FERRY STOPS IN BAY

"EXPRESS," CARRYING A THOUSAND PASSENGERS, DISABLED IN LIGHT OF TOLCHESTER

The "Express," carrying 100 excursionists from Baltimore, was disabled Sunday morning while crossing the Chesapeake Bay to Tolchester, when the boat ran into a log. For a half hour the vessel, commanded by Capt. F. W. Kolb, drifted about while efforts were made to repair paddle-wheel damage. When the attempts proved futile, distress signals were sounded.

The steaper "Annapolis," also belonging to the Tolchester Company responded to the call. Hawsers from the stern of the Annapolis were attached to the bow of the Express and the disabled vessel was towed to the Eastern Shore resort—its destination.

Other than the breakdown no trouble was encountered, according to W. H. Hudson, president of the company, and no excitement was caused among the excursionists aboard the "Express."

On board of "Express" were passangers bound for Alabama and other points south. These missed their train because of the accident, while a man, rushing to the side of his wife in a hospital, was unable to reach there before the operation. Many other inconveniences were, naturally, the result.

The boat left Pier No. 16 at 8.30 a. M. The engines ran smoothly until the center of the bay was reached, when the floating log was encountered. Investigation and attempts to repair the damage disclosed that the breakdown was of such a nature that repairs could not be made witheut aid frop shore.

Unable to return to the city, the "Express" remained at Tolchester the entire afternoon. This necessitated the canceling of the regular afternoon trip to the resort.

Numerous telephone messages were received by officials of the company from friends and relatives of persons aboard the steamer who had heard that the "Express" had been disabed and then learned the boat did not return to the city for the afternoon trip.

"Experience is the best teacher"

"That certainly applies to making gasoline. Prominent oil men tell me years and years of striving are necessary before a company can produce a gasoline that gives motorists what they want these days; snappy starting, good pull for the high stretches, lively motor always—all qualities which only experience can teach.

"Take 'Standard' Gasoline. There's fifty-six years of experience behind that brand. And it's the best straight gasoline you can buy. Always dependable—obtainable everywhere."
