DIRECTORIES ARE IMPORTANT PART OF TELEPHONE SERVICE

(Top) She's Found "Daddy's" Number In The Telephone Book
(Bottom) Delivering The Directory

The telephone directory is not merely a book of numbers, but is a very definite part of telephone service. It is "information" at a glance and is used millions of times daily. It is not merely a few pages of paper carrying the alphabetical listings with the telephone numbers of the community it serves, but it is a necessity to the business and social life of every section.

To the printer who makes the book, it is a highly specialized job that must be completed under pressure with the work so scheduled that certain specific dates may be met. To the manager and the delivery force it necessitates accuracy in placing a new directory before every subscriber and the collection of the old one.

The telephone directory is revised twice annually and the average elapsed time, from the closing of the book to the public, that is, when no further listings can be accepted for that particular issue, to the completion of the delivery to the premises of the subscriber is about fifty days.

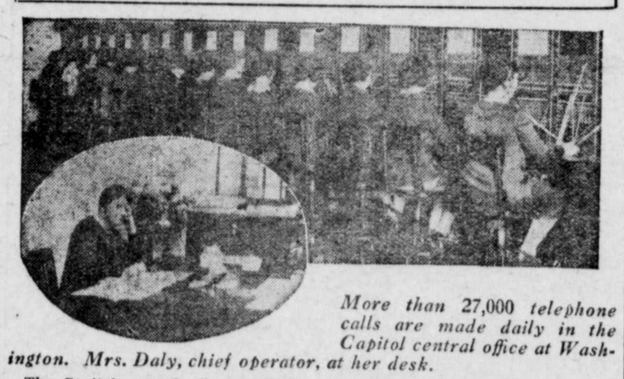

In the combined telephone directories issued by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia each year, the printer consumes more than 2,000,000 pounds of paper, 26,000 pounds of ink, 22,000 pounds of glue, and 12,000 yards of linen crash.

After the directories are printed, bound, and crated for shipment to destination, the manager's forces get busy in preparing route lists and addresses so that the delivery of the books may be started as soon as the shipment is received in the city.

As the new directory is delivered the old one is recovered and junked. This is done not so much for the value of the old books as junk paper, as to get them out of the way, so that telephone users will consult the latest issue in making calls. There are always a large number of new listings in the latest telephone directory, and in addition, there are thousands of miscellaneous changes in every issue.

While the delivery of the telephone directory is usually made in a reasonably short length of time, this does not mean that the work of getting out the book is over until the next one is off the press. A large force of clerks is employed continuously in the preparation of "copy" for the new issue, which will be delivered about six months after the present one has been placed in the home or office.

IN THE CAPITOL CENTRAL

More than 27,000 telephone calls are made daily in the Capitol central office at Washington. Mrs. Daly, chief operator, at her desk.

The Capitol central office at Washington is of sufficient size to serve a city of about 15,000 population.

When the sixty-ninth Congress convened in December, it was served by entirely new central office equipment. A new switchboard and associate apparatus, including main frame, charging generator, and storage battery, had just been installed for this service in new quarters, arranged by the government architect.

The equipment is located in the house office building and is operated by the government as a private branch exchange under the supervision of Mrs. Harriet G. Daley, a pioneer telephone operator of Washington, and first operator at the Capitol. Mrs. Daley worked at the first one-position switchboard installed in the late 90's, and has seen the office grow to its present size.

From this central office 1603 telephones, connecting the government offices and the Capitol, Senate and House Office building, including the press galleries are served. All members of the House, Senate and Supreme Court and their clerical forces receive service from this switchboard.

The press galleries in the Senate and House Office buildings each contain a number of telephones in booths, so that telephone calls may be made without interruption to each other. Also many of the Washington papers and several of the press associations have direct telephone lines to their offices, whereby the news may be telephoned direct. The Capitol office during the present session of Congress is handling about 27,000 calls daily and this figure is constantly increasing. Some one has said that if any more women members are elected to the House, there probably will have to be additions made in the near future.

The present switchboard consists of eighteen positions, but the space, as arranged, will accommodate seventeen additional units, sufficient to provide service for 3,000 telephones, these sections to be added from time-to-time as required.

The Capitol office—Main 3120—has 120 trunk lines connected with Washington offices of the telephone company and 80 direct lines to other private branch exchanges of the government. Ultimately it is expected that this private branch exchange will require about 2000 trunk lines and 120 direct lines.

Service is continuous throughout the twenty-four hours of the day, young women "man" the switchboard during business hours, while men operators are on duty during the evening and night.

The new location of the office is on the top floor of the building, and is ventilated and lighted by huge skylights in the roof. Ample quarters have been provided for the distributing frames, power equipment, and batteries, which are in an adjoining room.

The old central office which has just been replaced was located on the fourth floor of the House Office building. There were eleven positions of switchboard, but the space was very limited so that no additional sections could be added, and as it happened the room was so situated that there was no way to enlarge the operating room, making it necessary to provide another location and establishing an entirely new central office.

CONCEALED WEAPONS ON ELECTION DAY

The following Act of the General Assembly of Maryland, passed at the January session of 1874 and approved April 6, 1874, is published for the information of the public:

WM. W. GOODMAN,

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

1. To vote. Enter room, step up to guard rail, give name and registered residence to the Judges. Wait until your name is found upon the registers, then get ballot from the judge in charge of the ballots. See that he has written your name and number on the coupon attached to the ballot and his own name or initials on the back of the ballot itself.

2. Upon receiving your ballot retire to one of the booths or compartments and prepare your ballot by marking with an indelible pencil after the name of every person, or persons for whom you wish to vote, in the square provided thereof, a cross-mark, for example (X); and in case of a question submitted to a vote of the people, by marking likewise in the appropriate square a cross-mark (X) after the answer you desire to give. You should be careful to make no mark on the ballot other than the cross-marks within the squares.

3. In marking the ballot you may take with you into the polling place any written or printed memorandum or paper to assist you in preparing your ballot, except a facsimile of the ballot to be voted. You must prepare and deposit your ballot without undue delay. Before coming from behind the curtain in front of your compartment you must fold your ballot in the same way as it was folded when you received it, so that the marks which you have made upon it shall be entirely concealed. You then hand your folded ballot to the judge at the ballot box, give him your name and registered address and wait until he tears off the coupon containing your name and number, and strings it, and deposits your ballot in the ballot box. You must then leave the polling room and can not again go behind the guard rail during the day.

4. A voter must not go in any compartment occupied by another or converse with any other voter while engaged in a compartment, nor can any voter occupy a compartment more than seven minutes if others are waiting.

5. You must not take any ballot outside the guard rail. If you spoil a ballot you must deliver the spoiled ballot to the judge in charge of the ballots and receive another from him. If you spoil three ballots you lose your vote.

6. A voter who is physically disabled from marking his or her ballot must make affidavit to that effect, if he or she desires assistance. The two polling clerks, after such affidavit has been made, can accompany him or her into one of the compartments and there mark his or her ballot as he or she instructs them, marking only the names of the candidates whom he or she shall name. The clerks are not allowed to read the ballot to him or her.

7. Any voter who shall allow his or her ballot to be seen by any person with the apparent intention of letting it be known how he or she is about to vote; or who shall place any distinguishing mark upon his or her ballot, or who shall make a false statement as to his or her inability to mark his or her ballot, or who shall interfere or attempt to interfere with any voter when inside the enclosed space in the polling room, or when marking his or her ballot, or who shall endeavor to induce any voter before voting to show how he or she marks or has marked his or her ballot, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ($5.00) dollars nor more than one hundred ($100.00) dollars, or by imprisonment in jail for a period not exceeding sixty (60) days, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the Court.
