TOLCHESTER ROAD

Contractors Complete Work And Highway Is About Ready For Traffic Which Is Sure To Go Over It

The State Road from Chestertown to Tolchester Wharf is now complete and the eagerly waiting public is over anxious for notice from the State Roads Engineer, Austin L. Shure, that will give them permission to use it as a highway for both the pursuits of pleasure and business. This Mr. Shure tells us he will do August 1, and perhaps sooner.

This piece of state-constructed road completes an unbroken hard and efficient highway from the Chesapeake to the Atlantic Ocean, and affords a splendid highway to the well-known Tolchester Beach which is the rendezvous for thousands from all parts of Maryland and Delaware every weekday as well as Sunday. This new road will, of course, mean a big boom for Tolchester. The auto public will invariably stick to the good roads, and Tolchester's well known popularity will furnish the incentive necessary to bring to the blue waters of the Chesapeake, with its far-flung shore line asplash with clean and refreshing waters, thousands of pleasure seekers as well as those thirsting for the cool and refreshing breezes of the bay.

Tolchester has had a record which is hard to eclipse during the past forty years. Close to Baltimore, hundreds of thousands from the Monumental City pour into the resort every day, receiving, in turn, manifold blessings of refreshing baths and health-giving breezes. Not only city people, but thousands of country folk, eager to see their city friends and enjoy the pleasures of the resort after the week of toil in the fields, flock there also, eager for the Sunday pleasure.

And, then, too, Tolchester affords a good outlet to the city markets and hundreds of farmers send upon the Tolchester steamers their products from the garden, the farm, the orchard and the poultry yard, receiving good returns from Maryland's metropolis.

The bathing there is particularly good. Mr. Frank Wheatley, Postmaster at Tolchester, tells us that about 45,000 people have bathed at Tolchester Beach so far this season. Mr. Wheatley gave us some particularly interesting statistics and information regarding the resort the other day. He says that the crowds that have come over upon "The Express," the new boat of the Tolchester Company, have been consistently good, while almost every trip have seen the giant steamer almost, if not quite, loaded to capacity. The completion of this new road will, of course, add to the number of autos that will use this ferry to Baltimore.

Last Sunday we watched the three Tolchester steamers, their decks laden with human freight, preparing to return to the great Monumental City, with its towering spires and black stacks, which lay behind the haze of the distance, which was beckoning them to return to that sacred place called home, as it has, in bygone years, called its voiceless message to us. The day, so full of anticipation in the morning, was over. Twilight's shadows were creeping over the blue waters of the bay. The sullen notes of the steamer's stacks spoke their departing message. There was a quick rush for the decks by the few who waited for the last word. And then they were off. In a few moments all that could be seen of that vast throng of a few moments before was a thin, hazy flare of smoke against the twilight shadows of the Chesapeake. The day of pleasure was past. And then the lights of the resort flared their bright tokens into the gloom, transforming it into a real garden of exquisite beauty, as evening's shadows drew closer.

The old resort, the playground of youth and old age, the fancy of the dweller in city's hot streets and country's fragrant fields, never seems to lose its charm. May it ever be thus, filling its place in the life and usefulness and health of the state, and growing better and more useful and more beneficial as the years go by.

FIRE COMPANY ACTIVE

Confer With Commissioners Of Rock Hall And Betterton—To Visit Tolchester Tonight

That they may be in position to render the best and most effective aid possible, in case of conflagrations to the various communities, wholly without fire protection, throughout the county, The Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company are making visits to the county towns, locating the source of water supply, approaches thereto, and giving demonstrations.

Rock Hall and Betterton, each located on water and with the proper co-operation from the town boards and citizens, means and appliances, at little expense may be installed which will insure these communities a degree of protection which they do not now enjoy. Officers and members of the fighting force of Chestertown's Volunteers have conferred with the town Commissions of the above named towns and suggested a plan for co-operation, it now rests with citizens to back up the town boards that their part of the program may be successfully effected.

A conference is scheduled for, this Wednesday evening with Mr. W. K. Hudson, President of The Tolchester Co., and Mr. J. Frank Wheatley, Supt., at Tolchester.

Last evening, Tuesday, the Fire Company, visited "Montebella Lake," the County home of Mr. Clinton E.
