TRAGEDY STALKS ABROAD IN KENT COUNTY

Well-Known Chestertown Truck Driver Falls From Load of Piping and Dies--Other Gruesome Deaths and Accidents

Grim Tragedy, ever stalking throughout the land looking for its chance, reaped a harvest of death in this section this week. First came the news on Wednesday that a well-known Chestertown man had, without warning, fallen before death's merciless dart. In full possession of his health, possessing all the mental and physical capabilities of vigorous manhood, he was suddenly flung headlong into eternity. Hardly had the news of this tragedy reverbrated throughout the fourth district, when a colored man, after making remarks that might follow him relentlessly before a tribunal of justice, runs over a colored woman with an auto and sends her reeling into future existence. Verily tragedy is having its innings, but has not concluded its stark and grisly endeavors. A pistol, in the hands of a colored man between Pondtown and Millington, following a slight altercation, suddenly explodes, and the feeble tapers of another candle, called life, is snuffed out. This would seem to about end the chapter of tragedy's efforts and would, apparently, fill to the full its cup of fiendish joy. But no, tragedy has not concluded its toll, and, down the Shore an automobile trips death's trap and into the opening goes another human being, without preparation, but, nevertheless, compelled to take that gruesome journey we all must take as we reach the sunset of our lives. And thus tragedy had its fill and, basking in its gruesome sunshine, it calmly surveys the fearful havoc it has wrought.

Nestling in a beautiful Kent county valley, encompassed with hills strouded with fall flowers, the creek known as Urieville Mill Stream, on the State Road about four miles from Chestertown, was the scene of a gruesome tragedy on Wednesday afternoon at about 3.45 p. m.

In this chronicle of death, Mr. H. M. Rollison, one of Chestertown's most well known truck owners and drivers, was the victim. Mr. Rollison was riding upon a truck load of steel piping for the State Roads Commission, to be used under the state road at the Urieville Mill sream, at which point the bridge will be eliminated.

It seems that Mr. Rollison had made this ride of death almost to the point of destination for his cargo, when he was caught by a wire brace for a telephone pole and hurled to the ground about twenty feet below, breaking his neck and crushing his skull. He died instantly.

Coroner Dodd went to the scene almost immediately and pronounced the death due to accident.

Mr. Rollison is well known in Chestertown, where he has many friends. He was a man of tireless energy and was always ready to do his work at any time of the year. His untimely death is a blow to the community.

On Thursday morning at about one o'clock, the death of Daisy Broadway, a young colored woman of Quaker Neck, occurred on Kent street, Chestertown, when Andrew Henry, also colored, of Georgetown, ran her down with an automobile as she was crossing the above named road. It seems that a dance had been held in the colored Knights of Pythias Hall and was about over when the accident occurred which caused her death. After the accident, Henry made for the country and failed to return home during the night. Early Thursday morning, Sheriff Goodman was somewhat surprised when Henry's father, Asbury Henry, arrived at the County Jail with his son in charge and turned him over to the custody of the county Sheriff.

In the meantime, the Sheriff had flung a veritable ring of steel throughout this section in order to apprehend the man and the authorities were on a lookout for him at all points leading from this Peninsula.

There are many reports regarding the death of Daisy Broadway, as to what Henry had said before, concerning his former sweetheart, who had refused to dance with him during the dance on Wednesday night. These, however, we will not attempt to either chronicle or verify, but will leave them for the proper authorities to bring before the tribunal of justice at the proper time.

A coroner's jury was called on Thursday morning, which met in the afternoon of the same day and rendered a verdict that held Henry responsible for the death of the colored woman through reckless driving.

On Tuesday evening a killing occured between Pondtown and Millington, in Queen Annes County. Two colored men engaged in an altercation and in the fight which followed, one of them was shot by a pistol and killed. We understand that the one responsible for the other's death has not been apprehended, and we are unable to find out the particulars concerning the death. Suffice us to say, we would suggest that the Queen Anne's County authorities get busy and find out the guilty parties and administer to them that speedy justice that will make for the safety of their own county, and also of that portion of Kent County which borders upon Queen Anne's.

Walter L. Main Show Here

The billboards and dead walls about the city are announcing that the famous Walter L. Main Shows are to visit Chestertown Monday, September 14. Great interest attaches to the event, particularly so because the big show is one of the few tented exhibitions offering an array of trained wild animals. The Walter L. Main Shows for nearly half a century, to be exact, 46 years, have stood at the top among the high-class shows.

Beginning as a small wagon show, each year has seen a steady growth. Until today the mere announcement of the appearance of the Walter L. Main Shows is synonymous with the fact that the patrons will see a clean, high-class entertainment, free from objectionable features, embodying all that is great and entertaining in the realm of the "white tops."

A special train of double length railroad cars will bring the big show here. The big show represents an expenditure of more than $750,000. There are upwards of 700 men, women and horses with the show; almost ten acres of tents; a herd of elephants; a caravan of camels; one of the most interesting traveling menageries; five bands of music, scores of curiosities and oddities from the four corners of the world.

There will be two performances at 2 and 8 P. M., the doors opening at and 7 P. M. A concert of popular a operatic music will be given by Pr John Griffin's military band an hou preceding each performance. An im mense street parade will be seen on the downtown streets at noon on show day.
