BEWARE OF STRAY DOGS

SPECIAL CARE SHOULD BE TAKEN WHEN TREATING SICK ANIMALS

Beware of stray dogs. See that they are impounded in some safe place where they will have proper care. Don't fondle sick animals. If dogs or horses or other animals on your place are sich get the nearest veterinarian to administer treatment or to advise you as to what should be done with them. It was given with the idea of securing the cooperation of the people of the state in checking the spread of rabies—or hydrophobia as it is also called—among animals, and of protecting human beings from one of the most fatal and most frightful diseases.

In the last five years there has been an alarming increase in the number of persons bitten by mad dogs or by other rabid animals. The number given the Pasteur treatment in 1925 was 183— more than twice as many as in any previous year. In addition to those bitten by mad animals, the number of persons hurt by dogs or other animals that were vicious but not mad has also steadily increased from year to year. Such persons have been kept under the care of the Pasteur Division until the condition of the animals has been determined by laboratory procedure or after examination by veterinarians. From 1911 to 1925 there were seven deaths from rabies in the state. Four of these occurred in 1925; two in 1916; and one in 1911.

Dogs and children seem naturally to associate with each other, but children as well as grown ups should be taught to give a stray dog a wide berth. Very often the owners of sick animals have endangered their own lives in attempting to relieve the suffering of their pets. All persons who handle sick animals should be especially careful not to come in contact with the saliva or any of the secretions of such animals. And anybody who has been in contact with a sick animal should have any scratches or abrasions of the skin as carefully cauterized as though they had been bitten.

Dogs are not the only animals that become mad. Persons have applied for treatment during the last year that have been bitten by dogs, cats, pigs, cows, horses, and even by squirrels. About a year ago a cow on one of the farms in the state was bitten by a mad dog. In three weeks the animal developed suspicious symptoms, which were the forerunner of rabies. Four members of the farmer's family, not realizing the seriousness of the symptoms, attempted to make the animal more comfortable, were injured in some way, and had to take the Pasteur treatment. Of the eight persons who were given the Pasteur treatment during the month of January, of the present year, only two were actually bitten by mad animals; the rest had come in contact with the secretions from sick animals, that afterward become rabid. Four had been in contact with dogs, and two with a sick horse.

Of the 608 persons who applied for the Pasteur treatment in 1925, 587 were bitten by dogs; 11 by cats; one by a monkey; the rest had to have protective treatment because they had been in contact with rabies.

All bites are dangerous, but those on the face are the most serious, and no time should be lost in having emergency treatment. Care should be taken not to kill dogs unnecessarily. Those acting suspiciously should be placed under the care of the nearest veterinarian or of the State Agricultural Department. over 400 dogs were examined by that Department last year and the lives of many valuable animals that were sick but were not rabid, were saved. If an animal runs amuck and is endangering the lives of human beings and has to be killed, the head should be packed in ice and sent at once to the Bureau of Bacteriology of the State Department of Health, for examination. Certain changes which take place in the brain, prove conclusively whether or not the animal was mad.

It is interesting and significant that not one of the four persons who died from rabies in 1923 had applied for treatment. and that not one of the persons who took the treatment developed the disease.

The Pasteur treatment consists of twenty-one inoculations, one each day. Before the methods now in use were developed, it was necessary for persons to travel to Baltimore to be treated. Now the material used is available to all physicians; and a person bitten or otherwise exposed to rabies can be treated at home, by his or her family physician.

KENT TOWNS CO-OPERATE

ADVANCEMENT OF INTERESTS MANIFESTED BY THE MOVEMENT

Kent towns are advancing steadily because of the spirit of co-operation manifested during the past few months.

This will produce the most beneficial results for the taxpayers of the places involved in the projects, it is believed. Recently through the influence of the Community Fire Company of Millington, Massey, Sudlersville and Crumption joined a cooperative movement for better fire protection.

Each town agreed to install fire plugs artisian wells, and large pumps, with other appliances to fit the Millington fire engine machinery, and rapid progress is being made tward the completion of these needed improvements.

The past week C. S. Church, owner of the Millington electric light plant, applied to the Public Service Commission for permission to run a line to Massey for the purpose of supplying current for business places and private homes in that town, and already twenty residents of the town with a number residing between Millington and Massey have signified their desire to use the service. Church has also made the same proposition to the residents of Sudlersville.

The townspeople have the matter under serious consideration and will in all probability use the service extensively, as the town is not at present lighted except by an ancient system of street lights. It is stated that other innovations of a beneficial character aer in contemplation for the several towns in the move for mutual improvement.

Danger In Coughs That Hang-On

Neglected coughs often lead to worse trouble. Yet there is a simple method based on the famous Dr. King's New Discovery, which usually breaks the worst cough entirely in 24 hours.

Here is the method: You take just one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. It has a double action. It not only soothes and heals irritation, but also removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of the coughing. So the most stubborn cough soon disappears completely.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children, too—no harmful drugs. Very economical, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for
