Dear Editor:

There was a "Truth in Fabrics" bill passed recently, and seems a very good thing, as far as consumers of Fabrics are concerned. Don't you think it would be a fine idea, if a "Truth in News-papers" bill could be put through this year. Don't the consumers of News have as many right as consumers of dress goods? If a bottle of Extract of Vanill,a containing half a dozen things which are NOT Vanilla, cannot be sold unless all of the ingredients are plainly marked on the bottle, under the Pure Food Law, why can so much "Farm Dope" be sold as the true article?

If I were half as careless about culling out defective fruits as are most of the reporters are about culling out defective truths, I feel sure my pears could not be sold on the markets, and if so much rotten stuff went in the tomato baskets, as goes into the tomato news, it would be hauled out and dumped, and the consumer would never see it at all.

I am following very closely the news coming supposedly from the other counties, and was much interested in the "Lime situation in Queen Anne County. Judge of my surprise when I learned that although the farmers knew they needed lime, yet most of them could not afford to buy it. Frieght is around 28 to 30% of cost. And the farmer pays the frieght every time.

I also asked why it was, as a Sheep grower, I had not been told of the wonderful things being done with sheep, in Kent County, and found out that the story was about the only thing "all bound round with a woolen string." The shep growers are still packing their wool into the large sacks furnished by the wool buyer.

A leading farmer of Queen Anne said this was a year to do without freight and I quite agree with him. It is too expensive for the average farmer to use. Freight and Fertilizer, the too "F'S causing the most Failures of Farms.
