COW A BIG PRODUCER.

MAKE ANIMAL PAY YOU WAGES. ADVICE TO MARYLAND FARMERS

How to make the cow pay you wages on a bigger scale to make a bigger profit is explained in a bulletin issued recently for the benefit of Maryland farmers by the Larrow Institute of Animal Economics. To ascertain exactly the hourly wage each cow is paying for the labor and care expended on her, just deduct the total expendi tures from the total receipts of each cow and divide the difference by the number of hours of labor expended on her during the year.

On one of four neighboring farms where careful records had been kept it was brought to light that not only did the farmer receive no wages for the time spent on his cows, but that it actually cost him 12 cents an hour each to have them hang around his place n the other three instances, the farmers were paid at the rate of 6, 42 and 48 cents per hour for the time and abor spent on each of their cows. The two lots of cows bringing home the attest pay envelopes were better bred than the others, although the right kind of feed and better care would have done much toward making the others profitable employees. The amount of milk produced annually by each of the cows was found to have a direct relation to the number of hours of labor and the care which they received, in each instance the animals with better care producing the great est income.

It is a costly error for the farmer who uses family labor to assume that whatever the cow produces is all to the good, according to the Institute He should not be satisfied until his careful record keeping indicates that he is receiving at least current wages or his efforts. The record will further point out to him the unprofitable members of his herd, and these he should aim to replace with animals that will produce on an average of 250 to 235 pounds of butterfat each year. With he non-producers cut out and the good stock left put on balanced rations and given proper care, there will be no reason why the farmer should not receive a full pay envelope from each ow in his dairy herd.

BUICK SEDANS AFFORD FINER TRANSPORTATION

Every day the American public becomes better acquainted with the Better Buick.

The capacity of the great Buick factories is taxed to supply the demand.

The Better Buick 5-passenger, 4-door and 2-door sedans are good illustrations of the reasons for Buick's accelerated popularity.

These sed boo are real sedans with Fisher car and striking Buick closed corner lines. Graceful. No harsh ation on ywhere. Objects of admir levard and high- way. Upholstery of finest quality. Interio r refinemen luxurious and complet

And these fine bodies ride on the famous Buick chassis, with all the modern improvements and refinements introduced by the Better Buick.

The only similarity to "coaches," and other low-priced closed-car types is price. Come in and compare these sedans before you spend your money. Here is finer transportation at lower cost.—The N-B-R Motor Co., local dealers, Chestertown, Md.

LOCATING A CONFLAGRATION

According to a statement made by Chief Fred Russell, inhabitants of Chestertown will shortly be able to determine immediately the location of a fire when the siren blows. The town will be laid off in zones and after the siren stops blowing, taps of the ire bell will indicate the zone in which it is located.

Printed cards will be placed in every home, explaining in detail just how o determine the location by the number of taps sounded.

LOCAL FIREMEN HOLD BANQUET

Event Marks Opening of Remodled Engine House---May Be Annual Event

The Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company held a banquet on Tuesday evening of this week, about 120 active members honorary members and guests being present. A delightful dinner was served by the Parent-Teachers Association, after which many interesting short talks were made by guests and members.

Mr. William G. Smyth, president of the fire company presided ond short talks were made by Rev. N. O. Gibson, Wm. G. Smith, Mr. Slutz, chief of Wilmington Fire Dept.; F. S. Russell, chief Chestertown Volunteer Fire Co.; and Mr. Fowler.

Rev. Mr. Gibson praised the active members for their work of the past. Mr. Wm. G. Smyth gave an interesting talk on the work of the company. Mr. Slutz, of Wilmington, gave a very interesting account of his relations with he Wilmington Volunteer Fire Co., of which he has been a member for twenty-five years, until it become a paid department three years ago. He pointed out that fire prevention is more important than fire protection and is something that everyone can assist it whether young or old. The Wilmington Company has established an inspection system in which the firemen at various intervals inspect homes and business houses, looking for fire traps, etc.; in doing this the per capata loss to Wilmington through fire has been reduced from $26 to $1.60. This is one of the many interesting and helpful facts that Chief Slutz told his audience. Chief Fred Russell was then called upon and he briefly told of the activities of the year 1925.

One of the most amusing features of the occasion was the response made by Mr. William Fowler when asked to give a history of fire protection in Chestertown. He told of the forming of a new fire company after every fire protection failed, but the laugher changed to cheers when he told of the forming of a company by the late Thomas D. France, of how the men worked at night molding concrete blocks and building the present building, which company was the parent of the present efficient Volunteer Fire Company of Chestertown.

DID EFFECTIVE WORK

Mr. George Chairs, while returning from Galena one day this week, saw a chimney on fire in one of the colored homes near Davis Hill. Mr Chairs went into the house and made an investigation. He found an aged colored woman lying helpless on the floor. He assisted her to a chair and extingueshed the blaze. Had not Mr. Chairs acted promptly and effectively, the house would very likely have burned and the colored woman with it.

WEDDING NOTES

Powell—Tillingame

A very pretty wedding took place at he home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tillingame in Chesapeake City, Md., on Saturday, February 27th, when their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, became the bride of Mr. Hiram Clarke Powell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram C. Powell, Sr., of near Middletown, Delaware. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles Robey, of Havre De Grace, Md., a former pastor of the bride's home church at Sassafras, Md.

As the clock chimed two, the bridal party entered the living room which was tastefully decorated with laure and hyacinths. The lights being draped with pink, cast a soft shadow over the entire room. Miss Margaret Harrington, of Chesapeake City, Md. skillfully played the Lohengrin wedding march. Mrs. Howard Tillingame of near Middletown, Del., a sister-in aw of the bride, was matron of honor. Miss Kathryn Thornton, of Middletown, Del., was bridesmaid, Messrs. Howard Tillingame, of near Middletown, Del., and John Tillingame, of Chesapeake City, brothers of the bride were ushers. Mr. George Titter of Church Hill, Md., a boyhood friend of he groom, was best man. The bride ntered the living room on the arm of he groom. She was gowned in a white atin back crepe with slippers and tockings to match and carried a ride's bouquet of white roses. Miss Thornton wore a blue satin back crepe with sliver slippers and stockings and carried pink roses. Mrs. Tillingame wore brown satin back crepe with slippers to match and carried sweet eas. The groom, best man and ushers wore suits of dark blue serge and butoniers of sweet peas. The ceremony was performed under an arch of laurel and hyacinths. The bride's traveling gown was of blonde satin, with shoes, hat and gloves to match. A reception was held immediately after the ceremony for the relatives and friends of the newly weds. The bride's former school students served at the reception. As the bride and groom were eaving for their honeymoon north, they found a large surprise awaiting hem at the door. They were showered with rice and confetti. The bridal car was profusely decorated with old ans and shoes. After March 1st, the ewly wedded couple will reside near Townsend, Del., where the groom is ngaged in farming.

Guests were present from, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Wilmington, Church Hill, Landenburg, Kennedyville, Middletown, Elkton, Warwick, Cecilton Earleville, Pivot, and Chesapeake City.

Kratzer won a leg on the cup with handicaps of 35.

NEW CRAB LAW FOR VIRGINIA

A crab law was passed in the Virginia Senate this week which will have a great effect on the crabbing industry of upper Chesapeake Bay and tributaries.

The bill sets aside about one third of the area of the lower Chesapeake bay as a sanctuary for mother crab nd dredging will be prohibited in this area for all time. This prohibited area lies along the eastern side of the bay.

Efforts have been made for some time by the Conservation Department of Maryland to get Virginia to pass a number of conservation measures for the protection of the mother crab Dredgers have been catching thousands f mother crabs daily in southern Chesapeake Bay waters and the effect has been that the crabbing industry in the northern part of the bay has almost become a thing of the past.

With the two states working together for the conservation of sea food in the Chesapeake Bay, the industry can be revived to equal that if years past.

CONGRESSMAN GOLDSBOROUGH TO SPEAK.

Congressman T. Alan Goldsborough will speak over the radio from Station WCAP, Washington, at Seven P. M. on Wednesday, March 17th. His subject will be "Some Aspects of the Tariff Question." Congressman Treadway, of Massachusetts, will be the campanion speaker for the evening.

SPORTING EVENTS OF THE WEEK

State Championship a Problem---Other Notes of Interest in Sports Realm.

Who is the state basketball champion? This question is causing much debate in sports circles.

Baseball's "old guard" despite the ttacks of time and the rookies, seems eady and able to hold its own as the najor league clans prepare among palm rees and orange groves for the 1926 eason.

A few of the veterans have given ground. Some others, such as Hank Gowdy, George Burns, Harry Hooper, Dickey Kerr and Bob Veach have passed from the big league picture. Most of them, however, appeared equipped o offset the challenges of youth. Seldom have the prospects for any season of recent years embraced as much dependence upon the "old reliables" as hey do for this year.

"The Big Four" of the old Guard the men who still are setting much of the pace after around a score of years in major league service, are Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins, Walter Johnson and Tris Speaker. They are the only stars under the "big top" today who were in fast company as far back as 1908.

Cobb is recovering from an eye operation which he expects to aid his batting vision for his twenty-second season. It wasn't so dim last year, when he hit for .378. Collins, starting his twenty-first year, still ranks among the greatest infielders, while also handling managerial reins. Speaker may not seem as far afield as he once did, but his batting eye is as good as ever. He just missed leading the eague last year. Johnson in his twentieth season is counted upon to win at least twenty games for the Senators.

The careers of the other veterans ive promise of blooming with scarcely less vitality. Zack Wheat, in his ighteenth season, is the oldest National Leaguer in point of consecutive service, yet he demanded and has received the highest salary of any Brooklyn player for 1926. Max Carey, captain of the pirates and hero of the world championship victory last fall tarts his sixteenth campaign, as does another "old master," Grover Cleveland Alexander of the Chicago Cubs.

Recruits have been acquired by the wholesale for the experimental processes in the south, but veterans are the keystones in most of the important hift made since last season. Brooklyn acquired Rabbit Maranville to plug an infield gap. Washington has obained Joe Bush, now in his fifteenth season, to reinforce a pitching staff already well supplied with veterans Wally Pipp, waived out of the American League in counted upon to fill Cincinnati's first base hole if he comes o terms.

Babe Ruth was all but "counted out" ast season after a siege of illness, followed by a poor playing year, but the ambino has whipped himself into condition for a banner campaign. He is 2 now and expects to stick to the big how until he is 40.

Most of these veterans are close to the 40 year mark now, an age when few athletes are able to withstand the attack of youth. Speaker, Cobb, Collins and Johnson average exactly 40.

Washington College defeated St Joseph's College of Philadelphia Saturday evening on the local floor before a large crowd. The score was 31. 22. This game ended the season at the college.

St. Joseph's started off with a bang an went into the lead in short order. Their offensive was sharp and sweeping and they handled the ball well and passed accurately and quickly. On the other hand, Washington was slow getting started and the visitors soon were looking good. But, before the first half was over Washington's scoring aggregation had gotten busy and began piling up points presistently. The first half ended with Washington leading by five points.

In the second half Washington gave St. Joseph's a bad beating and turned the contest into a one-sided game toward the close.

The contest, taken in its entirely was a most brilliant display of talent and was well worth seeing.

The Baltimore Sun has "won" the Maryland State Basketball Championship for Loyola College. And, then, after placing them at the head of the column, they have woven the laurel wreath of victory into a most beauteous crown and have laid this reverently upon their eager and willing eads. We gladly state that they have an equal claim to the state title as has Washington. This being true, why should not the two teams, each having won a victory, play it out and decide who is really the victor on a basketball floor, before a fair-mined audience, and not merely be satisfied to accept a hand-picked championship rom a partial newspaper. A championship is a mighty asset when snatched rom the glamor of contest, with other hands snatching eagerly for the glory. But it is empty of honor, and a useless void, when handed over after they have refused the chance to win a clean cut claim to the honor.

INTER-COLLEGIATE ORATORICAL CONTEST

TO BE HELD AT WASHINGTON COLLEGE LATTER PART OF APRIL

Professor W. R. Howell was in Baltimore on Saturday of last week in conference with professors of Public Speaking, of several Maryland colleges, in reference to an intercollegiate Oratorical Contest to be held t Washington College the latter part f next month. Keen competition in his contest assures that the best that he various colleges can afford will be n Chestertown, in April.

For the first time in the history of Washington College, the Freshman Class will stage a play at the college n the near future. Tryouts for dramatic ability were held Tuesday evening of this week. The play will be under the coaching of Miss Bahnie Wedekine.

Mr. L. C. Mackert, freshman football coach of the University of Maryland, was a visitor at Washington College this week.

Dr. Paul E. Titsworth spent Thursday and Friday of last week in Caroline county, lecturing to the schools there on "The Country of Sir Walter Scott." Lectures were given in Denon on Thursday and Greensboro on Friday. The lectures were illustrated.

Dr. Paul E. Titsworth was in Washington on Saturday of last week, looking into the possibility of establishing a summer school at Washington College for ministers on this peninsula. The present plan is to hold the school uring the week preceding registration n September.

The last edition of the Washington College Bulletin contained a map of he peninsula and many illustrations f the various industries.
