—Crabbers, or at least a large number of them, at Tilgham have abandoned the business and have started in oystering. Last week the Tilgham Packing Company shut down its crabbing department and the crabbers starting in oystering. Those who still crab are catching five or six barrels a day, and the prospects for next season are the best in many years. Young crabs are seen swimming on top the water near shore, which indicates a good foundation for next season.

—The polo game between the Eastern Shore Women's Polo Association and the Washington team was postponed last Sunday and will be played today October 31.
