HOG CHOLERA IN STATE

DISEASE REPORTED TO EXIST ON 228 PREMISES DURING PAST MONTH

The disease was reported to exist on 228 premises during the month against 56 a year ago, and a 7 year average of 106 for the same period. 212 were classed as primary or new outbreaks, and 16 as secondary or spread of the infection. 153 were of the backyard type, while 75 occurred on farms where hogs were bred and raised.

Kent county ranks third in the State with 26 outbreaks, this means the loss of hundreds of dollars monthly to Kent farmers.

Of the 212 primary outbreaks, 191 were apparently due to the feeding of infected pork in garbage, table scraps, etc. On the premises where hog cholera was reported to exist, during the month there were 2844 hogs. Of these 949 were sick and 325 were dead when the cases were reported. In 99 of the outbreaks only 5 hogs or less were involved.

Quite a number of owners of swine demonstrated this fall that they did not care to observe the few and simple precautions recommended in the Maryland Plan for the protection of their hogs. The shortage of serm with the consequent high price did not contribute to their peace of mind. The saving of one hog would have repaid the cost of keeping infected pork out of the hog feed for a life time. To an innocent bystander it would appear that the simple method of preventing the infected pork from reaching the hogs would have done far more good than standing around complaining about what a terrible disease hog cholera is.

DEATHS

Mrs. Elizabeth Cooper, wife of Harrison E. Cooper, died at her home in Worton, November 1st, aged 73 years. She was born in Penn., the daughter of the late Dr. James Ivens and Mary Shakerpeare, both of whom were born in England. She leaves the following children, Mrs. George P. Ashley, Mrs. J. August Money, George N. Cooper, Mrs. Charles Crowding, Mrs. Walter Moffett, Mrs. Sewell J. Lee, Mrs. John Duyer, Mrs. Henry Raisin, also twenty-one grandchildren and five great grandchildren. The funeral was largely attended; funeral services were held on Thursday at 2 o'clock from her late home conducted by Rev. Randall, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hanby. Interment in Chester Cemetery. The pall bearers were Charles Ivens, Herbert Ivens, Tilden Cooper, H. S. Startt, Theodore Jewell, and James Matthews. C. L. Dodd, undertaker in charge of funeral arrangements.

TO REMODEL M. E. CHURCH

Officials of the Methodist Episcopal Church have decided to begin the remodeling of the present building and the commttee last week awarded a contract to Roland Dashields, Salisbury, for $52,800. The improvements include a new back building to accommodate the Sunday-school. entire lower floor to be made into one large room: portico in the front of the building, new stairways leading to the main auditorium, new choir loft, new ceilings and interior decorations. When completed the church will be one of the most modern on the Shore and will be ample to care for the growing congregation. The building committee includes: Thomas W. Eliason. John C. Davis, A. H. Covey, Harry F. Jefferson, E. Rumsey Anthony,Carl N. Bordley and Martin E. Newsome. The Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Corkran is the pastor of the church, and his son, Sherman Corkran, of Philadelphia, is the architect.

SWAN ON CHESAPEAKE

Practically all of the swan population of Eastern North America concentrates for winter quarters on Chesapeake Bay, Maryland; Back Bay, Virginia and Currituck Sound, North Carolina, and adjacent waters. Here they can be counted with reasonable accuracy, and early in December, 1925, experts of the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture found a total of 14,567. The greatest numbers were on Chesapeake Bay, including the Susquehanna Flats, where 6,920 were counted. On Currituck Sound North Carolina, the number observed was 2,967 and on Lake Mattamuskett in the same state, 2,494 were counted. A slightly smaller number, 2,016 was noted on Back Bay, Virginia, and on the Potomac River, near its junction with the Chesapeake, they counted 169 during the same census. Undoubtedly in all cases more swan were present and escaped count, so that the total number probably exceeds 15,000. This is the first fairly complete censes of these birds the Survey has been able to make, and little can be said with certainty as to their increase or decrease.

MILLION DOLLAR IN MARYLAND

THIS STAE ONE OF ELEVEN STATES IN UNION POSESSING THEM

Maryland is one of only eleven States boasting an individual with more than a million-dollar income annually.

While the names of all the seventy-five persons in the country who have incomes of a million or over have been kept secrete by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Capt. Isaac T. Emerson, president of the Emerson Drug Company here is believed to be Maryland's representative in this class.

According to the figures issued by the bureau yesterday, an aggregate income of $155,974,475 was shared by these seventy-five persons in 1924.

New York has more than half of these multi-millionaires, a total of thirty-nine. Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania are tied for second honors, with seven each.

Michigan boasts four of them, California and New Jersey three each, and Massachusetts two, Maryland, Wisconsin and Rhode Island lay claim to one each.

Three men, presumed to be the richest in the country, have incomes in excess of $5,000,000 a year each. One of these lives in New York, and statistical experts say semi-officially that he is the nation's only billionaire. He is believed to be one of the John D. Rockefellers.

Michigan has the other two believed to be Henry Ford and Edsel Ford. The bureau lumped its figures to conceal the identity and income of these ultra-wealthy men. It reported a combined net income of $27,000,000 for the New Yorkers, whose income was more than $5,000,000, another who received between $4,000,000 and $5,000000 and two who trailed along with between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 each.

One person in every seventeen filed a return. The average taxpayer's income was $3481, and the average tax paid was $95.56.

Eight-ninths of the 7,369,000 persons who filed returns had incomes under $5000.

AUTOMOBILE HISTORY

In 1917 the average car cost $1,687.

In 1916 thirteen per cent of the engines used the T-head principle.

In 1915 the average tire size was 34x4.

In 1914 one per cent of the cars still used two-cylinder engines. placement of cars was 345, a high peak in history.

In 1912 one per cent of the cars were powered by five-cylinder engines.

In 1911 ninety-nie per cent. of the cars had no starter as standard equipment. The remaining one per cent. was equipped with air starters.

In 1910 eighty-two per cent. of the cars carried four-cylinder engines.
