HOG CHOLERA SERUM SHORTAGE

UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND FROM OTHER PLACES LEAVES EASTERN SHORE WITHOUT TREATMENT

With Eastern Shore veterinarians faced with a shortage of serum, the dreaded hog cholera has become almost epidemic in some sections and threatens serious losses to breeders. A number of cases have been reported but for the remedial measures promptly taken here, hog raisers probably would have suffered severe losses by this time. Most of the cases here are attributed to infection from feeding pieces of raw pork which came from swine killed in the Middle West, where cholera is causing heavy losses.

Because of the tremendous and unexpected demand for serum in Illinois and Missouri, a shortage of the treatment has come about and it was reported Thursday night that a fresh supply fully adequate to meet the demand could not be expected before next week. In the event of fresh outbreaks of the dreaded disease, this would be a calamity to hog raisers of the county, for cholera, once it gets a start, s very difficult to check, veterinarians say.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

In behalf of the Woman's Auxiliary of Shrewsbury Parish this commmittee expresses sympathy for the loss of a valued member, Mrs. Emma Scotten, whose generosity, interest, and helpfulness, in every way added to the welfare and growth of the Auxiliary and will be long and gratefully remembered by her fellow members. And it is resolved that a copy of this appreciation be sent to her family to The Eastern Shore Churchman to the county papers and also inscribed in the minutes of the Auxiliary.

KENT MARSH LAND VALUABLE

U. S. DEPT., OF AGRICULTURE SAYS IT COULD NEVER BE WON OUT BY CULTIVATION

Marshland in Kent County, because it is chiefly alluvial to a depth of six to eight feet and could never be worn out, has a high value, according to a report of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, experts of which say that investigation of marshes on the Eastern Shore has revealed thousands of acres which, with comparatively little expense, could be brought into a high state of cultivation.

That marshes are of the richest soil to be found here is because "the Chesapeake Bay is a great river valley," says the department's report, which receives the drainage of a vast territory of fertile land. This everyyear drainage brings down a black sediment which makes in the Bay and along its tributaries what is known as "oyster mud" and leaves deposits on the marshy lands which continually enrich their soil.

These conditions not only contribute to the high development of oysters in the Chesapeake and its numerous rivers, but they also make land which, if properly utilized, would exceed in productiveness any soil now under cultivation in Kent county, it is stated in the report.

In this county there are hundreds of acres of tidal action not being sufficient to obtain drainage through sluices for marshes that are near the level of mean high water without the use of machinery for pumping the drainage water. There are some large marshes, however, to which this objection does not apply.

The common rise of the tide here is 3½ feet. The marshes are used for grazing and trapping and are valued, sometimes, nearly as high as the dry land of the farm, though the average value is about $10 to $20 an acre. The low marshes produce wild oats and other grasses.

Exact figures are not available to show the number of acres which might be reclaimed in Kent County.

FINE HOME BURNED

"Montebello Lake" County Home Of Mr. C. E. Woods A Total Loss

Montebello Lake, the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton E. Woods, of Philadelphia, Pa., was destroyed by fire early last Sunday morning. The loss estimated at $15,000 was only partially insured. Mr. and Mrs. Woods and their little granddaughter, barely escaped from the blazing home with their lives, saving only the clothes they could hastily throw about them.

Returning Saturday evening from Chestertown, Mr. Woods discovered that the overheated furnace had caused a blaze to penetrate to the main floor. With the help of the caretaker the fire was extinguished and after a careful search Mr. and Mrs. Woods retired about 1 A. M. Sunday. At 3:30 they were awakened by the shouts of the caretaker and were forced to leave the house by a rear window, saving nothing but the clothes they wore. The telephone had burned out and it was necessary to run to a neighboring farm to turn in an alarm, which reached the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company at 4 A. M. Truck No. 2 of the local company made a record run to the scene of the fire but were only able to prevent a further spread of the flames.

Many pieces of colonial furniture were destroyed by the fire. Mr. Woods had a collection of guns valued at $1400, all of which were lost. Several hundred dollars worth of fishing tackle was also destroyed.

Although Montebello Lake had only been the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. Woods, they were planning to make it their all year home beginning this winter.

Mr. Woods will probably rebuild on the same site, which is one of the prettiest locations in Kent County.

OLD FASHIONED DANCES

FIRST OF SERIES HELD IN QUAKER NECK RECENTLY WAS A BIG SUCCESS

The first of a series of old-fashioned dances, under the auspices of The Quaker Neck Community League, was held at the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kellogg Smith, in Quaker Neck. The house was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and flowers. About seventy-five guests were present, almost all of whom wore costumes of "other days." The costumes represented all periods from fifteen to over one hundred years past, presenting a variagated picture most pleasing to behold. Miss Frances Morris was most charming, attired in her great grandmother's wedding dress with old lace kerchief. Mrs. D. W. Ingersoll was no less attractive as the Gibson Girl of twenty-five years ago. Miss Caroline Stoops was most quaint in her grandmother's wedding dress and bonnet. Miss Rebecca Brown was most attractive as a debutante as a debutante of twenty years ago, with long curls and a trailing evening dress of blue satin, watched over by a grandmother in the person of Miss Minnie Brooks, who was dressed in old black satin with a short tight basque and voluminous trailing skirt, ornamented with a kerchief of old lace; she also wore a handsome old tortoise shell necklace, with pin and bracelets to match. Mrs. James Newnam, Jr., was a picture of seventy-five years ago in her puffed skirt and tight basque, with powdered hair worn high. The other costumes were too numerous to mention. Many of the men wore knee breeches, silver buckles on their low shoes, and lace ruffled shirts.

The music consisted of three professionals, and most of the dances were the old square dances, the figures being called by Mr. William Scoons and Mr. Frank Cranor. A midnight lunch was served by the club.

The Quaker Neck Community League of which Mrs. J. Kellogg Smith is President, deserves much credit for promoting a splendid community spirit in Quaker Neck, and now its members over twenty-five, are planning for a Community House. Under he skillful hands of Mr. Milton Faulkner, who has offered his services as builder, and with the many promised donations of labor, materials, and money, The Quaker Neck Community House should soon become a reality.

SCHOOL CENSUS

Under the requirements of the Maryland Public School Law is is necessary to take the school census again this year. Monday, Nov. 1, has been set aside by the Board of Education of Kent county for census taking in the schools of this county. It is hoped that parents and guardians throughout the county will, so far as possible, arrange their affairs so they can stay home on that day and cooperate with the teachers in their efforts to record every child eighteen years of age or under.

Every child that is missed in the taking of this census will mean some loss to the county from the aid that the state gives Kent county through the census and attendance fund for the purose of operating its public schools. This fund amounts to approximately one-half of all the State aid funds, the total of which last year was over fourty-two thousand dollars. Two-thirds of the census and attendance fund is based on the number of children from five to eighteen years of age residing in the county. From this, the importance of recording every child can be seen very readily. Let us all do our part in helping the teachers to take an accurate census.

Will not those patrons who own automobiles or horses and cariages call up the teachers of their respective schools and offer to take them to the home of the outlying district.

LOUIS C. ROBINSON,
County Superintendant.

REAL ESTATE SALES

Mrs. Mary E. DeCorse has sold her farm in Quaker Neck to Mr. C. C. Brown of Philadelphia.

Miss Anna Newton has purchased ed from Mr. James Bramble the brick dwellings and store on High street near College Avenue.

Dr. J. T. Power and wife have purchased of the Lambert heirs the property on Maple Avenue, near the bridge. The price is around $2500.

CHICKEN CULLING PROGRESS

TWELVE DEMONSTRATIONS IN COUNTY DRAW LARGE NUMBER OF POULTRYMEN

One hundred and twenty-seven interested poultry raisers witnessed the twelve chicken culling demonstrations given in Kent last week, by the Extension Poultry Specialist and County Agent. Many of these poultry raisers are now busy culling their flocks to get rid of the unprofitable chickens and thereby make their Poultry Department more profitable.

The goal set for this project is to have 20,000 chickens culled over this fall in Kent County. Chicken culling has been proven a profitable and progressive practice. If you have not already culled your flock, here are some pointers on the desirable features of culling:

A. TYPE

HEAD—Shape, broad and deep; Beak, stout and well curved; Comb, wattles and ear lobes, of medium size and good quality; Eyes, large, full, prominent and bright; Face, full, smooth, fine in texture.

BODY—Ribs well sprung; Back, broad and flat across hips; Pelvic arch, broad and straight; Pelvic bones, thin and pliable and free from meaty deposits; Abdomen, deep, full and soft; Skin, thin, soft and pliable; Depth, deep from back to breast bone; Breast Bone, long.

LEGS AND TOES—Legs, flattened; Toes, straight, with nails worn.

STANDARD WEIGHTS — White Leghorn hen, 4 pounds; Barred Rock Hen, 7½ pounds; Rhode Island Red Hen, 6½ pounds.

B. PIGMENTATION

The pigmentation test refers to the depth or mount of yellow color present in the beak, shank, vent, etc., of a hen of the yellow skinned breeds. Experimental work has shown that this test can be used to determine the approximate number of eggs a hen has laid. The following key has been worked out from the Leghorn Breed. The yellow color being out of the following parts indicates the following number of eggs laid:

VENT—6 eggs; 10 to 12 days.

EYE RINGS—8 to 10 eggs; 12 to 15 days.

EAR LOBES—Base of upper beak; 20 eggs; Entire lower beak, 30 eggs; Middle of upper beak, 35 eggs; Entire beak, 40 eggs. Beak bleached indicates 60 to 75 days production.

SHANKS—Bleached in front, 70 eggs; Entirely bleached, 80 eggs, 100 to 125 days production.

C. MOLT

The molt indicates egg production. Discard early molters, that is, hens that molt before September.

Keep late molters, that is, hens that molt during September of thereafter.

TO PRESERVE OLD OAKS

The giant oaks at St. Pauls are the subject of much discussion in many places and are one of the beauty spots of Kent County. Members of the old parish, are becoming anxious for the safety of the great oak trees which for practically a century have graced the old church yard and steps will shortly be taken to have them treated to preserve their life.

There are few trees on the peninsula or throughout the State that rival the St. Paul's oaks in size or age.

Friday night the first event in a campaign to raise funds to preserve the trees was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Emory, members of the parish, in the form of a masquerade party and buffet luncheon.

Other entertainments for the same fund are being planned.

The trees will get treatment similar to that given the old Wye oak by the Maryland Historical Society several years ago.

AN APPEAL

Following the disastrous earth quake in Armenia which has made many thousands homeless, caused many hundreds to be killed and injured, and from which many hundreds of buildings including large orphanages of the Near East Relief are damaged, an appeal for first, money, then new or old clothing, shoes, blankets, was issued today by Harold F. Pellegrin, Potomac Division Director of the relief organization.

T. ALAN GOLDSBOROUGH

T. Alan Goldsborough, the candidate for Congress on the Democratic ticket, is so pre-eminently fitted for that high office that he needs no commendation from us. By education, by training, by experience, and by proven loyalty to the best and highest purposes of his party; and greater still, by his devotion to the ideals of American citizenship, he has made of himself an outstanding figure in Congress. His conscientious endeavor to represent the best interests of the First Congressional District is too well known to need comment.

Mr. Goldsborough is one of the very ablest lawyers in this State. He has ever been a great student of jurisprudence, and long before he was elected to Congress, or probably ever dreamed of that honor, he was laying a foundation in that learning of the constitutional law and the political history of our country that is always a necessary accomplishment of men who arise to prominence in the affairs of our nation and to that degree of usefulness and ability that spells true statesmanship.

It is such attributes of mind and high personal character that irresistibly commands the admiration and support of one's fellow men.

Has this been the record of Mr. Goldsborough? Let us see. In 1920 he was nominated first for Congress. In that disastrous year for the Democratic party he alone in this whole United States was elected to Congress over a Republican opponent who was already seated in Congress; that is, he was the only man who that year defeated a Republican who was already in Congress, and that by nearly 3,000 majority.

In the next election he won by over 5,000 majority, and in his third election by nearly 7,000 majority. These are things that are not achieved by nonentities, opportunists, or mere office seekers, but by men of the kind and class of Mr. Goldsborough. The failure to re-elect Mr. Goldsborough would be a serious step backward, regardless of political affiliations.

Now that the Eastern Shore is looking forward to an era of advancing prosperity and development, and when the eyes of the nation are being turned upon us as never before, and the prospect for our future is brightest and best, surely our people will want to have in high places our best men—men of the greatest talents and finest ability. That the Eastern Shore will not be unmindful of its serious duty and will elect T. Alan Goldsborough is our candid belief and earnest hope.

ENDORSE GOLDSBOROUGH

Within the last few days practically every newspaper on the Eastern Shore has endorsed the candidacy for Congress of the Hon. T. Alan Goldsborough. Some of the papers advocating his re-election are: The Denton Journal, Denton, Md., The Independent, Denton, Md., The Caroline Sun. Ridgely, Md., The Federalsburg Courier, Federalsburg. Md., The Enterprise, Greensboro, Md., The Centreville Record, The Queenstown News, Queenstown, Md., The Cecil County News, Elkton, Md, The Cecil Democrat, Elkton, Md., The Cecil Star, North East, Md., The Easton Star-Democrat, Easton, Md., The Democrat and News, Cambridge, Md., The upper Dorchester News, Hurlock, Md., The Kent News, Chestertown, Md., The Chestertown Transcript, Chestertown, Md., The Marylander and Herald, Princess Anne, Md., The Somerset News, Princess Anne, Md., The Crisfield Times, Crisfield, Md., The Democratic Messenger, Snow Hill, Md., The Worcester Democrat, Pocomoke City, Md., The Berlin Times, Berlin, Md.

KENT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Kent County Chamber of Commerce is preparing to make a county, wide drive or new members.

Mr. Neal A. Trusiow, cartoonist and illustrator, who has recently moved to Chestertown to engage in business is at work upon a pamphlet which will contain pictures and scenes in the county and information of interest to inquirers for locations. The officials of the chamber, encouraged by the waterfront properties in the county recent numerous sales of valuable water front properties in the county their efforts toward development of the towns and summer resorts as well for development purposes will use as the many other advantages.

The officials of the chamber and the board of directors are: Thomas W. Perkins, president; G. Elisworth Leary, vice-president; Harry S. Russell, secretary; Marion DeK. Smith, treasurer; W. B. Copper, Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, Howard F. Owens, Betterton, and C. M. Melvin, Millington.
