INJUNCTION IS REMOVED.

The injunction restraining the completion of the Voshell House addition was removed at a meeting of the Board of Town Commissioners on Tuesday Morning and the building will be completed. Several years age Mr. Eshman, the proprietor, be gan the erection of the building. Soon afterward it was found that the building extended over the town lines and an injunction was brought against the completion of the same. This state of affairs has existed ever since. The removal of the injunction settles a long, drawnoue contention.

KENT GIRLS TO COMPETE

LARGE PRIZES TO BE OFFERED FOR BEST MEAT STORY ESSAY

Girls in home economics classes at the Chestertown High School are taking a step forward in their study of the subject of meat. Not only are they learning all about this food but now they are going to write about it. The occasion is the Third National Meat Story Contest, an annual educational event conducted by the National Meat Story Contest, an annual educational event conducted by the National Live Stock and Meat Board.
Miss Estella Kersey, home economics instructor, recently requested the Board for the necessary entry blanks for the girls who will compete. She is of the opinion that her students stand an excellent chance of carrying off some of the major honors in the contest. Chief among the prizes are four aniversary scholarships, one to be awarded in each of the four districts into which the United States has been divided. The scholarship carries with it a cash award of $50.00, and the young lady who is selected as National Champion is to receive a total of $150.00 in cash aside from the scholarship. According to the contest regulations, the winner of a scholarship may select any college or university she desires.
Other attractive cash awards bring the total prizes to more than $2,100, it is said. Contestants are required to write a story or theme on some phase of the meat subject and submit with it three tested meat recipes.
The contest will come to a close on April 15. Stories then will be judged by a committee of prominent home economics authorities, and the names of winners will be made public on or about June 1. Dr. Louise Stanley, Chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, served as chairman of the judging committee in the two previous contests.

FARM BUREAU DAY AT TIMONIUM

Officials of Timonium Fair have named Wednesday, September 8th as Farm Bureau Day at the Fair this year. Announcement to this effect has been made in a communication received at the State Farm Bureau office by State Secretary-Treasurer, M. Melvin Stewart from M. L. Daiger, Secretary of the Maryland State Fair and Agricultural Society. This makes the tihrd successive year that the Farm Bureau in Maryland has been similarly honored, thereby giving the membership in the state an ideal opportunity to show something of its physical and numerical strength, to say nothing of its interest in the various agricultural exhibits and demonstrations to be seen there.

PINE AND SPRUCE TO BE PLANTED IN KENT

STATE FORESTRY DEPARTMENT TO COOPERATE WITH MRS. EVELYN HARRIS IN FOREST PLANTINGS ON MARCH 24

Loblolly pine seedlings are to be planted in Kent this month for future timber, and Norway spruce seedlings for Christmas trees, according to a statement from the State Forestry Department. It is possible to grow excellent Christmas trees from two year old seedling spruce trees in 8 to 10 years, Mr. F. W. Besley, the State Forester, stated; and Mrs. Evelyn Harris of Howell's Point Farm, near Betterton will set out a plantation of these trees as a demonstration of their value for such purposes. In addition, she is planting a badly washed field on her farm near Still Pond to young loblolly pine trees, the fastest growing tree on the Eastern Shore. Both of these plantings are to be supervised by a member of the State Forestry Department staff, and all interested persons are invited to attend them. March 24 has been set for the date of these demonstrations.
The loblolly pine seedlings will be two year old seedlings, not over 12 inches tall, according to Mr. Besley, and they will be planted in rows 6 feet apart, the spacing of the trees in the rows being 6feet also. This spacing will require 1200 trees per acre, and at a cost of $2.50 per thousand, it will not cost over $6.00 to plant an acre of these trees. The Norway spruce, it was stated, will be spaced 4 feet by 4 feet, and with cultivation for the first two years, will develop in well formed Christmas trees, which should retail for 75 cents each at 10 years of age, on the Baltimore market.
Anyone interested in this or in similar forest plantings should communicate with the State Forestry Department, at Baltimore, or with the County Agent, Mr. H. B. Derrick at Chestertown.

TREES FOR ROADSIDE PLANTING.

FURNISHED BY THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF FORESTRY

The State Forestry Department offers to furnish this spring a sufficient number of trees for planting 5 miles of improved, public highway. Four species of trees are available,—black walnut, black locust, cypress, and American elm. The trees will be distributed to responsible organization or individuals for planting not less than one-quarter mile, nor over one mile, on both sides of the highway. There must be sufficient space to place the trees within the right-of-way of the highway, and far enough from the center of the roadway to meet road requirements.
Applications will be filed in the order in which they are received, but preference will be given to the locations that are best adapted for tree planting and where the greatest public benefit will be secured. Prompt action is necessary as the planting season has already opened for southern Maryland. Full particulars and application forms will be sent upon request to the State Department of Forestry, 1411 Fidelity Building, Baltimore, Maryland.
The Forestry Department will examine locations where plantings are proposed, to determine their adaptibility for tree planting, and to what extent each meets requirements. In cases where planting is practicable a definite plan will then be prepared and submitted to the parties interested.

THIRTEEN-YEAR-OLD CHEVROLET DRIVEN 260,000 MILES.

A thirteen-year-old Chevrolet has been driven more than 260,000 miles by A. R. M. Stone, stationery broker of 6135 Wagner Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., who believes his machine is the oldest Chevrolet still in active service. The mileage represents more than 10 trips around the world.
Mr. Stone, a former locomotive engineer, purchased the car in 1913, the first year of Chevrolet production. The loss of a leg had incapacitated him for railroad work. In order to operate both the clutch and brake pedals with his one foot he connected them with a cross bar. This enabled him to throw out the clutch and apply the brakes in one operation. He drives from 60 to 70 miles daily within a radius of 40 miles of St. Louis.
Mr. Stone says he has replaced the car top and in addition has spent only $4 for replacement of parts. The Chevrolet has averaged 25 miles per gallon, he says. The car thus far has burned about 10,400 gallons of gasoline or approximately the capacity of two railroad tank cars.

—The firm of Jones & Satterfield have made a big improvement at their store on Cross street, near the depot. This progressive firm, to take care of their extension business, needed more room and decided to take in the rear building and improve same accordingly. This improvement has added to the attractiveness of their store and the efficiency of their organization.

WORK OF THE PUBLIC NURSE

How She Helps to Keep the Health of the Community Up to a Higher Standard.

The advent of the public health nurse in all of the counties of the state has led to numerous questions in regard to the status of the nurses in the communities they serve. "In some instances," said Miss C. Ethel Monroe, the Advisory Nurse of the State Department of Health, the mistake has been made of thinking that the public health nurse in some ways supplants the practicing physician. This is not the case.
"Public health nurses, like all other nurses are trained to assist physicians in their fight against disease. Just as a private duty nurse is an assistant to the physician in charge of the case she is nursing, so the public health nurse is an assistant to the physicians with whom she works. Any sick care that is given by the public health nurse, is given only when the patient is under medical care. The doctor's work is in the field of medicine. He diagnoses the case and prescribes the treatment that is to be followed. The nurse supplements the work of the physician by her knowledge of nursing. The physician tells the patient what to do; the nurse, at the request of the physician, goes into the home and shows the patient or the person who is taking care of him, how to do what has been ordered.
"In every part of her work, the doctor and the public health nurse are allies in the fight for health. For instance, in the work in the schools, after the physical examinations have been made by the health officer, the advice that is given to the parents of children in need of medical attention is 'Get in touch with your family physician.' The nurse gives her help then in carrying out the doctor's recommendations for the improvement of the children's health.
"When a nurse comes in contact with an expectant mother her advice is 'place yourself at once under medical supervision. Visit your physician. Get him to advise you in regard to your diet; to make the necessary examinations and to do all in his power to bring you through this ordeal safely.'
"The nurse is the physician's helper. The two work hand in hand for the promotion of health, the prevention of diease and the conservation of human life."

MAY BE A GOOD TOMATO SEASON

Reports Coming From Some Sections Do Not Necessarily Apply Here

Farm Bureau officials who have handled the tomato contract business during the past three years for the growers of this county, as well as the growers themselves, have been interested in reports emanating from the lower Shore counties relative to the dark outlook for profitable tomato prices the coming season.
Officials and growers are not certain that conditions in the canned goods market are as discouraging as reports from the lower section of the peninsula would indicate.
Their position is borne out by information which has come to bureau officials during the week and also from agents in this county of large packers in Baltimore.
William G. Smythe, secretary of the Kent Farm Bureau, stated that he has learned from the most reliable sources that one of the largest packing firms in Baltimore has disposed of its entire year's pack of tomatoes at a good profit and is in the market to buy large quantities of canned goods, which the firm has a profitable market. It is also a fact that one of the most prominent merchants in this county went to Baltimore recently and made a strong effort to purchase twenty or more cases of tomatoes at 85 cents a dozen, but failed and returned to officials of the Fairlee cooperative cannery, which has not yet sold its entire last year's output, offering to buy the same quantity at the price offered in Baltimore.
An agent of one of the largest packing houses in Baltimore, who buys immense quantities of tomatoes every year in this county, stated to Secretary Smythe that his firm had sold its entire last year's pack and is ready to contract again this year with the growers of the county and is willing to pay 25 cents a basket, which is equivalent to $15 a ton.
Secretary Smythe states that there is no fight on in Kent county between Farm Bureau officials and the packers of the State. On the other hand, Mr. Smythe believes that in many instances it is the growers' fault that no better contract prices are offered by the packers, due almost exclusively to the fact that a large number of growers persist in sending to market anything in the shape of a tomato, big and little, which practice has led the packers to take the shipment, but at the same time realizing the attitude of the grow take seriously into consideration when settling their contract price, the quality of the product the great majority of growers persist in shipping.

KENT FARM BUREAU.

KENT SOIL TO BE TESTED

The operations of the Kent County Farm Bureau have increased to such proportions that during the months of December, January, February and March a business of $30,000 has been handled by this organization. These figures were given out by Secretary William G. Smith.

Soil Tests

A program is now under way to test the farm land of Kent county, so that the soil can be properly treated with the proper ingredients to grow the maximum of money-making crops.
While these tests will be under the auspices of the Kent County Farm Bureau, it is not confined to Farm Bureau members, as anyone desiring a soil test can be included in this step toward better crops for Kent county. The Truox test for acidity will be made in the laboratories of the High Schools of the County, Washington College and University of Maryland.

Green Tomatoes To Be Grown

Following the success of Dorchester farmers, members of the Massey local, Kent County Farm Bureau, will grow 30 acres of green tomatoes for the early market.
These tomatoes will be picked at the stage when the bottom begins to turn white, about ten days before the usual picking time, and will be wrapped separately in paper, and shipped in carriers, each carrier containing 144 tomatoes. The early price received by Dorchester farmers last year was $5.60 per carrier, and when the price reached $1.50 the tomatoes were allowed to ripen on the vines and sold as early tomatoes. Green tomatoes of 2½ inches in diameter are graded in the first class, and very small ones come under class 4.
The Bony Best are considered best for the green tomato trade while Calks Early Jewell and John Bars are also considered good. They will be planted between the 1st and 5th of May and picked from June 20th to July 20.
While the growing of this crop in Kent is an experiment, Mr. Smith does not advise the crop but points to the success made by farmers of Dorchester county.

BIG FOX HUNT IN KENT

The Green Spring Valley Hunt Club of Baltimore, is being entertained in Kent this week. With them are beautiful horses and about thirty Walker-English hounds. Yesterday they chose Quaker Neck as their hunting grounds. A fox was started near the lane that leads to "Riverside." The hounds were eager and fast. The result was a mad dash for the quarry, which soon eluded them. By noon yesterday they had not begun to drive the quarry consistently, but were gradually getting down to their work. The hunt will be resumed today at the farm of Mr. Page Gale.

—About 300 dead wild ducks and 13 dead swan have reported to have been seen at Betterton one day the early part of this week. They are supposed to have been poisoned by feeding on the Western shore near the Government proving ground. Thousands of ducks were killed last year from the same cause.
