IN OUR OPINION any law or any system of laws which allowed so personal a matter, as the mount of an individials income, to be purblished in the newspapers is about as great an infringement of personal rights as can well be contemplated. Under the present requirements of the law a tax payer must submit a report of his imcome to the public gaze and to the scrutiny of the curious.

Under this system, to be a law abiding citizen, it is necessary to make public the amount of this world's goods in dollars and cents which an individual has acquired during the preceding year. This is a matter which the average person guards as personal in the extreme and any legislation in our opinion,wh ich will do away with this plain and open violation of every precept of personal rights will be welcomed by the right thinking people of this country. As a newspaper we believe in publicity, but not such publicity which throws open to the public, matters which violate the self respect of law abiding and respected citizens.
