Foreign Trade Increases

Foreign trade of the United States during 1924, in spite of the increased volume of exports, showed no great change in the countries of orgin and destination, but South America countries failed to participate in the general increase in the exports from this country.

For 1923 and 1924 the exports from the United States to South America were almost identical, while those to every other quarter of the globe showed marked expansion in 1924.

Made Fortune in Wheat

The Board of Trade experts agree that Arthur F. Cutten has taken more profits out of his campaign in wheat and rye than ever was taken on any deal. They place his winnings between ten and fifteen million dollars. The deals of other days do not approach the gigantic purchases and sales by Cutten. He is credited with carrying from ten to twenty million bushels of December and May wheat for a profit of 75 cents a bushel. Besides this he had millions of bushels of rye and corn. He says he is out of the market now. Cutten is small, slender and wiry. There is nothing very impressive about him, except, perhaps, his keen eyes. He lives on his 800-acre farm near Downer's Grove, Illinois.

ROUGH SLEDDING FOR THE CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT

The Child Labor Amendment to the Federal Constitution appears to be having a rough journey around the various states of the union in quest of approval and ratification and judging from the newspaper reports, it appears to be hopelessly defeated. The proposal has been rejected by either one or both houses of 14 state legislatures and its doom will be fully sealed when it has been rejected by both houses of 13 state legislatures.

Only three states, Arizona, California and Arkansas have ratified the amendment. In Kansas and Oklahoma a loophole was let whereby the measure could be submitted to the people for vote.

No action on the Amendment can be taken in Maryland for two years as the state legislature does not convene until January 1927. In the meantime the state Farm Bureau Federation is taking a vote of its members throughout the state on the measure and thus far the vote is overwhelming opposed to ratification of the Child Labor Amendment.
