WHERE ARE THE BUCKWHEATS

OLD-FASHIONED BREAKFAST MEAL FAST FADING INTO ANTIGUITY AND BEING REPLACED BY OTHER EATABLES

What has become of the old-fashioned buckwheat cakes? The cold snap last week recalled the days when the home laid in a large bag of real buckwheat and every morning hot cakes were brought to the table piled high and steaming. One recalls the real old stack of buckwheat cakes made from real buckwheat flour, the batter for which was started early in the fall and a little left in the jar after each cooking to start the next batch to properly fermenting. Is the old-time buckwheat cakes of that texture and flavor a lost art?

There is as much difference between the buckwheat cakes made from real buckwheat and those made from so-called buckwheat flour as there is between Peckinpaugh's fielding during the season and in the World's series. The old-time buckwheat cake, properly spread with butter and set afloat in a sea of genuine maple syrup, was a work of art. The taste was not its only proof of genuineness. A long season of buckwheat cakes for breakfast brought on a species of rash that proved the genuineness of the product. But what was the annoyance of an itching sensation in unreachable spots compared with the gustatory joys to be found in the old-fashioned buckwheat cake and its corrollary, maple syrup?

It is not enough that the buckwheat cake of long ago be vicariously preserved in song and story. It should be revived, or should we say resurrected and given a place of honor on every breakfast table. Whether it contains its needed complement of vitamines and calories is beside the question. It is worthy of adoration for its own sake.

By all means order a bag of real buckwheat flour and revive the age-old custom of hot bucks in the morning with the country sausage for which Kent has been famous for many, many years.

WITNESSED SEA PLANE [illegible]RACES

Crashing through the air at the greatest speed ever attained in a seaplane, Lieut. James H. Doolittle, United States Army contender Monday won the Jacques Schneider Cup race at Bay Shore Park and broke three world records for this type of flying craft. The winner's average speed over the 350-kilometer course was 232.573 miles an hour—more than 55 miles an hour faster than the winning time in the last cup race and almost 44 miles an hour faster than the world's record, established over the same course last year by Lieut. George T. Cuddihy, United States Navy. Capt. Hubert Broad, Great Britain's only contestant, finished second with an average speed of 199.169. H. Giovanni de Brigantl, flying for Italy, was third with an average speed of 168.444 miles per hour. These races were witnessed by many Kent people who were aboard the bay ferries flying to and from Baltimore.

DIPHTHERIA IN THIS SECTION

Outbreaks of diphtheria in different parts of the State since the opening of the schools in September, have focused attention on the importance of immunizing children against diphtheria so that they may be protected against this dread disease. Figures given out by Dr. R. H. Riley, Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases of the State Department of Health, show that during the first six weeks after the schools were opened this Fall, 133 cases of diphtheria were reported in contrast with 98 cases during the corresponding period in 1924. "Diphtheria is one of the diseases in which we cannot afford to take any chances," said Dr. Riley. "The germs are spread from the throat and nasal discharges of a person who is ill with diphtheria, or who is a 'carrier' of diphtheria germs. 'Carriers' are persons who though not sick themselves, carry the germs in their noses and throats, and transmit the disease when coughing or sneezing.

REDS GRANGE SHOWING BROTHER HOW TO CARRY BALL.

—Reds Grange, star back-field man of University of Illinois, will draw thousands today, to Franklin Field, Philadelphia, where Illinois and University of Pennsylvania stage their intersectional classic. Reds is known thru-out the football world as a great ground-gainer and has made runs that will go down in the history of the game.

SPORTING EVENTS OF A WEEK.

Washington Again Loses to Superior Team---One-Time Big Three Shot to Pieces Again ---Other Notes of Sporting Realm.

Washington College went away out of its class again on Saturday last and suffered another inevitable defeat. The Navy was far too strong for them in every department of the game and they never had a chance from whistle to whistle. The score was 37 to 0.

The game was played upon a sloppy field in a downpour of rain almost continually and marked the first appearance of a Washington College team against one representing the United States Military Academy. A good crowd watched the game throughout the contest. With the exception of Osborn, the full Navy strength was put against Washington.

The Washington team was unable to hold Navy during the first period and they scored three touchdowns in rapid succession. Washington was on the offensive but once in this quarter.

Although Navy continued to play all around Washington the second period, there was no scoring. Owsley sent in his first-string subs and Washington managed to hold them off somewhat better, but could not make any headway when they had the ball. The period was marked by several exchanges of punts, Navy having the advantage in kicking. The players were floundering about in the mud.

Navy returned for the second half with all regulars back in the line-up, with Shapley, Flippen and Banks alternating in carrying the ball.

Two more touchdowns were scored. Shapley made one on a double pass and the other on a 14-yard end run. The tries for point failed.

The one-time "immortal three" of football, which at one time dominated the game completely, was given its weekly trimming on Saturday. Harvard was literally torn to shreds by Dartmouth, and were always completely out of the running, while Colgate, with Tyron starring, blanket Princeton to the tune of 9-0. Verily the mighty have fallen!

Today is a big day in the football world. Red Grange comes to the great Franklin Field gridiron with Illinios to play Penn, while Army and Yale will again hook up in annual debate on the field. A great many from Chestertown will go to Philadelphia for the game. At the same time Navy, one of the East's best team, will take on Michigan, conqueror of Illinois. These are six of the country's best teams.

The Army's victory over Notre Dame by a heavy margin proves the strength of Coach McEwan's star eleven, and Yale against Penn showed what the Blue had in reserve after being almost annihilated by an early unexpected offense of fine speed, deception and power.

The Navy-Michigan game will be just as spectacular. Jack Owsley now has one of the best Navy teams in many years, and Michigan's rating is high in a land of much football strength This latter contest will be another fine intersectional feature.

Notre Dame's defeat by the Army brings up a point which many have overlooked. The coach is important, but he isn't the entire circus. The football players are still part of the game. There is no invincible system of coaching if the material isn't there. And today there are so many good coaches that the final answer usually rests with the material far more than it does with the coach. If the coaching was more important than the material football would be a pretty poor game.

Washington College will play George Washington University at Washington today, Saturday. The real statues of Washington at present is somewhat below far.

Captain Kelley, the big center on the Chestertown eleven, has been out of the game since the fracas with Loyola two weeks ago. Dumschott, halfback, also has been ailing and wasn't able to get into the battle at Annapolis last Saturday. It is not certain the he will be in condition to play even a part of the game against George Washington. Then as a crowning calamity, Jake Reiger, stocky legged little left end, broke a bone in his wrist by tackling Alan Shapley, the hard-running Navy star, during the contest with the Sailors. Mike Fiore substituted for Reiger, and he, too, was hurt. With all these hardships coming at once Coach Kibler's team will have hard sledding against George Washington.

On next Saturday, November 7, Mt St. Mary's College will play Washington College on Washington Field Football fans from all over the shore should gather here to see the last game of the season here. This game should be a good one. Last year Washington swamped Mt. St. Mary's and they will be here fighting hard to win back the last laurek of last year.

While it is the habit of sports writers generally to belittle Harry Wills, negro champion, whenever possible, there is no disputing the fact that he has real ability in the ring. Ring records show this and his easy victory over Floyd Johnson only goes to further strengthen his claim. Our opinion is that the reason Dempsey has not fought him long ago is because he is afraid to risk his title.

TOWN RELIEF ELECTS OFFICERS

ASSOCIATION, ORGANIZED SOME YEARS AGO, PREPARING TO DO MORE EFFECTIVE WORK

The Town Relief Association have elected officers and will, no doubt, become more active in the civic affairs of the town and to this end effected a reorganization of the staff by electing the following officers: President, Mrs. Gertrude C. Rote; vice-president, Miss Augusta Cannan; secretary, Miss Daisy Barnes, and treasurer, Mrs. W. Bradford Copper.

In late years the association has quietly devoted its attention to works of charity and while that work has been effective many had received the impression the organization had been allowed to laps into a condition of inactivity because no visible results of its efforts had been noticed.

New life is being injected into the affairs of the organization by the few members who constitute its personnel and these evidences of rejuvenation are becoming manifest in well-founded rumors that the association is debating the question of conducting a campaign to erect one of three very much needed improvements in the town—a hospital, an aged people's home or a permanent and modernly equipped health center for the treatment of communicable diseases. For several years past there has been in the treasury of the association a sum which may be used to further one of the three purposes suggested.

The members of the association have assumed the postion of allowing public sentiment to crystallize around one of the three suggested improvements and subsequently to direct its efforts to interesting the people of the town and county in the creation of the necessary fund for either project.

ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

TWO WHITE MEN TAKEN INTO CUSTODY CHARGED WITH NUMEROUS THIEFTS

Two white men were arrested by local officers this week on the charge of numerous thefts.

John Wright, a white man, in the employ of Walter T. Bennett, was arrested on the charge of robbing the hardware store of William M. Culp here on Saturday night of two automatic revolvers, several smaller pistols, pocket knives and cartridges, all of which were recovered following Wright's arrest.

Malcolm Bailey, also white, was arrested on the charge of stealing three overcoats from people said to live in Easton, the arrest following an attempt by Bailey to sell one of the overcoats here.

The store of Kirby & Chance, bakers, located under the lobby of the Voshell House, was robbed the same night of a quantity of cakes, pies and confections.

The hen roost of Capt. Polk T. DeCorse in another secton of the town was also robbed of fifteen of his best hens the same night, and these thefts with others recently have led the authorities to believe that a gang of thieves is at work here.

There were no session of the Court on Saturday.

MONDAY

State vs. John R. Lynch. Transcript from record of Caroline County Court. Charged with forgery. Plea not guilty. Jury trial. S. S. Beck and W. E. Thawley for State; Wm. F. Russell, Jr., H. W. Vickers, J. F. Owens, W. J. Richards for Lynch. This case occupied all of Monday.

TUESDAY

On Tuesday the case of State vs. John R. Lynch, which occupied the attention of the court all of Monday was resumed, and occupied all of this day also.

WEDNESDAY

The case of State vs. John K. Lynch was resumed on Wednesday morning, and all the evidence was heard by noon. The afternoon session was devoted to the argument by the six attorneys for the state and for the defense. At the conclusion of the same the jury, after being out for about fifteen minutes, rendered a popular verdict of "not guilty." This was one of the most important cases heard in the Kent Court in many years. It was a case of brother being arrayed against brother, and sister against sister, as brothers had married sisters. It was charged that John R. Lynch had signed his brother's name to a note in his own favor for about $7000. John K. Lynch claimed that he did so with his brother's permission, which was denied by him. The charge of forgery was then brought in. The case had been heard before in Caroline county, where the parties involved lived, and the jury had disagreed on the verdict. Mr. Lynch and his wife were both over sixty years of age and presented a somewhat pitiful spectacle in their hour of trouble. The sympathy of the whole community almost was in their favor.

State's Attorney W. E. Thawley opened the case for the state. While his manner was not of that pleasing kind which appeals to audiences such as was his, his arguments were forceful and logical. He was followed by States Attorney S. S. Beck of Kent County. Mr. Beck can always be depended upon to do justice in full and rounded measure to any case whenever he arises for the occasion. Cool, collected, resourceful, he pointed out the flaws of the defense, showed the dangers of precedent for a man to be allowed to go free upon the claim that he had endorsed a note with another's permission.

For the defense, Wm. Frazier Russell, Jr., opened the case. He delivered a masterly and eloquent appeal for the return to freedom of his client. He spoke of his early boyhood and his struggles of youth and early manhood, and, finally, of how he had acquired reputation for honesty, how he stood high in the estimation of his fellows, and how he had rendered real service to the community in which he had made his home for over half a century. During Mr. Russell's speech many of the audience were in tears, while some of the jurymen were also. H. W. Vickers, Ex-States Attorney for Kent County for eight years, closed the argument for the defense. Mr. Vickers spoke for about an hour in a most forceful manner. He showed a most thorough knowledge of the case and the law regarding the same and was frequently most eloquent in his appeal for his client. J. F. Owens and W. J. Owens, of Caroline, also made strong appeals for Mr. Lynch.

The case, taken as a whole, created more interest that any in the entire term of court, and large crowds heard it throughout, and were particularly interested in the argument of the attorneys.

THURSDAY

The case of State vs. Andrew Henry was then called. This is the case where the accused ran over a colored girl, a former sweetheart, near Calvert and Kent street, several months ago, and was then supposed to have attempted to get away, but returned. It was charged that he had made threats, etc., against the woman formerly in the evening, but the state was unable to prove its case. S. Scott Beck represented the State; H. W. Vickers represented the accused. He was found not guilty. This case created considerable local interest especially among the colored people, many of whom were called to the witness stand, who gave their evidence in their own fashion.

FRIDAY

Eva C. S. Frazier vs. F. A. North Co. Transcript form Cecil county. This case began on Thursday and ended on Friday. The case was compromised. The local cousel were H. W. Vickers for the former; S. S. Beck for the latter.

When we went to press the session had practically concluded and it was quite likely that court would adjourn by night.

TO KEEP BELOW BAG LIMIT

GAME WARDEN ISSUES TIMELY CALL TO TRUE SPORTMANSHIP AND ASKS THAT HUNTERS HELP PRESERVE GAME

We have always insisted that the true sportsman is the man who will get a maximum amount of pleasure from the killing of a minimum amount of game. This has not, so far as we know, ever been disputed but few pay any attention to it, however. The time as arrived now when hunters will either observe this or else will have no game to kill.

A subject that concerns the entire State and has to do with the future even more than the present is that of conservation, in whatever manner it may be presented.

Chiefly it deals with food. The latest call for conservation is a very wise one, and is against a needless waste. The State game warden, E. Lee LeCompte, has issued a request to all Maryland hunters to refrain from killing the daily "bag limit." To kill just for the sake of killing is not true sportsmanship. To kill beyond the limit is no sportmanship at all. It is the part of the "brag." Perhaps Mr. LeCompte is tactfully warning the limit" hunters, as well as expecting the true hunter to remember others and a future day in refraining from the "daily bag limit."

All kinds of game is very scarce in Maryland, and the cause is ruthless slaughter in the past. Other game is becoming scarce. It is the part of wisdom to spare for another day's shooting or another year's season.
