CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WORK

It is only in comparatively recent years that civic activities have come to the recognized as an important part of Chamber of Commerce work. There are those who hold that commerce is the chief objective of the Chamber of Commerce and should be so to the exclusion of all else; that civic service should be left to other organizations essentially uncommercial.

If, however, one may interpret the significance of these later years, the civic activities of the local Chambers of Commerce throughout the country has come to stay. There are some, illustrative of the tendency to leap from one extreme to another who contend that Chambers of Commerce should lay aside their commercial objective altogether and to vote their energies primarily to the solution of community problems.

The swinging of the pendulum from one extreme to another might in many cases be laid at the door of Chamber of Commerce secretaries who in many instances are not fittingly prepared for their work and we find the socially mined type laying emphasis on civic activities, while on the other hand we have the commercial or business type of secretary who stresses the development of commercial activities.

It may appropriately be held that the Chamber of Commerce it still a Chamber of Commerce; that commerce in the last analysis is the one great force behind community progress; that business principles, business men and business captial are essential to the success of practically every civic enterprise; that commerce will and should continue to be the underlying motive in Chamber of Commerce work; and work "for the good of the Community" is one of the direct and necessary ways of making the town commercially great and prosperous. We must make distinction between the commercial industrial and civic activities. Business building and industrial development offer practical rewards for efforts expended. The benefit sought is the benefit of the community in which nevertheless there is some element of self-interest. Civic undertakings on the other hand offer no immediate recompense; they are conducted "for the good of the county; the benefits cannot be measured in terms of commercial profit.

There can be no question concerning the importance of the development of civic activities along with commercial and industrial development and business building. Many of these civic activities are directly related to commercial and industrial problems and whether these civic activities appeal to some business men purely for selfish reasons and to others for altruistic ones makes no difference. All of them come within the general scope of making the community a better place in which to live and do business.

Young men and women are offered a free training by the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago for almost any kind of Christian service in the home or foreign field. The Institute has an efficient employment bureau which also helps students to obtain work for their spare hours, by which they are able to earn enough to pay their board and lodging. The present is the best time to secure reservations for the opening of the Fall term in September.

ANNUAL WORKBOAT REGATTA

OVER 120 WORKBOATS AND BUG EYES ENTERED FOR THE BIG EVENT

The sixth annual regatta of the Workboats and bugeyes of the Chesapeake Bay Championship workboat Races Association will be held on Saturday, June 26, off Solomon's Island in the lower end of the bay. The list of shipjacks, schooners, motor workboats and bugeyes entered now exceeds 120.

The number of racing boats entered will be far exceeded, however, by the number of yachts and pleasure boats of all types that will be grouped about the finish line when the tall white sails of the schooners and bugeyes come beating down the last leg of the triangular course, which lies partly in the beautiful waters of the Patuxent river and partly in the open waters of the bay.

At the reception the annual election of officers will be held and a place selected for the races in 1927. A large chart of the course to be sailed in the races next day will be on exhibition to enable the rival captains to acquain themselves thoroughly with the route. The reception is to be held in the parish house of the Protestant Episcopal Church at Solomons.

The entry list will not close until June 23, three days before the date set for the races in the various classes of workboats.
