"Berry Sunday"

Sunday was "Berry Sunday" down at Marion, Md., the world's greatest strawberry shipping center. In practically every home berries had a place on the menu. It is a sort of ceremony marking the opening of the Eastern Shore berry season. Prospects one week before shipping begins are bright for a prosperous crop of fine fruit. Indications point to a long season extending from May 8 until the middle of June. Ideal weather has filled the vines with berries and blossoms are still coming. Preparations are being made to handle in thirty days from 600 to 800 cars, possibly more. Last year 600 cars were shipped from Marion in two weeks. The season did not begin until May 25 and was over by June 15. The rush of shipping, lack of care in picking and a glut in city markets, played havoc with prices.
