THE TRANSCRIPT

A BRIDGE ACROSS the Chesapeake Bay, has been a dream to Eastern Shoremen like the large Conowingo Power Plant has been a dream to Harford and Cecil counties, and now both of these dreams seem to be coming true. The Conowingo development is assured and now that a corporation has been formed, with New York capital, to construct a bridge from Kent County to Bay Shore, it looks as if the Eastern shoremens' dream may come true. The new project will have to be approved by the Maryland Legislature, but with the backing of the entire Eastern Shore, the neighboring Western Shore counties and Baltimore city, it should have no trouble there. A bridge across Chesapeake Bay from Kent county to the Western Shore, aside from bringing the two sections of the state closer together, will prove a great asset toward the development of Kent county.

INVESTIGATION OF OYSTERS

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT SEEKING TO FIND CAUSES FOR DETERIORATION OF THIS VALUED KENT SEA FOOD

One of Kent's most important sources of livelihood is that of taking oysters from the Chesapeake Bay and the Chester River, and the United States government, realizing the importance of the business and the food, is seeking to find the causes for the increasing scarcity of the same.

Oyster lovers may have the United States Bureau of Fisheries to thank if this favorite of all sea foods remains on the American menu in the future.

Unknown to the general public the supply of oysters has been steadily decreasing and has been threatened with actual extinction. Until the last fifty years or so the majority of oysters from Cape Cod to Mexico came from natural oyster beds covering so great an area that they were considered inexhaustible.

Already on the New England coast, where the temperature is about as cold as an oyster can stand, the natural beds are badly depleted or gone. Many of the famous beds of Chesapeake Bay are now nearly bare, although many still remain.

The taking of oysters from American coastal waters constitutes the most valable fishery of the United States and one of the greatest of the world. About 30,000,000 bushels are taken up in a year in the United States, or about a peck for every person. Strangely enough ninety-nine per cent. of the oysters used are procured on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Man is the oyster's greatest enemy. Beds have been poisoned with dirty river water carrying waste from cities and factories, as well as depleted through overfishing by careless oystermen.

Although a single female oyster can produce 16,000,000 eggs in one spawning season, and a few bushel baskets of breeding oysters could therefore supply the whole United States with a season's oysters if every egg grew up properly, they are getting scarcer. Most of the eggs are never fertilized and are therefore lost.

Many of those that are fertilized are eaten by larger creatures or never find a place to settle and are swept out to sea or smothered in mud or sand on the bottom.

Because of the possibilities latent in a single oysters, artifical propagation has been the dream of fishermen and scientists alike for nearly half a century. But this method of increasing or even of maintaining the bivalve population has always been a flat failure, and means other than artificial breeding have been resorted to with more success.

For the first time since the natural oysters beds disappeared from the coast of Maine and New Hampshire and began to thin out along the Atlantic Coast real hope is now held out for checking this decline.

Dr. Paul S. Galtsoff, of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, has made an intimate study of the private life of the oyster and has found out facts that it is believed will solve the various problems of the oyster industry.

The idea of oyster farming is not a new one. Since the first attempts of Professor Coste, of France, over seventy-five years ago to raise oysters by artificial means many persons have attempted it. Exaggerated stories of immense possible production have led even practical oyster growers astray. Stories of good mines in oysters beds are not a new thing.

Tanlac Bestows Happiness On New York Couple

Rochester Man Now Being Congratulated on His Surprising Recovery from Stomach Trouble and Run-Down Condition

If you are nearing the tragic moment when good health slips from you; if indigestion, nervousness, kidney disorders and ailments caused by a run-down condition torture you, benefit from the remarkable experience of William Little who suffered untold agonies for many years only to later regain his health and strength.

Sitting in his comfortable home at 165 Glenwood Avenue, Rochester, N. Y., Mr. Little recently said: "My condition was unbearable. I watched myself slowly fade away. I suffered from stomach trouble and nervousness which caused splitting headaches that almost drove me mad. I had no appetite for food. And when I ate I paid a high price, suffering from indigestion and gas which made me belch and caused burning pains. For days at a time I could not even sit up in bed.

"I looked underfed, weak and scrawny. I sought relief, trying this and that without success. Then Tanlac came to the rescue.

Now Mrs. Little is delighted with my condition and so am I. Am feeling stronger and healthier. My stomach trouble has never returned. I eat everything without a thought of pain. This great tonic built up my strength and gave us happiness. Everyone should take it, regularly."

Mr. Little is only one of many fortunate men and women now enjoying the benefits of good health and vital strength, thanks to Tanlac, the safe, effective remedy made from roots, barks and herbs.

Learn from their experience and good health and strength can be yours, too. The first bottle of Tanlac shows amazing results. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today! More than 40 million bottles sold.
