NEWS OF SPORTS

BASKETBALL SEASON RESUMED TONIGHT—OTHER SPORT NEWS

The basketball season at Washington College will be resummed tonight when the University of Maryland Dental School team will play Washington College will be resumed tonight team has a particularly good team and should make Washington College hustle.

The South came to the forefront in the football world Saturday when they defeated the University of Washington, 20-19, in one of the greatest games of the year. Washington was the leading team of the coast. In our judgement, Alabama has a just claim to the chaimpionship team of the entire collegiate world.

Dempsey continues to dodge all contenders for his crown. This will doubtless continue until Father Time, or perhaps a lack of money, will force him into the area.

McAuliffe will doubtless be in the line-up for Washington shortly.. He is a flash on the floor and will be a big asset to the great College five.

NEARLY HALF MILLION DOLLARS PAID OUT IN DEATH GLAIMS IN ONE DAY.

Nearly half a million dollars, paid in a single day in death claims recently by Modern Woodmen of America, probably establishes a record for organizations doing a life insurance business. It was the largest single day's mortuary disbursement ever made by this Society, exceeding even that during the influenza epidemic in 1918.

Head Banker O. E. Aleshire of Chicago, through whose office all death claims are paid, in formally notifying Head Clerk J. G. Ray at Rock Island of the exceptional record made, said:

"You will be interested to know that on Monday, November 23, I paid in death claims $454,667.05. So far as I know this is the largest payment ever made by the Society in a single day. I doubt, indeed, if this amount has been often, if ever, equaled by any insurance organization.. During the flu epidemic I paid out a million dollars in three days in the month of January, but the largest amount paid in any one day was $350,000."

Death claims paid by Head Banker Aleshire for the month of November numbered 981 and amounted to $1,680,656, which was not unusually high, but circumstances combined to throw nearly a third of the month's total business upon the disbursing office in a single day.

President Shanahan and Rotarians Harris, Jefferson, Marshall and Fogle represented the Easton Club at the meeting and dinner There are over 2000 Rotary Clubs all over the world with more than 100,000 members.

FAMOUS MEN BORN IN JANUARY

The battle of New Orleans was fought January 8, 1815, after the peace of Ghent had been made. Had the Atlantic cable been in existence, the engagement would not have occured.

Robert E. Lee and Edgar Allan Poe were born on January 19—the first in 1807, the second in 1809.

Benjamin Franklin and James C Dobbin were born January 17, a long interval separating the versatile genius from the brilliant orator and diplimatist.

Stonewall Jackson was born January 21, 1824. Prof. Basil L. Gildersleeve, the foremost classical scholar and expositor ever born in America, died January 9, 1[illegible].

Victoria the last of the queen regents, whose reign was the longest in English history, died January 22, 1901.

This list is by no means complete. It is intended merely to suggest and stimulate more extended study and research.

HOG CHOLRA IN STATE

SUMMARY OF THE OUTBREAKS OF HOG CHOLERA IN MARYLAND DURING DECEMBER, 1925

The disease was reported to exist on 22 promises during the month, against 24 a year ago, and a 6 average of 33 for the same period. 19 were classed as primary and 3 as secondary. 7 were of the back-yard type, that it, a few hogs kept in small pens. 15 occurred on farms where hogs are bred and raised.

Charles County set the stage for a killing and led with 4 outbreaks. Kent tied Harford for second place with 3. Cecil, Howard and Somerset were in third place with 2 each, while Anne Arundel, Caroline, Montgomery, Prince George, Queen Anne, and Worcester got in the score with 1 apiece.

Of the primary outbreaks, 14 were apparently due to infected pork in garbage, table scraps, kitchen swill, etc., while 5 were due to the purchase of infected hogs. Of the secondary outbreaks, 2 were due to permitting hogs to run at large, and coming in contact with sick hogs, while in 1 case no history could be obtained to determine how the hogs obtained the infection.

On the premises where hog cholera was reported to exist during the month, there were 363 hogs. However, [illegible] of these were dead and 63 others

MUSKRAT SEASON IN KENT BEGINS.

Season Promises To Be One Of Profit To Those Having Good Marshes

Friday last was the opening day of what promises to be a most promising muskrat season.

Owing to the high prices at which the fur of these little animals has been sold in recent years there has been a great temptation to violate the law, with the result that heavy penalties have been imposed upon some of those who failed to observe its provisions. While the law may seem severe it is necessary for the preservation of this game.

That part of the State statues relating to the killing or catching of muskrats provides that no person or persons shall shoot or in any manner kill or catch, except by gigging or trapping any muskrats or otter, and it shall be unlawful for any person in Maryland to dig into or in any manner molest or destroy the roof or any it shall further be unlawful for any person or corporation to have within part of a muskrat house or den. And his or its possession any muskrat hide or skin that has been shot or killed in any other manner except by trapping or gigging and any muskrat perforated with small holes shall be prima facia evidence that it was shot.

The muskrat is an aquatic rodent that lives in the banks of rivers, creeks, or other bodies of water, or n houses made of mud or grass that it build, on the marsh. It yields a valuable fur, which, as an article of commerce, is generally in good demand.

These little animals subsist on the oots of grass they find in the marshes, and are noted for their cleanliness, as they wash the roots before eating them. After the hide has been removed the 'meat' is not unpalatable for ood usually sells at a profitable price. For many years under the enticing name of "marsh rabbit" it has been served as a luxury in hotels, restaurants, and on the tables of private homes.

One of the most usual methods of trapping them is to place the trap t the bottom of the "lead" that e traverses in going from the creek to his home in the bank or on the marsh. This industry requires but little capital and the open season ocurs at a time when farmers and others living in the country have leisure time, and as a result many engage in this business and derive therefrom quite a handsome income.

THE AMERICAN FLAG SUITABLE EMBLEM

Will Be Official Flag At The Suspuicentenial In Philadelphia.

When the question of selecting a suitable flag for the Sesquicentennial International Exposition arose it became at once evident that because of the nature of the event which the Exposition was to celebrate only one standard could properly be used. This was the flag of the United States of America.

With a few exceptions, our flag is the oldest in the world. It has stood substantially the same for nearly 150 years, while in other lands national emblems have changed as empires have fallen and vast political upheavals brought with them new banners to claim the allegiance of the populace.

Contrary to general belief the flag of the United States was not an inspired creation. It was formed from the continental Union flag by substituting in the canton a circlet of thirteen stars for the two crosses—St. George's and St. Andrew's—of Britian. The stripes were already there.

George Washington described its making thus: "We take the star from Heaven; the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her; and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

In the coat of arms of Washington there were, curiously, both stars and tripes represented, and many historians have sought to establish a connection between this and the conception of the flag. Except for the coincidence, not a scrap of evidence has ever been discovered to support this theory, however, attractive as it is.

It was a year after the signing of the Declaration of Independence that the first legislation for the flag was enacted. On June 14, 1777, now celebrated by us as Flag Day, Congress, sitting in Philadelphia, adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; and the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

This was the first official step toward the adoption of our national emblem. The resolution was officially published in August and the design first promulgated by Congress on September 3rd. Where it was first displayed is still a question of dispute, but it flew in the breeze at the battle of Brandywine on September 11th, at Germantown on October 4th, and in all subsequent encounters. The connection of Betsy Ross with it is a beloved legend enshrined in the hearts of school children.

In the spring of 1795, two more states having been added to the Union, the circle of thirteen stars was changed to a square of fifteen to include the new states. In this form it remained for twenty-three years, and so it was when it inspired Francis Scott Key to write the immortal anthem of the Star Spangled Banner which has become inseparable from it in the thought of Americans.

The last modification of the flag was in 1818 when, the number of states having grown to twenty, and additional ones foreseen in the future, President Monroe signed an act to the effect that every new state admitted into the Union would be recognized on the 4th of July following its admission by the addition of a new star to the flag.

The bill was signed on April 14, 1818, and in the 108 years that have passed twenty-eight more stars have appeared in the blue field, but otherwise our flag has not changed.

MANY BUSINESS FAILURES

According to the records of the Wilmington office of R. G. Dunn and Company, there were 81 business failures on the Delmarvia Peninsula during the year of 1925, as compared with 108 for the year 1924, 97 for the year of 1923, 128 for 1922 and 138 during the year 1921.

It is gratifying to note that the Peninsula has suffered 27 less failures in 1925 than in 1924, but on the other hand the percentage of assets and liabilities shows the 1925 failures to be more disastrous; in 1924, 97 failures showed assets of $844,774.65, liabilities of $1,375,782.95, or much more than two to one, while in 1925, 81 failures showed assets of $473,975.10 and liabilities of $972,437.53 or a proportion of less than two to one.

The above total of failures do not include a number of corporations formed under Delaware laws and maintaining a legal registered office here but whose actual, active finincial and business headquarters are situated elsewhere, although petitions in bankruptcy or receivership may have been instituted in the local courts.

The total number of failures in Delaware for the past five years have been as follows: In 1920 23, 1921 93, 1922 76, 1923 55, 1924 59, and 1925 43.

TO IMPROVE PUBLIC PARK.

Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, P. M. Brooks, and Thomas D. Bowers, representing a committee appointed by the Chestertown Business Men's Association, met with the Chestertown Commissioners on Monday evening for the purpose of devising plans for the improvement of the public square.

Years ago a number of ladies of the town transferred a rubbish heap into one of the most beautiful parks on the shore with a fountain of running water in the center. Years of wind and storm have distroyed this fountain and today it is an eye-sore to the park. The trees have grown large and their shade has killed the green sod, and instead of being a beauty spot it is just a park.

The business men and the town Commissioners together with the expected support from the citizens are going to try to bring this park back to the beauty it once was, and thereby give Chestertown one of its most needed improvements. The suggestion has been made that the fountain be replaced with a memorial to those who gave their services in the late war. If this plan is carried out help is expected from the various patriotic and civil organizations of the town.
