing for tests they have been getting ready to go home and making plans for the vacation. Though every one has been working the anticipated pleasures of the coming holiday has brightened them up.

In order to get every one pepped up before they leave for home and to send them home with pleasant memories of college in their minds there was a pep meeting held in the gym Thursday evening. The events of the meeting were speaches by chairman Mr. Chas. Jarman, Prof. Howell, Dr. Titsworth and Mr. Harry Russell. The meeting was full of pep, college songs and yells. The trend of all of the speeches as giving the college a good name, loyalty to the Alma Mater and getting ahead of the other colleges in soliciting future students.

Dr. Fox pastor of the M. E. Church, of Salisbury, who was to have spoken to the student body Thursday morning at the chapel exercises was unable to do so on account of sickness. He will do so at a later date.

The second Cotilion Club dance is to be held on Jan. 30. As yet the music has not been arranged for.

Both literary societies had Christmas programs this week. The numbers of the programs were mostly of a Xmas nature. They brought the Xmas spirit out in many novel ways.

Letter of Santa Claus to the Boys and Girls

Dear Boys and Girls:

Such a wonderful thing happened the other day! Something that looked like a great bird came buzzing along and all the little brownies left their work to see what it was. And what do you think? It was an airplane bringing your letters, written to the Transcript for your old Santa Claus.

How the Brownies did enjoy it all and even the reindeer lifted their heads to listen!

Thesee are busy times with us. The Brownies are hustling in and out with lots of bundles and we are getting ready to start on our journey.

We hope you boys and girls will keep well and be as good as gold this Christmas season.

And let me warn you to be in bed and fast asleep before my sleigh and my light reindeer appear. Wishing you a very Merry Xmas.

Santa Claus.

Turkeys On Decline.

Census figures show that in 1900 there were on farms in the United State approximately 6,600,000 turkeys in 1910 there were only 3,700,000 birds, and in 1920 there were 3,600,00. These figures were complied on different dates in the years covered, but in any case the number of turkeys now raised annually in the United States is much less than compared with 20 years ago.

Virginia has been forging to the front steadily as a leading turkey raising State, and is now sixth in the list. Maryland is farther down the line, although considerable numbers of birds are raised in the southern part of the State. These two States, as well as well as Tennessee, Kentucky and Texas supply the Washington market.

NEAR EAST RELIEF

"Do Unto Others As You Would They Should Do Unto You."

That is all there is to it. Your neighbor And your neighbor's children A wireless message and a thought, are just as rapid, these days; and the fast ships, traveling through the air, with no speed limit at all bring Asia closer to us in Maryland, than Ohio was a century ago.

If conditions were reversed, or if all of the children in Maryland Delaware and New Jersey, the Tri-States, were without homes, and had not had a change of clothing for three years, the balance of this country would be willing to divide, just one meal, out of a thousand, with them.

This Sunday, around the globe, will travel a warm wave of emotion and love. Every one, in the whole world, is asked to take part in the Golden Rule Dinner, just a simple meal, enough to keep you from being hungry, and the check is to carry your love, and sympathy with it. The cash will be assembled, and results cabled to the few faithful Americans working so hard, on the other side, to bring the spirit of America to the children of another land.

Their typewriters click, then are silent, as the girls stand with freezing fingers, held over a bit of candle which is all the fuel they have in that room. The winters are cold, there is no fuel, and if there is so little food, that but one scant meal a day can be served, the conditions are pitiable.

Alice Hegan Rice, who gave us "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." has written a little booklet, which can be obtained free of charge from 14 W. Franklin Street, which she calls "Sunrise." It is written as only Mrs. Rice can write, and the characters, drawn from real life, stand out clear and distinct and brave. The Boy Scouts, singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee," and marching and countermarching, just as our boys do; the little boy named Ibrihim, who had never heard the sound of laughter, and had to be taught how to smile, when six years of age; the Sidon Bird's Next where lost and orphaned babies are taken; these stand out from the page and pull at your heart strings, and tug at your purses, and plead for a chance to live and be self supporting.

Only children who have no father living, can be cared for in the orphanages. A gentle, refined looking man a refugee and unable to work on account of starvation, came and asked for help for his four little motherless girls, youngest two years of age. He had to be told that they could not break the rule. "If they were full orphans, you would feed and care for them " "To the best of our ability." "Then that matter is easily arranged," he said, as he walked off, his thin shoulders straight, and a look of actual relief in his eyes.

Alice Hogan Rice has seen the children as a mother can see them, as a writer can see them, and as the workers see them. Read her story and pass it over to a friend.

Send in your check today, to Allan A. Harris, Chestertown, Md., Evelyn Harris, Betterton, Md., or H. F. Pellegrin, State Director, 14 W. Franklin St. Baltimore, Md. Give liberally and thank the Lord that you are living in America, and enjoying the wonderful liberties here.

Forest Tree Planting in New York

There were distributed from the State Conservation Commission's forest nurseries for planting during the Spring and Fall seasons of 1924, 9,245,-090 trees. This is the largest distribution of trees for reforestation purposes in the history of the commission, and would have been larger by upwards of 800,000 trees had not the protracted spell of extremely dry weather shortened the Fall season.

More orders for trees were received from farmers and private land owners than from any other class of planters, and they called for a larger total of trees. From this class there were 833 orders, calling for a total of 4,637,550 trees, showing the widespread interest in the reforesting movement among persons having idle land suited to growing trees. The increase in this class alone was 1,486,598 trees.

The next largest increase came from industrial concerns who are interested in the reforesting movement to furnish them with a supply of raw material This group planted 1,732,500 trees, which is an increase of 670,500 trees over last year. Miscellaneous organizations, including sportsmen's clubs, women's clubs, conservation associations and others, planted 578,000 trees, which was nearly double the number planted by this class o forganizations a year ago.

The initial planting in a 100-acre forest to be known as the Women's Federation Forest was made in October by officers of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs on a tract of land a few miles south of Glens Falls; 32,000 trees were planted on this tract in October, and 68,000 more will be planted next Spring. The starting of this forest marks a new phase in reforesting work, and already plans are under consideration for the starting of other forests in other parts of the state by organizations of women who are interested in the reclamation of idle land.

The village of Warsaw, Wyoming County, started a municipal forest this Fall with 20,000 trees, and will add to this from season to season until considerable area of bare watershed has been reforested.

GAME IS SCARCE.

Season Nearing End Has Not Furnished As Much Sport As Former Ones

While there has been a great deal of hunting in Kent County for years and years it has not attracted so much attention away from here until a few years ago. About thirty or thirty-five years ago there was such an abundance of partridges that when two or trree went out gunning for the day and did not get a hundred birds they were considered poor shots. Under the present law the bag limit for a single person is twelve birds. In those days of a quarter of a century or more ago no one ever gave a thought to the matter of the propagation of game, but at the present time were it not for the game that is brought into the county there yould be practically no quail or rabbit shooting.

Of course, eevry now and then one hears someone who has not given proper consideration to the conservation of game, speak of the fact that all these game laws are foolishness, and yet if such persons would only stop and think how much more game there was years ago, and how it was shot and shot until there was practically none left for breeding purposes, then they would begin to understand just why it is necessary to curb and control the killing instinct of persons who believe in not killing the game too close, at least they express such a theory of belief, but for practical purposes they want the other fellow to let up, they kill all they can, flying, sitting, or in any other manner possible, some even trapping the poor birds in time of snow.

Then, too, there are others who have no respect for seasons; they kill in season and out of season. The result of such promiscuous shooting and killing was that the patridges and rabbits became so scarce that a wail went up from the gunners that there yas no more game; they had killed it off, hit it so close that if possible they would have killed the last bird and then they could not understand why there were no birds. The same holds true of rabbits, geese, ducks, buffalos, bears, in fact, almost all species of game. There was a time when diamond back terrapins were so plentiful in Kent county that they were fed to the slaves and now they are not only very scarce but the price is almost as high as for diamonds. The Chesapeake Bay shad is going the same way.

It is believed the value of game killed in Kent in a year is as much as $250,000.

Will Not Abandon Howard

Fort Howard will not be abandoned if Congress approves the War Department's construction program until the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay has been fortified adequately. Since Congress neither has approved the construction program recently submitted to it nor made the appropriations necessary for additional fortifications at the entrance to the bay, it appears it will be a long time before the department will be ready to abandon Fort Howard in order to concentrate activities of the Third Corps Area at Camp Meade. The department's recommendations to Congress that it be given authority to dispose of the number of reservations throughout the country and embark on a program of permanent improvement of other posts pointed out that Fort Howard and Fort Washington, in Maryland, would be disposed of when no longer needed.

Farmers, List Your Repair Needs

It would be hard to find a farmer who at some time or another had not lost valuable time waiting for necessary repair parts. Take this territory and total up the time lost in this way and it will astonish you. And all because repairs are not odered as early as they should be.

There is no better time than right now—just before the busiest season on the farm—to go over your machines carefully, make a list of repairs you are likely to need and send it to us. With this list in our hands, we can order our stock so as to be prepared to meet every call promptly.

Repair part service is a necessary part of our business. We realize what it means to you in time and money to get what you need at once. Help us to help you by making up your list now and sending it in to us.
