TO THE HONORABLE BOARD KENT COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Gentlemen:

With this report of the road work in Kent County for the year 1925-26 you will find annexed an Inventory of Couty property as of March 1st, a list of road jobs done and a list of persons employed and of persons furnishing materials.

During the year we have completed the change from horse drawn to motorized road machinery by selling the last of our mules and adding new gasoline units to our equipment. The County machinery is now divided among four statons, averagng three men to each station, and each having in charge from 80 to 90 miles of roads. This is only a skeleton organization and equipment and should at least be doubled as soon as possible.

Our work for the year as shown on the attached sheet has been entirely on earth roads. Some of the worst spots on these have had special attention, for which we have bought and used $2,364.77 worth of surfacing including slag, gravel, cinders, shells, and sand.

But no matter how well our earth roads may be tended they will not carry present day traffic without rutting badly when wet and going to pieces during the spring thaw, so that a large part of the expense of maintaining them is practically wasted. Some form of improvement is not only being demanded by our taxpayers but cannot much longer be delayed.

COST OF IMPROVEMENT

For many generations to come it will be impossible for this community to surface all of their public roads; the cost of concrete roads at present prices would exceed seven million dollars ($7,000,000.00), about one half the assessed valuation of the entire county. Even at the low cost of $250 per mile it would require $87,500 or about four times the present annual appropriation for roads. Unless we are willing to borrow largely this means that for many years some cheaper kind of road must be constructed and maintained.

KIND OF IMPROVEMENT

The first step in improving an earth road is to build a sand clay road of which the roadway is an intimate mixture of sand and clay, or a topsoil road the roadway of which is composed of a natural mixture of sand and clay. These roads have the advantage that they may be built on an earth base, on a sand base or on a clay base. Or clay may be added to a naturally sandy soil, or sand to a clay soil to make a sand-clay mixture of the correct proportions.

ECONOMIC ADVANTAGES

As the controlling factor in our road construction is the COST, it can readily be seen that natural soils and such surface formations as clay and sand offer distinct economic advantages on account of (a) their general nearness to the road to be built; (b) Their abundance and cheapness; (c) Their physical condition; (d) the minimum expense and maximum simplicity of the outfit needed for construction work.

SUITABILITY AND LIFE

The fact that roads surfaced with such materials can be so constructed that they are practicaly free from softening under traffic in wet weather, will retain comparatively smooth surface, are durable, easy of repair at minimum cost, and can be made to consolidate very quickly, make these materials highly desirable in our rural sections.

The life of a sand-clay or topsoil road depends not only on the thickness of the surfacing material and the severity of the traffic, but largely on the method of maintenance. If properly built and maintained such roads will last 15 years or longer before they have to be re-surfaced.

SAND-CLAY AND TOPSOIL COST.

The main items in the cost of surfacing a road with topsoil or sand-clay is the charge for haulage. This cost depends upon the nearness of the road to the materials to be used in surfacing. According to this distance and the width of the road surface, such roads have been surfaced at a cost ranging from $250 to $2,500 per mile. For our average conditions I think $1,000 per mile an outside figure, while there are places where I am sure $250 will cover the cost.

RECOMMENDATION

I would strongly recommend that $5,000 of this year's road money be set aside and used entirely for sand-clay or topsoil road construction, on 5 miles of road to be selected by your Board.

Respectfully submitted.
COUNTY ROAD ENGINEER.

HERE AND THERE ON THE DEL-MAR-VA PENINSULA

According to Government statistics the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Delaware have more commercial acreage of cantaloupes than any other state with the exception of Arkansas and California. The estimated commercial acreage for 1926 is as follows: California 8,000; Arkansas 7,950; Eastern Shore of Maryland and Delaware 7,890. The acreage this year in Delaware is estimated to be 170 acres more than last. In the Eastern Shore of Maryland 490 acres more than last year.

Fifty and four-tenths per cent or 85,000 to 95,000 acrea of the total land area of Northampton and Accomac Counties is used for trucking. General farming only occupies 9.6 per cent. Forty per cent ofthe land area is not used for annual crops.

654,250 baby chicks passed through the post office at Chestertown during the present season up to August 1, for other points.

More money is returned to the farmers of Delaware for eggs than any other single commodity which they raise.

California and Egyptian Lotus flowers grow naturally in St. Jones Creek near Lebanon in Kent County, Delaware.

While not generally known Wallace M. Quinn, of Crisfield, enjoys the distinction of shipping the first soft shelled crabs from America to London. Mr. Quinn sent 5 dozen carefully packed crates of crabs to London from his plant at Morehead City, N. C., in the care of a friend. They arrived in excellent condition and were a rare treat and a novelty to the Britons who had the pleasure of participating in a soft shell crab dinner.

Old Mariners, familiar with the Eastern Shore of Chesapeake Bay, declare that the shore line is rapidly changing, due to erosion. Sand and earth, they say, are piling up at the bay's entrance, being washed from the shore line.

The muskrat industry on the Eastern Shore of Maryland is a far more important business enterprise than is generally realized. It averages more than $1,000,000 per year in Dorchester County alone.

All Hallows P. E. Church at Snow Hill, Md., founded in 1692 was paid for in tobacco. In this historic church is a Bible bearing the date, London, England, 1701, and a bell now swung from a rafter between two trees in the church yard which were presented to the church by Queen Anne.

The William E. Bunting Nurseries, at Selbyville, Del., report that they are pleased with their experiment with the "White Bog Blueberries." They have about a dozen plants, which they secured at the White Bog farm in New Jersey about two years ago for the purpose of ascertaining whether these berries might be suitable for the low, or marsh sections, of Maryland, Delaware and Virginia. Additional time will be necessary before the Bunting Nurseries can determine definitely whether this variety of berry would do well on the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore.

The Del-Mar-Va Peninsula is rapidly becoming a mecca for sportsmen who enjoy fresh water fishing. The gamy black bass, pike and pickerel afford the non-resident fishermen genuine pleasure and substantial catches are reported regularly.

—Rev. Mr. Clarke, pastor of Still Pond M. E. Church, has left for his vacation at his home in Fayetteville, N. C.

COMMUNITY CLUB MEETS

The annual meeting of the Flatland Community Club was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood A. Sutton, parents of Stanley B. Sutton, member of Maryland's national cattle judging team, who recently returned from a tour of the large dairy centers of Europe. It was the occasion for the combined assembling of the boys' and girls' clubs of the county, which are guests of the Community Club each year. Mrs. Jesse D. Maxwell, president of Club, presided and short addresses were delivered by William G. Smyth, secretary of the Kent County Farm Bureau and a number of members of the boys' and girls' clubs who told of the work accomplished during the year, under the direction of Miss Susan V. Hill, home demonstration agent, and Prof. Horace B. Derrick, county farm agent.

HORSE SHOW POSTPONED

WEEK OF RAIN PREVENTS ANNUAL EVENT—WILL BE HELD SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 4

The Kent County Horse Show, scheduled for Thursday of this week, has been postponed and will be staged September 4. The postponement was necessary due to wet grounds, caused by ten days of heavy rains, which made the field a regular bog.

Those who have been looking forward to the event will not be disappointed as all of the enteries will have three more weeks of practice and preparation.

MISS SUSAN V. HILL RESIGNS

Miss Susan V. Hill, who has held the office of Home Demonstration Agent of Kent County for the past four years, has resigned her post in order to enter Washington College for a degree. Under Miss Hill's efficient leadership, a number of clubs have been organized throughout the county in each community center. The clubs have grown and have accomplished much in the way of better home-making. The annual county wide meeting and exhibit marked great progress from year to year and the news of Miss Hill's resignation is being received with sincere regret by the clubs and individuals who have been inspired by her untiring enthusiasm.

MILK PRICE RISES

Kent farmers will get a better price for milk beginning September 1, provided they comply with certain restrictions imposed by the Philadelphia distributors of the product. According to an agreement reached the past week by the executive committee of the Inter-State Milk Producers Association, which supervises the production of the milk sold from the Maryland-Delaware peninsula, and the proprietors of the Philadelphia milk shed, an advance of 25 cents per 100 pounds is provided for upon condition that the dairymen agree to conform to stipulated conditions govening the producton and shipment of the product. One of these restrictions regards the purity of the supply, which is an indication to the dairymen here of the intention of the Philadelphia distributors to enforce the tuberculin test at no late date. To this end the Kent county Farm Bureau, as well as the farmers, has launched a campaign, is objective being the testing of every dairy herd in the county which supplies the milk to the Philadelphia concern. In fact, several of the farmers here have already had their herds tested and they have been given certificates of health by Federal inspectors, but the work will not stop until every cow in the county has been tested for evidence of tuberculosis.

—The Rock Hall Carnival will continue until and including Wednesday, September 1.

THE LAWYER AND THE SENATE

Messrs. Editors:—

The almost universal disfavor into which the lawyer has fallen as an acceptable representative in the Maryland Senate seems to be clearly indicated by the fact not a county on the Eastern Shore and but five in the entire state were represented by a lawyer in the last session of the legislature. If you will consult the 1925 Sun Almanac you will note that Cantwell, of Cecil, is a physician, Copper, of Kent, a banker, Roe, of Queen Anne, a banker and grain merchant, Towers, of Caroline, a capitalist, McDaniel, of Talbot, an insurance broker, Lankford, of Somerset, agriculturetist, Adkins, of Wicomico, a lumber merchant, Byrn, of Dorchester, a business man, and Harrison, of Worcester, a nurseryman. Nor Messrs. Editors is the relation of the voters to the lawyer as an acceptable candidate likely to be changed in the coming primaries, because in practically every county on the Shore and in a maority in the state, the candidates for the Senate are either professional or business men or bankers.

Now Messrs. Editors, this change in the attitude of the voters in all sections of the state, particularly on the Eastern Shore, is not the whim of chance nor a mere accident of choice. In my judgment it is the result of a deep seated conviction on the part of the voters that the vital interests of the masses of the people can best be subserved by a man taken from the ranks rather than from the legal profession. Human nature is such that no intelligent person would send any one to the hardware store to buy a loaf of bread, or to the bakery to buy a stove, and it is, I believe, this principle which seems to have become universal in almost all sections of the state that has actuated the voters in discarding the lawyer for the business man or banker in their selection of candidates for the Senate. And there is absolutely nothing prejudicial to the lawyer in making this statement, because one happens to be a candidate for the Senate in Kent county in the coming primaries. If Kent were the only county in the state where the voters have practicaly discarded the lawyer as an acceptable candidate for the Senate, there might be some justification for the thought that partisan prejudice may be the actuating motive in calling this serious matter to the attention of the voters, but when Every County on the Shore has discarded the lawyer as acceptable, and only five in the entire state still cling to him, there is something very significant, to say the least, in the almost universal change which has taken place among the voters throughout the state. I am very much of the opinion that the character of certain laws passed in previous sessions of the legislature had much to do with the change in the attitude of the voters towards the acceptability of the lawyer as a representative in the Senate, and has been the means of inducing the people of the state to select a man regarded by them as closer to the interests of the masses in making their laws. It has been stated upon reliable authority that an attempt was made some years ago by a number of lawyer-senators to have a bill passed prohibiting a layman from administering upon the estate of a deceased relative or friend without being required to employ a lawyer at a large fee to assist in settling the estate. This measure is said to have failed of passage because of the opposition of the business senators who realized the injustice of the measure. At any rate, Messrs. Editors, there has not been a lawyer in the Senate from any of the Shore counties for some years, and it does not look like the new custom is to be broken this year or in the next session of the legislature.

Very truly yours,
A Business Man.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

The state road near Fairlee was the scene of an automobile accident, last week Friday, in which twelve persons miraculously escaped serious injury when three cars collided. One car in attempting to weave its way between two others which were coming from opposite directions, skidded on the wet road bringing the three machines together with a tremendous crash. Dr. Dart, of Baltimore and Miss Ruth Taylor, county nurse, who were returning from a clinic, received the greatest force of the impact. Miss Taylor was severely bruised about the face and body and the physician's new car was completely demolished. Mrs. Arthur Brice, who drove the car that skidded, had the fenders torn from her machine while the third car escaped with almost no damage. Miss Taylor was the only one who suffered any injury beyond the shock of the accident but all were badly shaken.

TOLCHESTER ESTATES.

DEVELOPMENT PROPOSITION NEAR BEACH DRAWS ATTENTION OF PUBLIC

Officials connected with the Tolchester Estates have announced that they will launch their campaign for the development of Tolchester, on the Chesapeake Bay, Kent County, Md. Former Lieutenant Governor John M. Mendinhall is president of the company. The site will be developed into one of the largest pleasure resorts and summer residential sections on the Delmarvia Peninsula.

The Tolchester Estate consists of farm land comprising about 1200 acres, which embraces 16 acres of inland lake water land to be developed under the present plans into a yachting harbor. It is further proposed to transform the entire plot into a beautiful playground with a residential section of 3,000 homes, golf course, club houses, parks boardwalks and pavilions.

A topographial survey reveals the midland drainage to be of the best providing nourishing soil for shrubbery, trees, growing vines, and other foliage. The survey also notes a healthful climate in that district.

The Tolchester estate is 65 miles south of Wilmington and 21 miles from Batimore. Good roads and transportation facilities add to the importance of the place. The proposed harbor development will provide facilities for yacht clubs, boathouses and cottages.

A CALL TO THE WOMEN

Messrs. Editors:—

The more one studies the issues involved in the present campaign for control of the various county offices the more thoroughly is one convinced that the overshadowing isue in this contest is not low taxes or more state roads, but the burning question of the hour is a struggle of the forces of law and order against the forces that would ride roughshod over the constitution of our country in order to satisfy their desire for what is known as personal liberty. It is not necessary to delive into the mysteries of so called leadership to determine the issue. It is a clear out fight between those forces who believe in having what they want at any cost as against the forces which believe in upholding the laws of the land. This being the case, if there ever was a time in the history of this county when its women voters should stand shoulder to shoulder with those men who are seeking to uphold the principles of the constitution, and rise with them as a mighty force to to put an end for ever to that force which is seeking power through the leadership of the wettest element which has ever sought to gain control of this county's affairs, now is that time. The women of Kent county who love their homes, whose whole life is centered in the purity and chastity of their sons and daughters, who believe in uphoding the law and breaking up the dens of vice and iniquity and who hold the power to place our county safely against the encroachments of anything save the highest ideals in goverment and moral conduct, it is these voters, Messrs. Editors, who should realize the great importance of exercising their right to vote in the approaching primary, and they should go to the polls on Tuesday, September 14th, and register their protest to turning the affairs of Kent county over to that element in the present contest which is deriving its chief support from the wet contingent in the county. In my judgment, Messrs. Editors, no greater service can be rendered to their county by its women voters than that they should recognize the great responsibility resting upon them at this critical time in the history of their county, and determine to participate actively in the campaign to the extent at least of casting a ballot for W. B. Copper and his running mates on the regular organization ticket. It is the most regrettable thing in the world that men occupying positions of great influence and responsibility in this county should permit their blind partisanship to sway their attitude towards candidates who represent principles absolutely at variance with their own, a circumstance which makes it all the more necessary for the women of the county to take their stand with those candidates who have pledged themselves to uphold law and order in our body politic. As a voter, Messrs. Editors, I sincerely urge the women of the county to get into this fight for the safety of their homes, for the honor and dignity of those nearest and dearest to them, and g... to the polls on September 14 and v... against any man who does not ... four square for law and order.

Respectfully,
A. VOT...
