CHARLES L. GILL

SUCCESS

By Edgar A. Guest

This is success, so to have lived your years
That all who've known you shall have found you true,
Have seen in some way what is best in you
And found in you some comfort for their tears,
A smile which passed but often reappears.
Or heard a word which cheered them through and through,
And think of you as one who tried to do
Some friendly service in a time of fears.

Great souls in humble bodies often dwell,
The noble spirits walk in common ways.
In thoughtfulness for others they excel,
A gentle friendship marks their round of days.
Longest remembered at the journey's end,
Is he who reaped his glory as a friend.

MODERN CHIVALRY

We have all felt an uplift when reading the account of the drowning of the eleven young men in Balsam Lake near Toronto when one by one released his hold on the upturned canoe so that his fellow student could still cling to the boat. There is nothing that arouses our admiration more than courage and heroism especially when one gives his life that another might live. The world is full of just such instances. Science has its martyrs who are willing to sacrifice their lives for the good of mankind; physicians endure dangers of infection with no thought of themselves and sailors face certain death in saving others from drowning. Yet there is a courage greater far than any of these. And that is moral courage, a virtue that is sadly left out of society in these days. And we need very much in these perilous times the man or women "who dares to be right with two or three."

There is so much talk of the decadence of manners and morals of the present day; of the girls instead of being an uplift to young men, in their desire to be considered sporty and popular doing things that in their better moments they are ashamed of; and of young men following the path of the other fellow lowering their standards of purity and truth, and exposing themselves to temptations that will bring nothing but misery and unhappiness if persisted in. Suppose eleven young men would resolve to save this fellow students from such errors. It would require a vast deal of courage and self sacrifice but in the long run what a wealth of happiness would result. That is what we need.

Strong men and women who can say in the words of Addison's hero.

"'Tis not in mortals to command success.
We will do more.
We will deserve it."

CAMP CAUGHNAWAGA

Huntingfield Point, known to Marylanders as the turning point in the International Airplane Races and once the site of the court house and prison in the early days when New Yarmouth was the county seat of Kent, is the site of a small and exclusive Catholic camp for girls. The name "Caughnawaga" by which the camp is known is of Indian origin and means "The home for Catholic Indians." The first camp of that name was founded by a Christian Indian maid "Tegawitha." The girls are mostly from Baltimore and the suburbs and will stay until late in August.

CANADIANS RETURN HOME

Canadians numbering 52,916. who have lived in the United States for six months or more have recrossed the border to take up their homes in the Dominion again in the year ending July 1, according to a report issued by the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

These returned Canadians, the figures show. have been in industrial centers in New England and eastern states of the Union. A large per cent of them have gone back to farms in Quebec and the Maritime provinces. That new immigration into Canada from countres of the world will be over the 130,000 mark this year is indicated by statistics in the report which show that 32,449 new settlers entered the Dominion in the three months ending June 30. Of these 16,094 came from the British Isles, 5,307 from the United States and 11,48 from other countries, especially Northern Europe.

Farmers, agricultural laborers and domestics, analysis of the figures shows, make up the biggest proportion of the newcomers. More than 65 percent of the British quota and 64 per cent of the American settlers wers classified as agricultural. Many of these settlers took up farms of their own in the prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan anr Alberta where agrculture is experiencing a rapid development.

By month the figures show immigration in April was 10,984, in May 13,338 and 8,127 in June.

NEW PROFESSOR OF PHYSICS

Dr. Charles D. Miller has been elected to the professorship of physics in Washington College. His appointment marks another very definite advance for Washington in the Department of Science.

Born in Minneapolis, the son of a newspaper man, brought up in New Hampshire, he was graduated at the University of Richmond, in Virginia, with Bachelor of Science degree in 1910.

Between 1910 and 1912 he worked as draftsman for Babcock and Wilcox Company of Bayonne, New Jersey. He entered the graduate school of the University of Chicago in 1912 matriculating in physics as his major subject. He received his Ph. D. in 1926. During the time of his graduate work he assisted in the University laboratory and did considerable teaching. In the summer following his getting of the doctorate he was full-time instructor at the University.

In the late summer of 1917 he was commissioned First Lieutenant in the Ordinance Department of the United States Army and detailed to Washington where he remained in service until 1919. While in this department he was connected with the design of certain special shells for artillery. such as the anti-air-craft tracer and incendiary shells.

In the fall of 1920 he went to the University of Manitoba, Canada, as assistant professor of physics where he strayed until 1924. Since 1924 he hasbeen commercially interested in the problem of reclaiming oil from crank case drainings. This past year he has been at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute as associate agricultural engineer where he continued his work in the study of lubricating oil.

Dr. Miller has pubished a number of articles in technical journals on lubricating oil.

He comes highly recommended and he should be fitted to put the department of physics on a new plane of service to the college and its students.

WINTER MILK DEPENDS UPON SUMMER CARE

It is a strange fact—but nevertheless a fact—that in summer, when cows really need the best care, they usually get the least.

Though many dairymen are not aware of it, a cow's condition during fall and winter depends almost entirely on the care and feed she gets in summer, and her milk production for the following year is influenced very largely by her diet during these months.

To produce the most during the winter months, when milk prices are highest, a cow must start the fall feeding season in good condition. If she has been for three or four months in the summer on a diet of pasture only, she cannot possibly do it, though her milk yield may not reflect that fact immediately. For a while she will take milk off her back and put it in the pail, producing milk at the expense of flesh and condition.

Milking cows cannot get enough nourishment from grass at its best, but in the scorching heat of summer, with pastures drying up, they actually use up more physical energy grazing for feed than they get from the grass they eat. That is why many dairy authorities have made the flat statement that grass in midsummer is literally a starvation ration.

Heat and flies add their torment to this condition. A high production cow is invariably a good feeder, but no cow can feed as she should if she is suffering from heat and spending half her time swatting flies.

Actual tests have showed that cows will produce better, not only during the summer, but more particularly through the following fall and winter if they are kept in the barn all day and fed a reasonable amount of grain than they will if they are allowed to graze all day during the hot weather.

It is, of course, desirable that dairymen take full advantage of good pasture, but the best practice is to keep the cows in a cool, comfortable barn during the heat of the day, with plenty of water always available, turning them out at night to graze and rest.

Adding a reasonable. but regular, grain ration to grass throughout this season is a dairy practice that pays dividends. The amount of grain to be fed varies, of course, with the amount of milk the individual cow produces, and to some extent with her breed. Dairymen can easily obtain advice as to the best schedule to folllow from their feed dealer.

WEDDING NOTES

The marriage of Miss Katherine Alberta Jewell, daughter of Mr. H. Theodore Jewell, of Chetertown, and Mr. Luke Kendig Eberly, of Palmyra, New Jersey, was solemnized at the brides home on Queen street at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, July 27. Dr. W. F. Corkran was the officiating clergyman. Immediately following the nuptials an informal reception was held. Amid showers of rice and confetti the couple departed for Boston. They will reside in Palmyra, New Jersey, after their honeymoon.

The following marriage licenses were issued this week by the local clerk of the court:

James E. Miller and Anne Widile, both of Philadelphia, Pa.

Anthony Massey, of Mayslanding, N. J., and Anna Darmino, of Vineland, N. J.

Luke K.Eberly, of Palmyra, N. J., and Alberta K. Jewell, of Chestertown.

Miss Sarah Whitbie, of Queen Anne's County and Mr. Edward Burris, of Chestertown, formerly of Queen Anne's County, were quietly married at Kennedyville M. P. Parsonage, by Rev. Dr. Trout at 8.30 p. m., Thursday evening. The young couple will reside in Chestertown.

—Some exceptionally good wheat yields are reported in Kent. The largest yield that has come to our notice is that of Charles Bishop, of Wye Island, who threshed out an average of 46 bushels per acre.

TAKE THEM TO THE DENTIST

Dentists throughout Maryland will be kept busy between now and the day when the schools open in the fall, getting the teeth of the doctors who have had charge of the child health examinations that have been held by the State Bureau of Child Hygiene, is followed.

According to an announcement by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, the Bureau of Child Hygiene is making a special effort during the summer. to examine as many as possible of the children who will enter school in the fall. At the examinations—child health conferences, as they are called—the teeth, tonsils, eyes, ears and general physical condition of the four, five and six year olds are inspected. A report of the examination is sent to the family physician and the parents are advised to consult him if the children need any attention. If a visit to the dentist is recommended. the parents are urged to have the children's teeth attended to during the summer. and not to wait until after the schools open in the fall to have it done.

If the children have not been successfully vaccinated against smallpox, attention is directed to the State law which requires every child to be vaccinated before he or she can be enrolled in the schools.

The health inspections of the prospective first-graders were begun in May by the Bureau of Child Hygiene, working in cooperation with the State Department of Education, and will be continued throughout the summer. During June, Child Health Conferences were held in seventeen out of the twenty-three counties, and altogether 1842 children were examined. Each conference was held at some conveniently located center, and in a number of instances the school buses carried the youngsters and their mothers to and from the conferences.

Of the 1842 children examined, 204 were under four years old; 1563 between four and seven, and 75 were eight years old or over. Over half of the children 988 had one or more decayed teeth or teeth otherwise needing attention. Practically one out of every five thats 343 of the total was underweight, and needed building up, and one out of every three 695 had unhealthy tonsils or adenoids. Only one out of every three had been vaccinated against small pox, and 1150 will have to be vaccinated before they can be admitted to school.

Mothers and fathers can be depended upon to provide new suits and dresses and shoes for the little first graders, but it is vastly more important to get them ready from the standpoint of Health. According to the estimates of the State Department of Education, 16,000 children will reach school age this year and be eligible for admission to school. Counting the children examined in May, and those brought to the conferences in June, over 2,000 have been examined so far. The Health Department hopes to reach a great many more before the summer is over.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, it has pleased an allwise providence to remove from our midst the beloved wife of the President of this bank, and

Whereas, we recognized in Mrs. Copper a woman of the highest type of Christian character, and feel that her lifetime spent practically in this town has made the community better because of her noble life and self sacrificing devotion to everything that pertained to its moral, religious and social uplift, and

Whereas, the Directors of this Bank regard her moral influence quietly and unostentatiously exerted in behalf of its interests as one of its most cherished assets, therefore.

Be it Resolved,, That we hereby tender to her husband and sister, Miss Carroll, our heartfelt sympathy in the great loss each has sustained, and trust that the influence of her sweet and tender ministrations may in some measure be a solace for their bereavement.

And be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be inscribed upon the minutes of the Board, a copy sent to the husband and sister, and that these resolutions be published in the county press.

Respectfully submitted,
Directors of the Third National Bank.

—Two fire alarms sounded on Saturday. Newsome's Garage at Bettertown was the first and a car ablaze on High street, near the St. Clair works, was the second. The first order was recalled before the engine left the fire house. The second fire called both engines to the scene. The blaze was extinguished by chemicals from Truck No. 1

DEL-MAR-VA EASTERN SHORE ASSOCIATION

Fraudulent advertising, unethical tactics and dishonest "boom" methods undertaken in connection with real estate advertiseing or operations on the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore will be killed in their embryo state, for action has been taken by the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association to nip such operations in the bud.

The Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association has posted a reward of $100.00 to be paid anyone furnishing information upon which prosecution may be based against individuals or corporations who are deliberately misleading the public in matter of real estate on the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula.

Through investigation of the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association it has been learned that several schemes which were not based on sound foundation, and which would result in dishonest practices and the swindling of prospective new residents, have been launched, but in each instance thus far they have been stamped out. It is one of the foremost duties of the Association to prevent dishonest unfair and unscrupulous practices and no effort will be spared to protect the Peninsula against such. Every member of our Association is called upon to inform headquarters if they obtain knowledge which indicates that any unscrupulous practices are under way or if they are being planned.

We are posting a reward of $100.00 for such information and I believe that every citizen will take it on himself to aid the Peninsula communities in fighting this very serious evil."

The Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association will take definite steps in prosecuting those found violating the law in any manner as outlined. and where actual violation of the law is not established, but where intent is discovered, such schemes will be squashed with widespread publicity.

DEATHS

The whole community was shocked and grieved to hear of the passing from our midst of Mrs. W. B. Copper wife of Senator W. B. Copper at Hannahman Hospital, Philadelphia, after having undergone an operation. She was a sweet true woman who had endeared herself far and wide to a host of friends.

Since her childhood she has measured up to her responsibilities, adorning them with a rare personality. As a daughter and sister she was filial, helpful and untiring in her devotion. In her happy married life she stood shoulder to shoulder with her husband loving, aiding and encouraging him, a helpmeet indeed.

She always took a warm interest in civic and humane activities. In town improvement in the Health Association in Relief measures and in all pertaining to the well being of her church, she was one of the leading spirits. As one of the pioniers and pillars of the Women's Literary Society and the public library, her place will be hard to fill. She leaves her husband, Senator W. B. Copper; a brother, Mr. J. W. Carroll, of Baltimore, and a sister, Miss Palmer Carroll, of Chestertown.

The funeral took place at 2.30 p. m., at her late residence on Wednesday conducted by Rev. W. F. Cockran and interment in Chester cemetery. The number of floral offerings bore testimony of the love and affection in which she was held. The pall bearers were: G. Ellsworth Leary, Jesse R. Copper, Raymond R. Wilkins, Dr. H. L. Dodd, Andrew W. Wilson, Howard M. Ward, A. S. Turner and A. Parks Rasin. Undertaker Charles L. Dodd had charge of funeral.

The death of Mrs. Annie Robinson, wife of Mr. S. Frank Robinson, of Chestertown, occurred at her home on Saturday evening, from apoplexy, aged 57 years. Mrs. Robinson had been in poor health for a year or more, but her death was sudden.

Mrs. Robinson was one of our best ladies. She was a devoted wife and a fond and loving mother. She leaves a great host of friends and relatives to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Robinson leaves besides a husband, one daughter, Mrs. Jessie Patrick also three sons, Fred of Baltimore, Robert, of Idaho, and Argus Robinson, of Elkton, Md.

Funeral services were held from her home Tuesday afternoon at 2 p. m., conducted by Dr. W. F. Corkran. Members of Chestertown Council No. 58 Daughters of America of which the deceased was a member had charge of the funeral service at the grave. Interment in Chester cemetery.. The pall bearers were Samuel E. Cooper, William Kirby, William Malin, W. M. Patrick Rufus Collins, and James Newnam. Interment in Chester cemetery, C. L. Dodd undertaker.

—A card from county agent Derrick was received yesterday. The card was written while enroute from London to Paris.
