"THE MODERN WOODMAN"

In summing up the year's business, we felt that the neighbors would be interested in knowing a little more agout their official paper, known as The Modern Woodman magazine.

During the year 1924 there were 13,615,539 copies of The Modern Woodman mailed. If these magazines were laid out end for end, it would reach 2195 miles, or, if they piled up one on top of the other, it would make a stack twelve miles high, considerably more than twice as high as Mount Everest the highest mountain peak in the world. It required eleven and one half tons of Kraft wrapping paper to wrap the packages that was necessary to get them ready for mailing distribution. It also required 2671 pounds of twine to tie these packages together. This twine, if in one piece and stretched across the country, would reach 306 miles. We use more than twelve tons of printing ink. To sack and route the mail, it required 32,209 mail sacks. Had this mailing occurred in any one month instead of covering a period of twelve months, it would have required seventy standard mail cars to haul the magazine to its destinations. The paste used during this period would have filled a well eighteen feet deep and four feet in diameter, or, if you wanted to place it in gallon cans, it would take 1650 to hold the same. The total output of magazines for the year weighed 2,254,821 pounds.

To give you a summary of the expenditnres for this same period of 1924, the cost of the paper roll stock, proofing-paper, ink, freight and drayage was $188,972.94. The total cost of paste, wrapping-paper, twine, name-plates, electrotypes, halftones, zines and postage was $43,122.88. The total cost of labor, which includes compiling, binding, composition, alerations, and corrections, proof reading, presswork trimming, jogging, automatic mailer, wrapping and express, was $79,138.48. Cost of advertising department, which includes salaries, commissions and expenses, was $15,079.92. The total cost to get the magazine into the hands of the neighbors for the year 1924 was $326,314.22.

The receipts that are credited to the expenditures, whish include advertising, subscriptions (our by-laws provides that from the per capita tax 20 cents per year shall be credited to subscriptions), sale of waste paper and other bi-products, equaled $349,580.98, showing a net profit on the publication of the magazine of $23,266.76.—The Modern Woodman.

—The "Queenstown News" advises as follows: Screen your open grate fires in winter, swat the flies in summer, stop, look and listen at grade crossings, don't start the kitchen fire with the kerosene can, keep your nose out of other folks' business and maybe you will live to be run over by a drunken joy rider.

IN THE WAKE OF THE STORM.

Kent County Hard Hit By Sleet That Followed In The Path Of Blinding Snow Storm

In the wake of the near-blizzard which buried Kent beneath over half a foot of snow, followed a driving storm of sleet on Friday night of last week, which formed upon the snow a thick coating of ice, blocking the roads and leaving Kent County almost paralyzed for a time, causing much inconvenience to farmers, mainly, in making their necessary rounds among their cattle, was much hardship and some suffering.

Chestertown was blocked almost all of Saturday to many, but the rural route carriers went bravely about the difficult task of carrying out the regular mails, made heavier by the Saturday papers which are delivered on that day. Every carrier made his route, although with extreme difficulty, which deserves the hearty commendation of all who received their mail and papers.

Birds and wild life suffered most from the storm, because of the fact that the ground, from which they receive their food, has been covered since last Thursday morning, and bids fair to be covered for some time yet. People who are interested in hunting and shooting and in wild life should organize and help feed the birds and wild animals during severe storms of this character. Many perish from want of food, and, as a consequence, there will be less game every year.

The telephones were hard hit by the storm. In Chestertown, not a phone could call or receive for sometime, but as usual, the telephone company, with promptness and efficiency, got busy with their large equipment, and, at this time, almost normal conditions prevail in the way of telephonic communication. The storm, no doubt, cost the telephone company many thousands of dollars, because of broken wires and broken poles, as well as loss of business.

Many automobiles were stranded in the snow, while attempting to make some point and had difficulty in resuming their journey, while some were overturned and damaged slightly.

Physicians of Kent, called to all points of the county, ofttimes in obscure places, away from the beaten path of travel, always have diffficulty in reaching the sick. But in this case ther task was exceptionally difficult. The sleet, which accompanied the snow placed such an icy barrier across their path that, in a great many cases, they were compelled to leave the regular avenues of travel, and seek the fields and woods to reach their patients. Such is the life of the country doctor. He faces storm and wind, icy lanes knee deep in mud, snow and sleet and numerous other hardships to reach his patients and deal out to them the healing balm of a doctor's undying care. Looked at from any angle you want to no matter whether he acquires great riches, which he seldom does, or lives his life becoming wealthy in what he does for others, the country doctor is a real benefactor to the race.

And while a storm like the one which visited Kent during the weekend always brings innumerable hardships, it also has its compensations, and who on earth has the power to describe Kent County, wrapped in its mantel of icy crystals, as it appeared on Saturday, Sunday and Monday mornings, when the orb of day, hidden behind sullen, lowering clouds, drove back the dark shrouds of night and presented to the view of the people that indescribable picture. Woodlands, drab and dismal and shorn of all leaves and buds, became fairylands, without the fairies, with every twig transformed into a matchless pattern of icy outlines, perfectly formed, as if by some master artist bent upon his masterpiece; hills, covered with snow, gleamed and glittered and changed into many colors as the sun's rays beamed upon them, while here and there stood a tree, fairly groaning beneath its load of ice, but, nevertheless, presenting a picture which stood out bold and beautiful amid its white surroundings of virgin snow; streams, still murmuring on their course, added their part to the grand picture which nature ordains as part of its great plan for the beauty, through hardship, that is given to man.

And as Kent people, inconvenienced by the storm, made their toilsome ways through it, and about their multitudinous tasks, they received this compensation of nature adorning itself in its most beautiful robes, pleasing to the eye, inspiring to the heart and incomparable of imitation by the greatest artist that ever threw the genius of his life upon the canvas.
