FOR THE FIRST TIME in the history of local politics have any set of candidates collectively published a platform, or declaraton of principles, upon which, and for which, they ask the support of the voters of this county, thereby pledging themselves collectively and individually to the citizens of the county, if nominated and elected, to support and do. These pledges are made and published in cold print by the candidates of the Regular Organization ticket and cannot, if so desired by these candidates, be denied. They are made in good faith, signed by each candidate and delivered to the voters of the county for their consideration. Every voter should read every line of this platform and carefully preserve the article so they can produce the pledge made, should any candidate depart from these pledges. The article is on the first page of this paper and we again urge every reader to carefully consider every word of it before they determine who they will vote for.
